West End population to rise 50,000 by 1990

The West End of San Bernardino County has added an estimated 25,367 residents since the U. S. census was taken in 1970.

And if projections by county planners hold true, an additional 50,000 will be living here by 1990.

Major growth areas figure to be Chino, Upland and Ontario. Actual decreases are forecast from Cucamonga and Guasti.

The West End population in April 1970 was set at 185,426. County officials, using building permits as a guide, upped the figure to 210,793 in July 1974.

And in the newest population and housing bulletin, planners project the 1990 population at 260,700. This is less than had previously been forecast.

For the entire county, the population was 682,233 in the 1970 census, estimated at 730,037 last July, and now projected to 914,000 by 1990.

Earlier, planners had set the 1990 figure at 1,064,000.

In its report, planners said the projected decrease resulted from a re-examination of the average family size and an insignificant migration rate.

"Both nationally and statewide, the average family household is estimated to have declined by a factor of .1 to .13," they noted. Officials used these assumptions in projecting the future population:

—No major drastic economic or social change to the year 1990.

—A fertility rate of 2.11 live births per woman between 15 and 44 years of age.

—An insignificant net migration rate.

—A .1 to .13 reduction of persons per household in the average neighborhood census tracts, a .13 reduction in high retirement areas, and no reduction in both the medium and upper income areas and the resort and second home areas.

For the West End, the Chino area reported the largest population increase during the past four years but with Upland projected to show the greatest by 1990.

By areas, county planners gave these population statistics:

The Chino area (both incorporated and unincorporated) had 34,151 citizens during the April, 1970, census. This increased to about 41,416 by last July, for a growth increase of 7,265. Officials estimate the area population at 56,300 by 1990 for a gain of 14,884.

The Ontario area had 63,615 residents at the 1970 census. This increased by 4,872 last July, with another 13,613 citi-

Vice squads a threat to 'Vegas Nights'

Boston crisis

Airborne troops on alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon announced today units of the 82nd Airborne Division have been alerted in case they might be needed in the Boston school busing crisis but cautioned there was no plan to order the troops to Massachusetts now.

See Page 3 for more details

"As a purely precautionary measure, units of the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., have been placed on increased readiness," said Pentagon spokesman William Beecher.

"I would stress the words 'as a purely precautionary measure'," he added.

The White House said Tuesday President Ford did not plan to order federal aid into the Boston area until the state had exhausted all means of coping with the busing violence.

Beecher said the alert involves calling men back from leave and telling troops to remain within a certain distance of the base. He declined to say exactly how many men have been alerted.

ON A CLEAR DAY . . . A mild Santa Ana condition Tuesday made temperatures soar to 98 degrees and brought clear skies that offered a rare view of the foothills. After another similarly hot day today, temperatures will cool slightly to the low 90s Thursday. But the weather may get hotter again by the weekend.

Gambling event off in area

By LENORE WALLACE

The San Dimas Chamber of Commerce has called off its annual Virginia City Night because the sheriff's vice bureau took a dim view of the event's gambling games.

If enforced valley wide, the tough stance in San Dimas could pose an ominous threat to clubs, organizations and churches who depend on Las Vegas Night and similar events to raise funds, although no other sponsors seem particularly concerned at this point.

Officials at the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce earlier had announced that the event, set for Saturday night, was called off because "there wasn't enough time to get things together," but chamber Manager Jack Carruthers today said the celebration was canceled after a meeting with a representative of the vice bureau.

Carruthers said the vice squad representative and chamber officials "couldn't come up with a solution and the Virginia City Night was called off."

Last year's event was attended by 350 persons and made about $750 which was used for chamber projects. It is one of the most popular events staged by the chamber, according to Carruthers.

Carruthers said the sheriff's department became involved because of last year's party. He said a band was playing outside the community room of the civic center and "someone kept turning up the volume on sound equipment." Sheriff's officers made repeated trips to the civic center to ask that the music be turned down, he said.

The chamber manager said on one of

Burglar sends back loot with note of apology

A service station burglar, or perhaps his partner, apparently grew remorseful after breaking into Tommie Jones Union 76 station in Pomona. He returned most of the loot with a note of apology.

Jones, owner of the station at Holt and White avenues, found the loot, an air wrench, drill and valuable hand tools, in a box when he arrived for work Tuesday. In the letter drop he found a note, handwritten, which stated simply, "I'm sorry."

Still missing were a radiator cap pressure testing kit and an ampmeter valued at about $75. The items returned were valued by Jones at $200.

The loot was taken sometime Saturday night by someone who broke in through a rear window.

Today Jones theorized that perhaps two men broke in and one grew remorseful and returned his share of the loot.

"Maybe the other guy will return the rest of it," Jone mused.

Calves slaughtered in protest

By United Press International

Angry Wisconsin farmers drove their trucks to a huge trench at Curtiss, Wis., Tuesday, unloaded their calves, then shot the young animals down or slit their throats to protest skyrocketing feed costs and low livestock prices.

The carcasses of the more than 650 calves and 15 pigs were left to rot in the trench.

A chapter of the National Farmers Organization said the group had considered making the meat available to packing houses as donations for the poor, but the packing houses said they did not have time to handle it.

In a similar action conducted near Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., eighteen calves were slaughtered.

The actions came just hours before President Ford, in an address to the Future Farmers of America at Kansas City, reiterated his call for increased farm production and reduced waste to combat inflation.

While farmers and ranchers elsewhere —notably in Texas and Oklahoma —have threatened similar mass cattle slaughters in symbolic retaliation for declining cattle prices, the Wisconsin stockmen were the first to act.

One by one, they drove trucks up to the trench. Some felled the calves, which ranged in age from two days to two weeks, with shots to the head. Others slit the animals' throats, butcher style.

Some 300 farmers, newsmen and other onlookers watched the slaughter.

Cattlemen at Gans, Okla., voted to slaughter their livestock if "all other solutions fail." They said they would also send a load of cattle to the White House to dramatize their plight.

Another group of Oklahoma ranchers called a temporary halt to a planned cattle slaughter and decided to take their case to Washington instead.

Oren Lee Staley, president of the NFO, said at the group's national headquarters in Corning, Iowa, that the action at Curtiss was a voluntary protest.

"It's up to individual members what they want to do," he said. "It will cut their production and if they want to do this to demonstrate that farmers are taking serious losses, we think it is within their right to do so."

The kill at Curtiss exceeded the expectations of Steve Pavich, president of the NFO's Wisconsin branch. He had predicted as the slaughter started that more than 500 animals might be sacrificed by nightfall.

Pavich was asked if it would not be better to make the slaughtered animals available to packers for donation to the poor.

"Sure, that would be better," he said, "but we talked to two differrent packers and they told us they didn't have time to handle them. This is the next best thing.

"I'm tired of rhetoric and a lot of farmers are tired of it, too. We need to bring to the attention of the public that there is a problem out here in rural America and something has to be done about it."

Which dugout will command Miss California's loyalty?

The girl next door from Claremont, now spreading smiles as the current Miss California, may get herself into a quandary if the World Series returns to the Southland.

The Los Angeles Dodgers are apparently waiting to see just how much bias there is to Lucianne Buchanan, the reigning queen of the Golden West, who has been unofficially "adopted" by Charley Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics.

The former Cal Poly senior who turned 22 this month has been a guest of Finley at the Oakland Coliseum, wearing the team's official green and gold colors, and according to Finley, "bringing luck to the club." She is expected to appear at Finley's side again tonight as the Dodgers try to even the series at 2-2.

If the Dodgers win one of the two remaining games at Oakland, the World Series moves to Los Angeles for the final of the best four out of seven games.

Fred Claire, public relations director for the Dodger organization, said the Dodgers don't plan to offer Miss Buchanan the "Finley treatment."

"But if she asks us for a chance to participate in the festivities on the Dodger side, as she should in her official title if she is not biased," he said, "we certainly will not refuse her the opportunity."

New policy saves costs

Bank to weed out customers with small savings accounts

DETROIT (UPI) — One out of every four savings account holders at Michigan's sixth largest bank have been told they are undesirable customers.

The Michigan National Bank of Detroit initiated a new policy Tuesday designed to rid itself of costly savings account transactions.

All customers with $50 or less in their savings accounts were informed they must either take their business elsewhere or boost up their accounts.

The policy affects only customers at the bank's Detroit branches, a spokesman said.

The bank started the policy, President George A. Pierson said, because it is losing money on small savings accounts and customer service is deteriorating.

A spokesman said no accounts were closed the first day of the new policy but officials "talked" with many depositors about the matter.

The new policy drew criticism from the local branch of the NAACP, which called for a consumer boycott of the bank.

The civil rights group urged all customers to withdraw their funds and cancel loans because the bank's decision discriminates against the poor, young and elderly.

The bank said, however, the policy would not include young persons or organizations such as the Boy scouts.

A bank spokesman said one of every four savings accounts totals less than $50, less than one per cent of the total money in savings accounts.

Michigan National lists assets of $1 billion and $200 million in savings accounts.

Dean on stand, tells again of coverup actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified today that within two days after the Watergate burglary, then White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman both took actions to cover up the involvement of Richard Nixon's re-election campaign committee.

Dean, a former White House counsel who first accused Nixon of complicity in the cover-up, said he was present when Ehrlichman ordered bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. to get out of the country and he was told Haldeman had ordered White House files be "cleaned" of potentially incriminating documents.

During his first hour on the witness stand in the Watergate cover-up trial of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and three other Nixon associates, Dean recited the same story he first told 16 months ago at the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings.

Sipping water frequently from a styrofoam cup, he told how the plan to gather political intelligence was hatched and eventually resulted in the bugging arrests of five Nixon campaign operatives at Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate on June 17, 1972.

LEE TRAVERS

City manager is selected

Lee Travers officially became the new city manager of Upland Tuesday night.

The five-member city council emerged from an executive session to vote unanimously to designate Travers its permanent city manager after a period of three months during which he served as acting city manager.

Travers' salary as city manager will be $27,000 per year.

He became acting city manager upon the resignation of Elwin Alder June 1.

In announcing Travers' appointment, Mayor Abner Haldeman noted that, as acting city manager, Travers had "many trying challenges," and that he will have many more.

Travers, 49, retired from the Navy at the rank of Lieutenant commander in 1964 and moved to Upland from San Diego the same year. His first post with the city was as an administrative assistant. He became director of administrative services in 1967.

Travers belongs to Rotary International and the Navy League, and he is vice president of the Ontario-Upland Council.

He and his wife, Joanne, have four children, Lee Jr., 26, Diane, 25, Susan, 21, and Stephen, 20.

Ford fears 'legislative dictatorship' if Demos score big election gains

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford warned today of a "legislative dictatorship" if Democrats score big gains in November's congressional elections.

Admitting polls show GOP candidates far behind in key races, Ford urged party workers at a fund raising breakfast to make a "massive effort" to elect Republicans and stave off a "veto-proof Congress."

Widening the current Democratic majorities in the House and Senate would mean a "legislative dictatorship" Ford said before flying on to political rallies in South Dakota, Nebraska and Indiana.

"Americans don't like dictatorships," Ford said. "They like a system of checks and balances."

Ford also criticized congressmen who voted to cut off military aid to Turkey, saying this action, "more than any other in recent times, would have undercut this nation's 30-year-old bipartisan approach to foreign policy..."

In remarks at a $100-a-plate breakfast in Kansas City, Ford pleaded with party workers to "make my job easier" by electing more Republicans to Congress this November.

Ford planned stops later today in Sioux Falls, S.D., Lincoln, Neb., and Indianapolis in what is the most intensive day of campaigning since he assumed office.

He returns to Washington late tonight and will make a rare presidential appearance before a House subcommittee Thursday to answer questions about his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon.

Ford advised the nation Tuesday night to save more and spend less and today he repeated his inflation message.

The President said at the breakfast he had been advised years ago by former congressman Thomas Curtis, the GOP candidate attempting to unseat Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., that, "If our friends in the opposition party kept busting the budget, we would have an inflation that would curl our hair.

"They (the Democrats) kept busting the budget and today you see the results."

Earlier, Ford mingled with about 50 wealthy contributors who paid $1,000 apiece for the privilege of sipping coffee in a hotel suite and shaking the President's hand.

Among the guests were James S. McDonnell, chairman, McDonnell Douglas Corp.; John Hanley, president, Monsanto Chemical, and Hadley Griffin, president, Brown Shoe Corp.

In his breakfast speech to about 300 Republicans, Ford conceded that the November congressional and state-house races "will be a tough election and some people say that the odds are against our candidates this year."

But slicing into the current Democratic majority would mean "a lot less politicking in Congress and a lot more progress in meeting the pressing problems facing us at home."

THE BALCONY SCENE

President and Mrs. Gerald Ford take note of their 26th wedding anniversary on the Truman balcony at the White House Tuesday. The occasion was celebrated at a gathering on the south lawn of the White House just before the President left on his most active political tour since assuming office.

Valley man, 60, beaten, robbed of wallet, $3

A 60-year-old man was beaten and robbed of his wallet late Tuesday night by a gang of youths, Pomona police reported.

Among the items Donald G. Webster lost to his attackers were his Medi-Cal identification card and three $1 bills.

Webster said he was leaving the Viking bar at 214 W. Holt Ave. through the back door when he was confronted by the four who at first asked for a match. Then they knocked him down and grabbed his wallet before running away through the alley.

The leader was described as a Negro in his late teens or early 20s, 5 feet 10 to 6 feet wearing dark clothing.

Webster suffered facial and leg injuries.

Rival's campaign literature 'a lie, libelous'--McVittie

Bill McVittie, Democratic candidate in the 65th Assembly District, has taken strong issue with his Republican opponent's recent campaign literature which included the statement: "Recently my Democrat opponent was charged with bribery by the District Attorney's Office."

In a hastily called press conference Tuesday, McVittie termed that statement as "a lie. It is not a white lie. It is a deliberate falsehood with the intent of wrecking my campaign for the state Assembly and to injure me professionally in my community."

McVittie noted that certain allegations had been made concerning his part in the work of an independent voter registration effort. But an investigation was conducted, charges were filed and those charges were dismissed Friday in the West Valley Municipal Court.

"But now my Republican opponent is responsible for conveying a malicious, false impression to thousands of local voters. He is going to answer for this in a court of law." he said.

"I plan to present this malicious conduct to a court of law. I am hopeful the court will assess damages for what my Republican opponent has done and will stop him from spreading his untruth further."

McVittie said people had warned him that partisan politics was a "rough and tumble business" and that recent public opinion surveys indicate that people view their political leaders as liars and crooks.

"By circulating this libelous letter to deceive the voters, my opponent gives credence to that public impression. He has demeaned himself, he has betrayed the members of his own party who desperately want a return to the proud tradition of Republicanism, and he has proven his campaign is without character. He is willing to pursue victory at any price."

Pete VanderPoel, Republican candidate for the 65th Assembly District, when contacted today for comment on McVittie's statement, said he would issue a rebuttal Thursday.

Motorcyclist hurt seriously in crash

A Pomona man suffered serious injuries Tuesday when his motorcycle ran off the San Bernardino Freeway in Montclair.

Dan Harry Marshall, 25, of 661 W. Holt Ave., was treated at Doctors Hospital in Montclair and later transferred to the San Bernardino County Hospital.

The victim suffered facial injuries and abrasions to his arms, legs and chest, said highway patrolmen.

Marshall was riding west on the freeway when the cycle left the roadway near Monte Vista Avenue, they added.

Two arrested at Garey High after playground fight

Two youths were arrested at Garey High School Tuesday as the result of a fight during a playground football game.

Shortly after 12:30, the fight developed during which, it was charged, one youth, 14, kicked his adversary in the throat after getting him down.

The injured youth was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment of throat, chest and leg injuries.

The 14-year-old subsequently was arrested on suspicion of felonious assault.

Shortly after the fight, while the victim was being aided in the nurse's office awaiting an ambulance, his brother entered and began shoving persons around, police reported.

The brother, 16, was accused of hitting Donald W. Redman, 35, director of student activities, and Stacy Hertsche, 44, dean of instruction.

The youth was booked on charges of felonious assault, trespassing on school grounds and interferring with school officials.

Police quoted the suspect as saying that he went to the office after hearing "his brother got stomped."

OROVILLE (UPI) — The wife of Republican Houston I. Flournoy believes her husband will quit politics if he loses his gubernatorial election bid in November.

Private detective arrested in valley subpoena dispute

A 52-year-old private detective was arrested by Ontario police on a charge of giving a false statement in connection with the alleged nondelivery of a subpoena in a civil court case Tuesday.

Robert Hatfield of 419 W. C St., Ontario, surrendered to police Tuesday afternoon after an arrest warrant was issued by the West Valley Municipal Court.

Hatfield, according to police, was arrested on the false statement charge a felony, after a defendant in a civil suit complained that the court sent him a letter advising him that a judgment had been made against him for nonpayment of a loan to a loan company.

The defendant told officers that he had never received a subpoena or summons from the court or any other information that a suit had been filed against him. Hatfield, according to police, was hired to deliver the subpoena.

Hatfield claimed that he did deliver the subpoena to the defendant's address and gave it to a woman he presumed to be the defendant's wife. The defendant said that his wife was out of town at the time of the alleged subpoena service and could never have received the paper.

Judge Kenneth Ziebarth after hearing the complaint by the defendant turned the case over to police for investigation.

Turner was arrested on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder and remained in custody today while police presented their case to the District Attorney's Office.

Car-motorcycle crash injures valley man

An Upland motorcyclist was injured Tuesday night when his motorcycle crashed into a car making a left turn on Holt Boulevard near Mountain Avenue, according to Ontario police.

Anthony Pasquale Denardo of 1334 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland, was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Ontario Community Hospital with injuries suffered in the accident.

Police said Denardo's motorcycle crashed into the side of a car driven by Ernesto Leon, 27, of 320 E. B Street, in Ontario. Leon was not injured in the accident.

Nellie Yanez of 140 Brooks St., Claremont, a passenger in Parrillas car, suffered head and face lacerations. She was given medical treatment at Ontario Community Hospital and later released.

Vasquez was not injured in the accident.

Redevelopment plan for city to be aired

A specific plan for redevelopment of downtown Chino will be discussed at a community workshop hosted by the city's Planning Department Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Building.

Discussion will involve "The Central Avenue—Specific Plan' and presentations will include a summary of findings of interest to businessmen, officials say.

Key areas of concern include changes to the plan resulting from suggestions developed in two earlier workshops, results of a business attitude survey and the back-loop circulation system.

Owen Menard and Associates, Claremont planning firm which developed a plan for Central from Philadelphia Avenue to Chino Avenue, will have a representative at the workshop.

Raising $2½ million for water projects

City gets 7.35% rate in bond sale

Upland has sold $2,500,000 in water revenue bonds at a 7.35 per cent interest rate to a firm of stock and bond brokers.

The Upland City Council was informed at a special meeting Tuesday night that the firm of Smith, Barney and Company was the low bidder for the bonds, which are being sold to raise money for two water reservoirs in the northern part of Upland.

Michael F. Whipple, a representative of Stone and Youngberg, the city's municipal financial consultants, informed the council of the bids.

Councilman Harold Bailin demanded that Whipple recite the amounts of all five of the bids received.

The other bidders would have charged the city interest ranging from 7.38 to 7.48.

The council voted unanimously to accept the 7.35 per cent bid from Smith, Barney and Company.

Whipple explained that a "minimum call" feature of the bond sale will allow the city to pay less than 7.35 per cent on the total $2,500,000 issue.

Money to pay both the principal and the interest on the project will be raised by water revenues. Construction of the two reservoirs is scheduled to begin early in 1975.

Already rising construction costs have forced city planners to reduce the size of one of the reserviors. Originally they hoped to get two 10-million-gallon reservoirs, but now the best they can hope for is one 10-million-gallon reservoir and one reservoir which will hold between five and 7.5 million gallons.

The bulk of the bonds will mature at 7.4 per cent interest in 1999, according to the schedule of interest rates, but the "minimum call" feature of the sale allows the city to pay off part of this debt at a lower rate.

According to the schedule, $1,750,000 in bonds will reach maturity in 1999 at the 7.4 per cent rate. But if the city wants to, it may decide to pay off part of this amount earlier than 1999 at a rate of 6.5 per cent. Thus the overall interest rate can be reduced by paying off the debt ahead of schedule.

Under the schedule, $25,000 in bonds will mature in 1975. Another $25,000 will mature in 1976. Thenceforth $50,000 in bonds will mature each year from 1977 through 1982. In 1983 $75,000 in bonds will mature, and the same amount will come to maturity in 1984, 1985 and 1986. In 1987 $100,000 in bonds will mature. But the bulk of the debt, $1,750,000 will reach maturity in 1999, unless paid off earlier.

Each $50,000 maturity carries an interest rate of eight per cent. From 1984 until 1987, however, the interest rate on the bonds will drop to 6.5 per cent.

Whipple said that he thought that Smith, Barney and Company already had sold most of the bonds, but anybody who wants to buy Upland water bonds should call the stock and bond brokers.

Whipple noted that money from the bond sale would be made available to the city in about three weeks.

News briefs

Siamese twins die of heart failure

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Siamese twins born Sunday at County-USC Medical Center died Tuesday night, hospital authorities said.

The twins, joined at the abdomen and chest, had been in critical condition since their birth. Earlier Tuesday, a hospital spokesman said there was "relative improvement" in their condition.

The twins were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sevino Morales of East Los Angeles, parents of four other children.

The twins had been receiving respiratory assistance since birth. A hospital spokesman said Tuesday that they had not experienced "any significant cardiac or breathing problems" Monday night.

The cause of death was heart failure, common to Siamese twins, doctors said. The girls died a few minutes apart.

L.A. County imposes controls on divers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County supervisors Tuesday passed a law imposing wide ranging controls and restrictions on scuba divers that was bitterly opposed by the divers themselves and boat operators.

Scuba enthusiasts booed and hissed as the supervisors ignored them to enact ordinances that include requirements for scuba diving licenses and a law against diving within 24 hours of taking a drink.

"People are dying. We are going to protect the public," said Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, pushing the bill through and setting off a chorus of boos from about 100 divers and boat operators.

Hahn said he wondered how long the divers would oppose the measures. "Until the day we die," shouted back one of the opponents.

The bill, to be enforced by county lifeguards and sheriffs deputies, requires that all divers and instructors carry licenses showing they have been properly trained, with divers licenses to be renewed every year and instructors' every year.

Every diving boat must carry an oxygen resuscitator and a trained operator, and equipment must meet county standards, including air purity.

RTD drivers vote today on contract

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bus drivers vote today on whether to end their 65-day-old strike and the Rapid Transit District confidently began calling employes back to work.

Voting by 3,300 drivers, members of the United Transportation Union, was to take place in 12 districts, from Riverside to Venice, this afternoon and evening, under the supervision of the State Conciliation Service. The state overseers planned to count the votes tonight, starting about 7 p.m.

Union leaders have predicted the drivers would approve the tentative settlement offered to them. The RTD began notifying some mechanics and clerks to be ready to return to work Thursday morning if the drivers accept the offer.

The RTD said that if all goes as expected, the first bus to resume service would leave downtown Los Angeles for East Los Angeles at 3:21 a.m. Saturday.

Company finds itself 'locked out' of blaze

The owners of the International Forest Products Inc. Co., 13945 S. Ramona Ave. in Chino Tuesday afternoon found themselves helplessly "locked out" when a fire broke out in a new sawdust silo in their plant.

The Chino Fire Department was called to the company about 4 p.m. after employes spotted smoke billowing up from a new 60-foot sawdust silo at the rear of the wood company.

When Chino firemen arrived, they called the Montclair Fire Department requesting the use of their snorkle truck. After pouring water into the silo the smouldering fire continued to burn and company officials were informed that they would have to open up the silo and dump the sawdust if the firemen could not extinquish the blaze.

Company officials told the fire department that the silo could not be opened as the motors for the machinery had not been installed. The motors were scheduled to be installed today.

Fortunately for the company and the firemen the fire seemed to extinguish itself. One firemen commented, "It seems like the company was just a day late and a dollar short."

Boston mayor fighting mobilization of state guard

BOSTON (UPI) — Mayor Kevin H. White today officially opposed the mobilization of the state National Guard by Gov. Francis W. Sargent and served notice he may go to court to prevent the guardsmen from being ordered into the streets of Boston to quell racial disorders.

The makings of a power struggle between the Democratic mayor and Republican governor, both of whom have their eyes on national political positions, was set when lawyers for White filed a memorandum in U.S. District Court stating the "inadvisability" of using the National Guardsmen mobilized Tuesday by Sargent.

As the memo was filed, 50 police stood guard inside racially troubled Hyde Park High Schol and hundreds of riot trained police surrounded the building. At nearby armories, some 500 National Guardsmen were on standby orders to take to the streets if violence broke out.

Shortly after Hyde Park high opened, a 17-year-old black student was arrested on a charge of assault and battery on a policeman in a dispute over the student carrying an umbrella. The policeman reportedly tried to convince the youth to either hand over the umbrella or put it in a locker, instead of carrying it to classes.

White's memorandum was filed before Judge W. Arthur Garrity by Assistant Corporation Council Kevin Maloney. It said it was inadvisable to use National Guardsmen because they were not properly trained.

"This is not a specific motion. It is just to advise the court and counsel of the mayor's ideas and to inform the court that we may make a specific motion as conditions warrant at a future date," Maloney said.

The National Guard units were mobilized Tuesday by Gov. Francis W. Sargent after President Ford rejected his request for federal troops. Mayor Kevin H. White said the callup "has all the earmarks of disaster.'

A heavy, driving rain, the first on a school day since the court ordered plan to integrate public schools by busing began 24 days ago, kept demonstrators and spectators off the streets early today.

Attendance was down considerably at Hyde Park, the scene of a violent clash Tuesday between blacks and whites, in which a 15-year-old white boy was stabbed, and six other white students and a white teacher were injured.

Only some 200 blacks, about half the number in classes Tuesday, showed up today at Hyde Park. It was estimated that less than 50 whites were in the school, thus the white students were outnumbered by police.

School buses, with the usual motorcycle police escort, arrived without incident.

Police Commissioner Robert diGrazia and Police Supt. Joseph Jordan were on hand at Hyde Park along with the hundreds of police, some mounted on horses. Officials said four State Police troopers also were on duty at stairways inside Hyde Park, marking the first time state policemen were assigned outside of South Boston since they were called in to help Boston police cope with the trouble.

Schools were to close early today because of teacher conferences which were scheduled a long time ago.

Other reported violence Tuesday included:

—Boston Fire Lt. Francis J. Chapin, 48, of South Boston, a white, stabbed during an attempted robbery in Dorchester. Police said he was stopped at a red light when four or five black youths yanked open the door and demanded his money. He was held overnight at City Hospital.

—Tina Adams, 18, of Dorchester, a black student at Hyde Park, was stabbed on the way home from Lena Park Neighborhood Center, by another black female. She was treated at Carney Hospital.

Picket warning about famine on hand to see Ford

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Wayne Morse, a 75-year-old full-time picketer warning about worldwide famine, was the first protester outside Municipal Auditorium Tuesday hoping to catch President Ford's eye.

Sporting a gray suit with matching Alpine hat, the raspyvoiced retiree walked in front of the auditorium most of the day carrying a black and white sign reading "Gerald Ford— Four Questions."

Morse was busy most of the day handing out leaflets to hundreds of blue-jacketed Future Farmers of America delegates attending their national convention. Ford spoke at the convention Tuesday night.

"I'm trying to educate these farm boys who don't think we're going to have a famine in 1975," Morse said. "They don't think there will be a famine, but if you look at the statistics, you know darn well there will be.

"Those kids will hear a lot of gobbledegook tonight, but they ought to realize they can't feed the world. They sit on their farms with all that good, and they can't believe it."

Morse had only limited success convincing passersby to take his flyer topped with a black and white skull and crossbones. He said most were hesitant to even discuss the issue with him.

'Las Vegas Nights' . . .

the visits, several sheriff's deputies looked inside the community building and noticed that blackjack and crap games were in progress.

"No action was taken that night, Carruthers said, "but several months ago Capt. Ken Snover called and asked if we planned to stage the Virginia City Night again."

"When I said we did, Capt. Snover suggested that we meet with a representative of the sheriff's vice bureau. By the time the meeting was held, Snover, who was captain at the San Dimas station, had left the area and the meeting was held in the office of his successor, Capt. William Baker.

Carruthers said the sheriff's representative said the chamber couldn't use gambling chips that have a monetary value. He explained that dinner tickets to the event included some gambling chips. When these chips were used up, guests purchased additional chips. No cash value was given to the chips but the chips were used to bid for prizes that were auctioned off at the close of the event. All of the prizes were donated by local merchants and one prize last year included a bicycle.

The chamber manager said he was told by a representative of the vice bureau that if a party guest merely purchased another dinner ticket that included chips when he used up his first group of chips, nothing would be illegal.

But Carruthers doubts that guests would want to purchase another dinner ticket just to get additional chips. This added cost burden places the annual Virginia City Night party in an economically unfeasible position.

"We don't want to do anything illegal," Carruthers said, "and we are hopeful that a solution can be found to this problem."

He said that this is one that faces many clubs and organizations in the valley area.

The Virginia City Night party has been rescheduled for February. Chamber officials plan to meet with the vice bureau representatives in the next few weeks to try to "work out the details."

"If it hadn't been for that band, we wouldn't have this problem," Carruthers said.

Other valley organizations weren't discouraged.

Mrs. Florence Cohn, a Claremont Realtor, says she has served as chairman and arranged for Las Vegas Night parties at valley organizations for the last five years without any problems.

She said she has never had any problems with the vice bureau or local police agencies with the gambling aspect of the operations but said controls are very strick on the serving of alcoholic beverages at the events.

Of such events, says Capt. G. M. Peterson of the Los Angeles vice bureau: "If you have to donate money to play, it is illegal."

Peterson said "good intentions or good causes don't change the law or the responsibility of enforcing the law."

He said the restrictions on gambling are statewide and are not limited to the county, but the sheriff's department is the police agency for San Dimas. He said his department investigates all complaints "but we don't have the time or the manpower to bust into church basements and club meetings where suspected gambling is taking place.

"Most people want to comply with the law and are most cooperative when they find they are doing something illegal."

zens projected by 1990. This would boost the population to 82,100.

The Montclair area had 28,599 persons in 1970. This increased by 502 to 29,101 last July. And 1,199 more residents are projected by 1990, bringing the count to 30,300.

The Upland area, with 37,864 residents in 1970, added 6,451 for a total population of 44,315 last July. And the area is expected to add another 18,185, for a 1990 population of 62,500.

The Alta Loma and Etiwanda areas had only 10,522 residents in 1970. This increased to 16,205 last July—a growth of 5,653. Another 2,795 population increase is anticipated by 1990 for a total count of 19,000.

For Cucamonga, officials predict a net loss of 643 residents by 1990. The area's population was 5,444 in 1970, increased by 559 to 6,003 last July, but planners believe this will drop to 5,360 by 1990.

Guasti, likewise, is projected to continue showing a decrease. The population went from 3,094 in 1970 to 2,967 last July—a loss of 127. The 1990 projection is for 2,340 residents, a decrease of 627.

For Mt. Baldy and Wrightwood, the 1970 population was 2,107, increased by 192 to 2,299 last July and is projected to add 501 residents for a 2,800 population count by 1990.

Reagan calls for battle against inflation to start with government

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today labeled inflation the "fundamental challenge facing America" and called for the battle against it to begin with government cutbacks of all types.

Reagan blamed the nation's soaring inflation on excessive government spending and reiterated his opposition to President Ford's proposed surtax.

"The fundamental challenge facing America today is simply the restoration of America's financial stablity," Reagan said in remarks prepared for the Board of Directors of the American Trucking Association.

"To combat inflation we should be reducing excessive government spending, especially at the federal level," he said. "And I submit it is counter productive to increase government's revenues."

Reagan indicated Tuesday at a Sacramento news conference that he would join a third party movement as a presidential candidate if he thought the new party could better carry out his conservative philosophy.

Until President Ford entered the White House, Reagan had been considered a strong contender as the front runner in opinion polls for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination. He recently returned to California from a cross-country tour campaigning for Republican congressional candidates.

"It is time for us to realize we have had too much government, too much red tape, too many taxes and too many regulations," Reagan said.

"If we are ever to bring inflation under control, we have got to start routing the causes of inflation out of our system," he added.

The governor said the causes included unnecessary restrictions on private business that have driven the cost of products to excessively high prices.

He called for the elimination of agencies which "hurt more than help" those they are to protect and regulate, saying the Interstate Commerce Commission "is a good place to start."

Sexual discrimination case against Hughes--'no basis'

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — A complaint of sexual discrimination made against Hughes Airwest has been determined by the Idaho Human Rights Commission to be without basis.

The commission Tuesday ruled there was no evidence to substantiate a complaint by Elizabeth Cass, now of Phoenix, Ariz., against the airline.

She contended that the airline violated the Idaho Antidiscrimination Act by hiring men instead of recalling her to work in the Boise Air Terminal.

She had been a ticket agent in the terminal but was not recalled to work at the end of a strike March 31, 1972. Instead, she was placed on furlough to return to work in the terminal when a ticket agent position opened.

A hearing of the commission in the statehouse heard Charles Coe, the Boise Hughes station manager, testify regarding the nature of the strike and the procedure by which people were recalled.

Coe said the procedure is based on seniority and Mrs. Cass was the lowest in seniority at the time of the furlough.

The commission under hearing officer Glenn Selander determined that the company had operated within its established procedures, within its contract with the union and had not violated the state Anti Discrimination Act.

Home folks sticking by Wilbur Mills

KENSETT, Ark. (UPI) — There is a red, white and blue sign just off U.S. 67 on the way into town that proudly proclaims in five-foot letters: "Wilbur Mills Country." And, it still is.

This is where the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee came to manhood, where he played a pretty fair first base for the town baseball team, where at age seven he went to work in his father's general store, still one of the main businesses on First Street.

From here via Harvard law, county judge and election to the 76th and succeeding Congresses in 1938, sprang Wilbur Daigh Mills, at one point the kindly dictator of the House, generally acknowledged the most powerful man in Congress.

Whatever Wilbur Mills may have been to insiders, he has always been regarded here among the 1,144 townspeople as a solid citizen who, through the traditional virtues of hard work and clean living, climbed high and made them all proud.

Then last week came the incident in Washington, in the car late at night with the former strip tease dancer, drinking, scratches on the face, broken glasses, the shattering of an image at age 65.

Home folks don't really know what to make of all that. But for the moment, most of them anyway, seem like they'll stick with Wilbur. Blood is far thicker in this end of the world than scotch and water.

It is mid-morning Tuesday. A clear October day except for high, fair weather cirrus clouds scudding above

WILBUR MILLS

John Howell's Conoco service station.

How have things been fairing since news of Wilbur came out?

"Everyone's in sort of a state of shock," said the burr-haired man, stocky, with weatherworked face and work-scarred hands. "I think half the people believe it and half of them don't."

What did he believe?

"I wouldn't want to say one way or ther other."

Squatting, an older, leaner man, rimless glasses and billed, wool cap, the metal pincers of an artificial arm jutting from his left sleeve, turned slightly and shot a spit of tobacco juice parallel to his left shoulder into a pool of auto grease.

"Politics is nothing but hearsay anyway," he announced. He did not want to discuss the point. It was a statement. "I don't like politics, too many lies." Each word pitched higher than the last. He was getting angry. Time for the stranger to leave. Mills gets at least a 1-1 break here, maybe 2-0.

The bank of Kensett is another Mills family business. After proper identification, a reporter is allowed to cash a traveler's check. The work is done by a pleasant woman in blue with neatly coiffured hair.

The stranger's question on Mills catches her off guard. What did she think? "Well, we think he's just a mighty fine person."

Do you believe it all happened, the drinking and so on?

"Naw, no," her voice trails off. She is embarrassed. Another for Mills.

At Don's Cafe out on U.S. 67, Betty the waitress is counting the money after the lunch crowd of truckers has thinned out. The stranger takes a cup of coffee at the empty counter and strikes up a conversation on the Mills incident.

"I've heard some talk," she says guardedly.

Still think you'll vote for him?

"Of course I'm going to vote for him," she said. "What a silly question." . "Some people would like you to believe it's worse than it is. People are people."

She shrugged her wide shoulders, the subject dismissed.

Mills carries Don's cafe 1-0.

It will take more than the Tidal Basin happening to derail Wilbur Mills in his home town.

President's homespun speech stresses we can WIN

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford delayed the start of a World Series game to give Americans a fatherly lecture on how to fight inflation —save money, hunt bargains, drive more slowly, turn off lights, clean your plates, and get enough sleep.

It was a homespun speech to a homespun audience Tuesday —a convention of the Future Farmers of America —and included the kind of advice he heard from his parents:

"Take all you want, but eat all you take," he said.

"The first words I can remember were: 'clean up your plate!' When you aren't using them, turn off the lights, turn off the television, turn off the radio, turn off the heater.

"Use less hot water. Insulate attics and windows. Shut doors. Keep rooms at 68 degrees in the wintertime when you're awake and at lower temperatures when you sleep."

Other major points: "Balance your family budget" ... "Use credit wisely" ... "Save as much as you can" ... "Conserve energy" ... "Keep wages and prices low" ... "Increase productivity" ... "Shop wisely, look for bargains," ... "Do it yourself" ... "Help with recycling programs" ... "Guard your health."

The television networks had decided it didn't have enough "news value" to be carried live, so Ford personally requested the time and it was given.

NBC had to ask Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to delay the start of the World Series game 15 minutes to get all of Ford's speech on before the opening pitch. That meant Ford had the large baseball audience to hear his suggestions.

Many of his ideas came from the Citizens' Action Committee to Fight Inflation, chaired by economist Sylvia Porter, which met last Saturday to draw up recommendations.

Ford illustrated the recommendations with comments from some of the letters he received with proposals from citizens to fight inflation.

—Mr. and Mrs. Roland Spaek of Holland Mich., are cutting their household budget, Ford said, and they urged that "our federal budget be pared to the bone."

—Robert Stewart of Waverly, Tenn., has a heart condition, so he draws a pension of $251.28 a month, which means he can only eat two meals a day. But, according to Ford, he wrote "thank God we aren't on welfare," and urged that government spending be cut "except for national defense."

—Mrs. Frank Tennant of Climax, Mich., wrote that she and her husband, a self-taught machinist who lost his leg in Korea, do not use credit cards and save enough to buy a government bond every month.

—Bob Cantrell of Pasadena, Calif., gave up his stereo to save energy and said "if a kid nags his parents to conserve energy long enough, it will help. "Believe me," the President said, "it will."

—Kathy Daly of Weymouth, Mass., suggests buying warmer clothing this winter.

—Rick Jacobsen of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., wrote, "We planted our own garden so we could save on vegetables.'

—Margaret and William Dalton of High Falls, N.Y., wrote that a ton of recycled fibers saves 17 live trees and a ton of waste.

—And Luette Drumheller, 8, of Bristol, Va., wrote "turn off lights when not needed, and if you are scared when you go to bed without the light on, tell your mother or father and they will do something about it."

"Luette," said the President of the United States, "we are not going to be scared of the dark — any of us."

These were the kind of recommendations Ford wanted to present to the country — simple ones, but he hoped they would help.

Some of them have wider effects. For example, Ford said, "If you can save more, the hard-pressed home building mortgage market needs your dollars."

Government was going to take action as well: the Treasury, said Ford, is considering issuing "WIN" bonds with competitive interest rates; state and local officials are being asked to strictly enforce the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit; and WIN flags will be awarded to business, stores or other enterprises which fight inflation.

One large and perhaps complicated government proposal involves the creation of WIN committees in states and localities to set specific goals and monitor ways of fighting inflation.

"After Thanksgiving day," said Ford, "measurement of progress and recognition of outstanding accomplishments will be pursued on local, state and national levels.

"The success of cooperative voluntary action will depend on a mutuality of effort, a sense of fairness and widespread support of goals.

"The benefits of such action will lead to greater civic efforts by millions of Americans and a focused awareness of what directions public policy should take toward economic justice for all."

While Ford was proposing things citizens could do, Mike Mansfield, the Senate's Democratic leader, went on television to object to what Ford's administration was doing.

He recommended more wide-ranging actions to fight inflation, which included standby controls on wages, prices profits and rents, rationing of energy supplies, cutting taxes for low and moderate income wage earners and the retired, restricting consumer credit, taxing excess profits, and creating a program of jobs for people out of work.

"The nation is in an economic emergency," said Mansfield.

"I think you, the people, expect government to confront that emergency decisively and to act on it in the general interests of the people. We have not done so and even now seem to lack the capacity to do so."

Guerrilla band steals body of ex-president

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A band of guerrilla ghouls stole the body of a former president of Argentina from a Buenos Aires cemetery during the night, police said today.

Police sources said about 20 persons took part in the elaborate theft of the coffin containing the remains of Gen. Pedro Eugenio Aramburu from the historic Recoleta Cemetery in central Buenos Aires.

Aramburu, who helped in the coup that overthrew the late president Juan D. Peron in 1955, was killed in 1970 by the pro-Peronist Montoneros guerrilla group.

The Montoneros supported last year's return of Peron to power but have gone underground to fight the government of Peron's widow and successor, President Maria Estela (Isabel) Peron.

Peronist leader Mario Eduardo Firmenich boasted last September in the magazine La Causa Peronista (The Peronist Cause) that he led a group that killed Aramburu for his part in the revolution that overthrew Peron and for allegedly plotting against Peron's return.

The magazine was closed by the government the same week and the Montoneros announced they were going underground.

A week later more than 120 bombs exploded in two days throughout the country but no group claimed responsibility.

The Montoneros claimed credit for the spectacular and elaborate daylight kidnaping Sept. 19 of Jorge and Juan Born, directors of one of Argentina's largest export and real estate companies.

Bombs exploded at two automobile agencies in widely separated areas and someone fired at sentries outside army headquarters in downtown Buenos Aires Tuesday night, according to police sources.

No one was reported hurt in the incidents, the latest in Argentina's chronic series of terrorist attacks.

JOHNNY ROVENTINI

'Call for Phil-lip Mor-rees'

Johnny retires after 'temporary' 41 years

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Philip Morris Inc.'s famed bellboy, "Johnny," has retired after 41 years and millions of calls for "Phil-lip Mor-rees!"

John Louis Roventini, a midget, quit his job as a New York bellboy 41 years ago to do commericals for Philip Morris Inc. Tobacco Co.

Roventini had only one line, but it made him famous and helped skyrocket the company's sales.

His cry, "Call for Phil-lip Mor-rees," was heard more than a millian times across the country on radio and television commericials.

Last weekend, Roventini, the 48-inch tall son of Italian immigrants, retired.

The company, in announcing his retirement, described the 64-year-old Roventini "as the world's most famous living trademark." It said his retirement "marks the end of an era."

From 1933 to 1947, Roventini, known as "Johnny Philip Morris," was heard on as many as four radio shows a day. Those were live shows, not taped, so Roventini had to be at the studio to belt out his one line on cue.

On television, Roventini rang out his call dressed in a red and black bellboy's uniform. He also made personal appearances at festivals, conventions and parades.

Roventini's career began in 1933 while working at the New Yorker Hotel, where he was featured as the "smallest bellboy in the world."

Alfred E. Lyon, then Philip Morris vice president for sales, askd him to locate "Mr. Philip Morris."

Roventini went through the hotel singing out "Call for Phil-lip Mor-rees" and the firm's two executives loved it.

They offered him a $100 a week to do commericals for the firm. After some hesitation, Rosentini quit his $25 a week job and took it.

The company held a ceremony for Roventini Saturday at the opening of their newest Richmond plant.

Another 816 requests rejected

High court weighs 90-plus cases in new term

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Can a drunk man be sent to prison for five years for threatening to beat up the President?

Can federal courts block Senate subpoenas on grounds they threaten the consititutional rights of political organizations?

Those are two of 25 questions the Supreme Court agreed to decide in a flood of orders handed down Tuesday, the first full day of the 1974-75 term.

These plus about 90 other cases which the court had agreed to review this term before its recent recess, were only a few of those the justices were asked to consider. Another 816 requests for oral arguments and opinions were rejected.

In a typically wide-ranging docket, the court also agreed to hear cases involving sex discrimination, aid to parochial schools and rights of criminal defendants before trial.

The court left for later — probably in the next several weeks —a decision whether to hear appeals by seven North Carolina men asking that capital punishment be abolished once and for all as cruel and unusual punishment.

The threat to the President was made by a Shreveport, La., man who didn't like the idea of President Nixon's going to China. He told some restaurant customers he wanted to go to Washington to beat up the President.

The man was arrested and sentenced to five years in prison.

His attorneys contend the man was only exercising his right to free speech in a crude but nevertheless harmless manner.

Only three months after ruling that Nixon had to turn over Watergate tapes to the criminal court system, the nine Justices decided to confront constitutional questions raised by congressional subpoenas.

They agreed to decide whether the rights of several anti-war groups were violated by Senate subpoenas of their bank accounts. The case opens the way for a groundbreaking decision on how far courts can go in limiting the investigatory powers of the legislative branch.

Pennsylvania is again trying to get a parochial school bill past the Supreme Court. Two earlier efforts were struck down.

The present law allows state money to be used in areas which are unlikely to involve religious training. These include testing services, purchase of state-approved textbooks and audio-visual equipment.

A three-judge court in Philadelphia upheld the newest law, 2-1, but the dissenting judge warned that the majority engaged in "perilous departure from the teachings of the First Amendment."

Other cases the court accepted for review include:

—Whether warrantless U.S. border patrol searches of automobiles for aliens are constitutional.

—Whether states are required to make welfare payments to pregnant women for their unborn children.

—Whether social security benefits may be withheld from widowers with small children while they are allowed for widows.

As is often the case, the court declined to hear some of the most interesting issues, in most instances allowing the lower court verdict to go into effect.

The justices let stand a lower court ruling that the government does not need a warrant to gather foreign intelligence information with wiretaps. The court refused to overturn the conviction of Igor A. Ivanov, who was convicted of espionage in 1964 and was later allowed to return to the Soviet Union.

School teachers in California and Maryland were denied hearings on complaints that they were fired because of alleged homosexual activity.

The justices dismissed an appeal challanging the growing use of bar examinations to make sure that lawyers moving from one state to another are competent. A man who practiced law for 22 years in the District of Columbia failed the Arizona bar exam twice, and said he was being denied a constitutional right to practice his profession.

The wife of America's first recipient of a heart transplant, Haskell Karp, charged the surgeon, Dr. Denton A. Cooley of Houston, with malpractice. The complaint was dismissed and the Supreme Court refused to interfere in the ruling.

The justices also let stand the dismissal of a libel suit against CBS by the 1930s black actor known as Stepin Fetchit. The actor, Lincoln Theodore Perry, objected to a documentary saying he portrayed "the tradition of the lazy, stupid, crap-shooting, chicken-stealing idiot."

The court declined to hear a challange to an Indiana law used to control prostitution. An Evansville woman said the law was discriminatory because women were the only ones arrested.

California natural gas users failed to win a hearing on an FPC order barring the El Paso Gas Co. from giving utilities in that state favored treatment during gas shortages.

Celebrating Fords serenaded by Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A smiling, handclapping Betty Ford, with her husband at her side, observed her 26th wedding anniversary Tuesday by being serenaded from the White House Lawn by singer Tennesse Ernie Ford.

The First Lady, recovering from surgery for cancer of the breast, was clad in a lounging robe and stood arm-in-arm with President Ford to listen to the Anniversary Waltz and then clapped her hands, tapped her right foot and swayed back and forth to the tune of "West Virginia."

Ford arranged the serenade as a surprise to his wife and she responded with a huge kiss for the President.

Prior to coming to the balcony the President and his wife had a quiet lunch in their living quarters where he gave her a pin of the presidential seal encrusted with diamonds. Mrs. Ford gave the President a silver plated football, which was the game ball used when Ford played center in the college allstar game of 1934.

Ford and his group of country singers had just completed a five-week tour of Russia during which they presented 27 concerts in five cities, including Leningrad and Moscow.

The President joined the singing group on the lawn where some 200 White House staffers were clustered to wish the President and Mrs. Ford a happy anniversary.

"On behalf of Betty, who is the boss, and myself, I thank the 26 of you who so ably represented 200 million Americans in the Soviet Union."

Pigs' heart valves given 15 patients

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Physicians have successfully transplanted heart valves from pigs into 15 patients suffering from diseased valves at the UC Davis-Sacramento Medical Center.

Dr. Todd Grehl Tuesday said the pig heart valves have been accepted as a "most important alternative to the use of prosthetic valves."

Tissue valves have the advantage of eliminating the use of anticoagulants necessary with plastic valves, the physician said. The pig valves also have a lower irritation factor to the blood.

The patients at the medical center received the pig valves as replacements for either the mitral or aortic valves, or both in combination. The valves control the flow of blood through the heart, which becomes sluggish when the valves are diseased. The patient will eventually die unless corrective action is taken on the valves.

Grehl said hundreds of patients nationwide have received pig heart valves without suffering mechanical failure or tissue rejection.

Dump gas overcomes 12

WEST COVINA (UPI) — A freak accident at the privately owned BKK Dump produced a poisonous gas Tuesday that overcame 12 persons.

The driver of a truck carrying sulphuric acid waste dumped his load next to the zinc waste deposited by another truck. When the two loads combined, the chemical reaction produced fumes that rendered both drivers unconscious. Two dump workers, six firemen and two police officers were also overcome by the colorless gas, but did not lose consciousness, when they came to the rescue of the two drivers.

The drivers, Charles L. Dawson and Joseph Coffman, were in guarded condition at Queen of the Valley Hospital.

Dr. Edward Teller

Stop delaying A-tests

DENVER UPI) — Edward Teller, known as the father of the hydrogen bomb, says despite the danger of radiation in underground nuclear projects, the nation must continue its efforts to develop alternative energy supplies.

"We can't have delays when we are fighting for our collective lives," Teller said Monday in a speech at the University of Colorado Medical Center. "We are all scared— overly scared—of radiation. If a little is detected, we get nervous."

Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., who joined Teller on the speaker's platform, spoke against future nuclear projects without the consent of voters, an issue that will be listed on the Colorado November election ballot.

Haskell said he was pleased the issue was being put before the people and felt it was the right of Coloradans to make the decision whether to go ahead with such projects.

"A human being can err, and when a human being errs in a thing like this, it's serious," Haskell said. "The subject matter is so serious it should be in the hands of the people."

"The real danger is not radiation," Teller said. "The real danger is radiation scare which will scare us away from important projects.

"A person standing right on top of the explosion we are talking about may come away with a backache and nothing worse," he said.

Midget sub crew inspected 300 miles of ocean bottom

BELLE CHASSE, La. (UPI) A midget submarine rescued from the bottom of the North Sea off Scotland had safely inspected more than 500 miles of pipeline recently without incident before two men became trapped inside Monday.

The men, identified as Gilbert Blevins, 25, and Leslie Lynch, 28, were rescued unharmed after spending six hours trapped in the 26-foot vessel, which is operated by the Taylor Diving and Salvage Co. of Belle Chasse.

Taylor officials said this week the submarine was designed to operate underwater for periods of four to six hours, but carried enough emergency oxygen to sustain two men three days.

"This is the first time we've had a problem," a Taylor spokesman said. "It has inspected more than 500 miles of pipelines in the North Sea and the Persian Gulf. This was just a normal job."

The submarine, known as TS1, was built in 1970 and operated by Brown and Root, Inc., an oil industry engineering and contracting firm, until earlier this year. It is now operated by Taylor.

Taylor said the 22,500-pound white submarine was on lease to Shell Oil Co., for underwater pipeline inspections when a rope became entangled in the propeller.

Divers freed the vessel in 235 feet of water near a deep gorge known as Devil's Hole off Aberdeen, Scotland.

The submarine is equipped with television cameras and videotape equipment to record pictures of pipeline installations and is capable of working at depths up to 1,359 feet.

Perry Oceanographics, Inc., of California built the submarine, which operates with a 170-foot support boat known as the William Dampier.

Shell Chemical Co.

Experiment incinerator in Gulf pollution test

HOUSTON (UPI) — An incinerator ship carrying 4,200 tons of chemical wastes is heading for a site 135 miles south of Galveston, Tex., where it will burn its cargo in the Gulf of Mexico.

The ship Vulcanus left Shell Chemical Co.s Deer Park Refinery this week for the nine-day cruise with its toxic payload.

The Environmental Protection Agency will monitor the burning to determine if there are adverse effects on the marine environment.

Shell has been dumping chemical wastes into the gulf for more than 10 years and last week received permission from the EPA to test the incineration method at sea.

If the first test is proven successful a total of 17,000 tons will be disposed of in a similar manner.

The ship's two incinerators can burn about 20 tons of waste per hour at a temperature of 1,200 degrees centigrade.

Accompanying the Vulcanus to the site was a research vessel leased by Shell Chemical and carrying experts assigned to monitor the burning and make tests to determine the effect on the environment.

The tests will be evaluated and if they meet EPA standards the company will be allowed to continue the burning.

Gary Dillard, manager of Shell Chemicals Deer Park manufacturing complex, said the 4,200 tons represented about a year's accumulation.

He said Shell for the past 20 years had dumped the wastes 100 miles offshore, but now hoped to incinerate them on the Vulcanus until a $10 million shore-based incinerator is built at Deer Park.

Clint Pray, executive director of the Louisiana Council on Environmental Quality, has opposed the use of the incinerator ship to dispose of wastes in the Gulf.

For the past two years the Vulcanus, operated by Ocean Combustion Services of Rotterdam, has burned wastes off the European coast.

Nuclear ship dispute

Japan pays $4 million

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's nuclear ship Mutsu returned to its port in northern Japan today after local fishermen and the government reached a $4 million settlement.

The Mutsu left on its maiden voyage Aug. 26 from Mutsu port in Aomori Province. For nearly two months local fishermen kept the 8,214-ton ship from returning to its home port when the vessel developed a leak in the nuclear reactor.

Government envoy Zenko Suzuki, chairman of the executive council of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, signed the agreement Monday night with a representative of the Aomori fishery unions, Aomori Prefectural Governor Shunkichi Takauchi and Mutsu City Mayor Kanji Kikuchi.

The government agreed to pay $4 million for settlement. About $2.7 million will be used to promote fishery in Mutsu City and the rest will be used to compensate fishermen for the time and money lost while they went on strike during the dispute over the ship's return to port.

The Mutsu tried to return to port when a radioactive leak was detected in its nuclear reactor shortly after the ship left for the test run. But the city fishermen fearing the waters would be contaminated by radioactivity, threatened to block the port if the ship tried to return.

Monday's compromise ruled out an earlier government plan to remove the ship's defective reactor while in Mutsu port. It also said the government would relocate the home port within two and a half years.

However, government sources said, it was not known where the new port would be built. They added the new port will be decided upon within six months.

Tokyo newspapers called the settlement "the 100 per cent concession" by the government.

The papers said the government had spent more than $30 million for the development of the port of Mutsu as the ship's home port.

Ecology group lauds 6 solons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The League of Conservation voters has given six senators high marks for pro-environment voting records based on 21 key issues.

Only one, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., had a perfect score.

The others in the top 10 per cent were Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., 98; Clifford Case, R-N.J., 94; Dick Clark, D-Iowa, 93; Edward brooke, R-Mass., 90, and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., also 90.

The rankings were based votes ranging from the use of highway trust fund money for mass transit to a delay in the right-of-way approval for th Alaska Pipeline.

Democrats as a group averaged 58, compared to the GOP average of 41.

Stained glass art a family business

DENVER (UPI) — In 1886, Charles Watkins packed his stained glass and tools in a covered wagon and headed for Denver from Detroit. Four generations later, the Watkins studio still is going strong.

"There were just a bunch of miners in Denver when my grandfather first came out, and they weren't much interested in stained glass," Phil Watkins Sr., said.

Watkins, his wife, Alice, and their son, Phil, run the studio alone although it once employed 25 artisans.

"I remember going into my father's studio in the 1920s and seeing the windows, all framed, stacked up to the ceiling," Watkins said. "The contractors would come in on Saturday and buy them all up."

Watkins said at that time, windows were made up a hundred or so at a time, with the design varied a little before the next batch was produced.

According to Phil Jr., the studio now makes "something over 30 but less than 100 a year."

Glass for windows is produced in two general ways. The more difficult method involves blowing molten glass into a hollow cylinder, slitting the side and then flattening the curved piece out for cooling.

The second method, considered by some to produce a less artistic piece of glass, consists of pouring molten glass onto a large iron plate, rolling the substance with hot iron rollers for uriform thickness, and then allowing it to cool.

Watkins said neither the principles nor the tools of the art have changed much in the 500 years since European crusaders brought the craft back from Islam, although the techniques for glass making have been simplified at the expense of color and quality.

He said to become skilled in the craft, a person must first be an apprentice for five years.

"During the first two years, an apprentice breaks a lot of glass and ruins a lot of material before he starts to make a studio any money," Watkins said. "But unless you stay with it and become skilled in design and the craft, your window will look the same in a railroad station as it would in a church."

Watkins, his father and his son all began in the family studio by age eight as floor sweepers. They graduated to cementers, cutters and upward until after receiving college degrees in art, they became full craftsmen.

Watkins earned his degree, was a pilot in World War II in Egypt and stayed on there as an airline pilot.

"But after a while, I returned to my father's studio to start at $44 a week, and I knew I had made the right decision," Watkins said.

Watkins has orders from 34 states, ranging from churches to bars, from airports to schools. He said 30 to 40 of the windows in Colorado's statehouse came from the studio over a 100-year period.

He said most windows the studio makes are for churches, with modern designs favored over traditional. Watkins also said more people are beginning to buy stained glass windows for their homes.

"For quite a while, people were afraid if they got a stained glass window for their home, people would come in on Sunday, take a seat and wait for the preacher," he said.

Although the studio usually runs a year behind on orders, Watkins says he doesn't plan to expand or take on extra help.

"With a small studio, you can keep a finger on everyone, and here anyone of us can see a window through from the first drawing to putting it in.

"In the big studios, everyone is specialized—one person talks to the customer, another does the sketch, another the cutting and so on. In the end, hardly anyone recognizes the window.

"I am not out to be a tycoon. I drive a Chevrolet, live in a small house and try to be fair to my customers. The work is good and I enjoy it."

Identify Elsinore body as missing 5-year-old

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — The county coroner's office today positively identified the decomposed body of a boy found Saturday near Lake Elsinore as 5-year-old Ronald Dean Smith of Lennox.

On Morday, the boy's mother, Joann O'Connor, 22, identified clothing from the body as those the child was wearing when he disappeared from a Lennox playground Aug. 24.

The coroner's office was still unable, however, to determine what caused the boy's death.

When care means everything

There are times when care, and care alone, means everything. That's why at Rose Hills we are not just another mortuary. We stress the importance of care and understanding above all else.

It was a care for beauty that led to the creation, more than a half century ago, of the world's most naturally beautiful memorial park.

It was an understanding of people's needs that led us to establish a mortuary. We offer every needed service — mortuary, cemetery, chapels, flower shops, mausoleums and crematory — all at one convenient location.

Care...and understanding. At Rose Hills, we think they mean a lot.

N. Dakota election

Karate chop key to senate race

By EARL F. FLOWERS

BISMARCK, N.D. (UPI) — The week before North Dakotans choose their U.S. senator, Milton Young will appear in a television campaign spot and break an inch-thick board with his hand.

That's how Young, 75, answers charges he is too old for his sixth term. And in any other year, against any other foe, proving that he was fit to do the job would be about all the campaigning Young would need.

But this year his opponent is former Gov. William Guy, 55, himself a giant of North Dakota politics. In a conservative and predominately Republican state, the moderate Democrat was invulnerable for 12 years.

"I can't imagine anyone else pushing the senator so close," one long-time political observer said recently.

Democrats say a poll taken last year during the height of Watergate publicity showed Guy with up 53 per cent of the vote, compared to 36 per cent for Young and 11 per cent undecided.

Despite the obvious, Guy carefully has avoided direct mention of Young's age or his 29 years in the Senate.

In a recent television appearance, for example, Guy cited the need to reform Congress and said the seniority system keeps "dry rot in Congress."

Guy's favorite theme since the September primary, in which he had opposition and Young did not, is the need to send new leadership to Washington—an issue tied to his slogan, "A proven leader for the future."

Young, who is vigorous and in apparent good health despite the fact he will be 76 before the next Congress is sworn in, meets the age issue head-on. He cites the value of his Senate experience, his seniority and his accomplishments for North Dakota.

Young, president of the U.S. Tai Kwan Do Association for the past 10 years, will demonstrate a karate chop in his TV campaign spot in hopes of convincing voters he is as hearty as he looks.

The stunt is reminiscent of the time Vice President Alben Barkley led a fast-paced hike from the railroad station to his national convention hotel to prove he was vigorous enough to be the Democratic candidate for president in 1952. He didn't get the nomination.

Young has made only weekend appearances in his home state thus far in the campaign, while Guy moves constantly in a blitz of news conferences, press releases and appearances on radio and television talk and interview shows.

But neither Young nor Guy needs to establish name identification with the voters.

"Right now, the voter is really having a hassle with his conscience because he has always voted for both men," said one Republican observer.

In past re-election tries, Young has been all but assured of carrying every county. But this year even Young's most resolute supporters concede the race will be close.

If Young wins, he would succeed retiring Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., as senior Senate Republican. Young is the senior minority member on the Senate appropriations and agriculture committees, a point he emphasizes in this predominantly farming state.

Young was appointed to the Senate in 1945 and won a special election the following year. Guy retired as governor when his last four-year term expired in 1972.

Two independent candidates also are in the Senate race, but they are given no chance. Kenneth Gardner Jr. is the nominee of the Freedom and Liberty Party, a politically conservative group. James Yungroth is a former chairman of the North Dakota Democratic Party, running on an environmental protection platform.

The Ripon Society, a liberal Republican research organization, recently said the Senate race between Young and Guy was about even, but indicated Yungroth could be a deciding factor if he polls as much as 5 per cent.

In the race for North Dakota's only congressional seat, Rep. Mark Andrews, 48, appears headed for re-election over Democrat Byron Dorgan, state tax commissioner.

California election

New cast of characters scheduled

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles dealing with general election issues and candidates the voters will face at the polls Nov. 5 in California.)

By CARL INGRAM

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time since Gov. Ronald Reagan's landslide victory eight years ago, California voters on Nov. 5 will install a virtually new cast of characters in state offices.

They also will vote on 100 legislative races, send a 43-member delegation to Congress, and decide whether to give Democratic U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston a second term.

Additionally, Californians will consider 17 statewide ballot propositions, ranging from striking "sex discrimination" from the state constitution to seeking to block construction of a proposed $100 million dam in the Sierra foothills.

Except for Republican Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, no incumbent is seeking reelection to a constitutional office. He is opposed for a second term by Democrat William A. Norris, former chairman of the Los Angeles Police Commission.

For governor, Democrat Edmund Brown Jr., 36, secretary of state and a former seminary student, seeks to succeed the retiring Reagan, who turned out Brown's father by almost 1 million votes in the 1966 GOP landslide.

Opposes Flournoy

He opposes Republican state Controller Houston I. Flournoy, 45, a former college professor and three-term assemblyman who was re-elected in 1970 as California's chief fiscal officer by a plurality of 1.4 million votes, the biggest GOP vote-getter in the nation.

In a campaign that thus far has failed to spark much voter enthusiasm in the ebb tide of Watergate, Brown holds a substantial lead in opinion polls. Flournoy will get an expected assist from President Ford shortly before the election when the President visits California to campaign for him.

But while most attention focuses on the race for governor, the usual, which is common in California politics, is at play in other races. For example:

—Jesse Unruh, the former powerful Democratic speaker of the Assembly who lost to Reagan in 1970 and the Los Angeles election for mayor last year, is attempting a political comeback for state treasurer. He faces Republican John Kehoe, a former Reagan administration consumer affairs director.

—Assemblywoman March K. Forg of Oakland seeks to become the first woman of minority ancestry to hold statewide office. She is challenged for secretary of state by Republican Brian Van Camp, 33, who resigned as state commissioner of corporations to run.

—Black Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally of Los Angeles, one of the legislature's most liberal Democrats, is opposing former Sen. John L. Harmer, one of its most dedicated conservatives, for lieutenant governor. Reagan appointed Harmer one month before the election to succeed Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who resigned when he was sentenced for perjury.

Bitter campaign

The race for state controller pits Republican Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael against fellow veteran Assemblyman Kenneth Cory, D-Garden Grove, in one of the bitterest campaigns of the election. Both accuse each other of receiving "improper" campaign contributions.

Cranston, who thus far has done almost no public campaigning, is challenged by conservative Republican H. L. "Bill" Richardson, a fiesty state senator who had produced approximately 5 million political "tracts" aimed at securing the support of gunowners, businessmen, peace officers and Christians, among others.

Cranston campaign officials say $700,000 "at the most" will be spent on his re-election campaign, approximately $250,000 of it earmarked for final weeks media advertising. Richardson estimates his expenditures at about $450,000, including $200,000 for media advertising.

In contrast, Brown campaign officials figure his budget at about $1.3 million while Flournoy advisers report their expected budget at roughly $1.1 million.

Loaded with propositions

As usual, the statewide ballot is loaded with propositions — ranging from striking out any reference to the male gender in the constitution to seeking to prevent construction of the New Melones Dam below a nine-mile stretch of white water rapids on the Stanislaus River.

Supported by conservationists, the measure would include that reach of river in the state's protected scenic and wild rivers system. It wouldn't, however, prevent the federal government from going ahead with construction but would serve as an expression of what the voters though about preserving the river.

Senate OKs bill making citizen of Solzhenitsyn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today approved a bill to make exiled Soviet writer Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn an honorary citizen of the United States.

The bill, which goes to the House, would direct President Ford to declare the Russian author a citizen of America.

A report by the Judiciary Committee accompanying the bill said the measure "does not imply that he must accept or reject it.

"It merely placese United States on record, in a most emphatic way, that this nation honors him for his contributions to the freedom of mankind."

Robbery suspect found asleep, his head in dish

SEATTLE (UPI) — The unfruitful holdup of Paul Stone, 22, must have taken a lot out of the robber.

Stone told police the bandit who had struck a gun in his ribs on the weekend backed away and left when he found stone had no money.

Two hours later police found a 25-year-old suspect asleep in a nearby restaurant. His face was in a plate of food and a loaded pistol was stuck in his belt.

The suspect was held in lieu of $5,000 bail.

UC freshmen assigned to 'bonehead English'

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Because they can't write properly, a record number of freshmen at the University of California have been assigned to compulsory courses in "bonehead English" this year.

"These students have done well in some of our best high schools in the wealthiest suburbs, but they never learned to write more than a few lines," the director of the program called "Subject A" said Monday.

Phyllis Brooks, the director, noted that 1,165 of the incoming class of 2,718 would have to take the 10-week course in expository English.

That is 45 per cent of the class, compared with 42 per cent last year.

'Disaster' drill is a disaster

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Participants in a simulated gas explosion "disaster" were especially grateful it was only a drill.

The police failed to show up and two volunteer victims "died" when rescuers failed to find them —one on a tower in plain sight and the other 50 yards away from ground zero.

Chief Buster Baker said he ran the police part in the exercise on paper because he didn't want to spend taxpayers' money.

PLENTY OF LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT — Westinghouse engineer adjusts one of 10 headlights during tests for improved headlight systems in future cars. Engineers mounted them, along with fog lamps, on bumper and grille to be used under a variety of conditions. Testing showed improved illumination.

Army to name tank in honor of Abrams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army will name its next main battle tank in honor of the late Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, who led the tank unit that smashed German lines during the Battle of the Bulge, Army Secretary Howard Callaway said.

Abrams, former Army Chief of Staff, died following a cancer operation Sept. 4. He was 59.

No date has been set for the start of production on the new Abrams tank.

Abrams made his name as a tank commander in World War II, heading the lead battalion of Gen. George S. Patton's famed Third Army in the breakout from Normandy.

Callaway told the annual meeting of the association of the United States Army Monday, "No one memorial can adequately capture even a small portion of his qualities and accomplishments. He was too much a man."

Wetlands unit

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Suisum Marsh in Solano County is the largest remaining unit of wetlands in California, the state Department of Fish and Game reports. It contains 54,000 acres of wetlands and an additional 30,000 acres of waterways

School board candidates speak in forum

Teacher contracts, collective bargaining, use of police on campus among issues raised

Teacher contracts, police on campus and collective bargaining were issues discussed at the forum for Pomona school board candidates Tuesday afternoon.

It was sponsored by Associated Pomona Teachers (APT), attended by 34 persons, mostly teachers, at Great Western Savings and Loan.

Five-minute presentations were made by the three candidates, Mary Montes, Gene Whitlock and Frances Livingston, who then answered questions for nearly an hour.

Candidates generally agreed, in response to a question, that teachers should have a memorandum of understanding or a contract with the administration:

—Mrs. Montes: "I think currently teachers are short-changed. I'd like to set up a system where teachers have more to say.

—Whitlock: "I want as many things as possible written down. The teacher is an individual. Everything should be spelled out 100 per cent. If we don't have a contract, we don't have a system."

—Mrs. Livingston: "I don't have any quarrel with entering into an agreement, if there is integrity on both sides. Sometimes it gets to be game playing, and I think this district has had enough games."

As to whether police should be called on campus, their answers went:

—Mrs. Montes: "Only as a very last resort."

—Whitlock: "Yes. If elected, I'd do everything within my power to see each and every act of violence is prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The first line of defense is the police. The only people who say they don't want police on campus are the ones who've never had a problem."

—Mrs. Livingston: "If it is necessary, in his view, the principal should call the police. We should have a blue ribbon committee of experts to look at our problems, because safety is a question."

On collective bargaining for school teachers, there was generally agreement.

—Mrs. Montes: "It is a fundamental right. It is an extension of the American system."

—Whitlock: "I think we should have collective bargaining, but I'd hate to see the teachers take to the streets because then the children would take to the streets."

—Mrs. Livingston: "I'm not opposed to collective bargaining, but I'm opposed to strikes. Collective bargaining for teachers is down the road."

Asked how he felt about federal money and its attached strings, Whitlock responded, "Federal programs have kept our schools going. If this money, with strings, was taken away, we would be looking for $8 million, not $2.6 million. Today we say give us the money with strings. Then we will elect people to Congress to make changes."

Asked how to dump the incompetent teacher, Mrs. Montes answered, "I've given that a lot of thought. Incompetent teachers pose a problem for the entire system. But teachers have rights. They should be called in to a closed session. Right now, the system is on the side of the teacher."

To the same question, Mrs. Livingston answered, "I feel we're stuck with the tenure system. These problems should be discussed in executive personnel sessions, with a full board. It is not fair to expose a teacher to the public arena."

"I'm very much committed to education and to children," Mrs. Montes said in her opening statement. "Some say that because I'm Mexican-American I only care about Mexican-American children. That's a lie. It is wrong to throw me in that bag. That is additional experience for me."

Whitlock said he officially was on the side of the Nov. 5 school tax override. "Total education is dollars and cents," he said. "We get what we pay for. The fact that Pomona has been able to survive should be pointed to with pride."

Mrs. Livingston said she was vitally interested in the educational process, and that she had an established record of community service. "I'm telling you, you need me. I'm a professional. My special interest is the education of children," she said.

All three candidates said during the meeting they had children and their children were "here." After the meeting, it was learned that Mrs. Montes had a daughter, Lisa, 5, in kindergarten at Hamilton Elementary School in Pomona. Whitlock has five children. Three are college age, a 5-year-old girl is in a hospital in Fontana and a 3-year-old son is at home. Mrs. Livingston has a teen-age son and daughter, both in private schools in Pomona.

"I took them out of public school two years ago, but I will be happy to bring them back when public schools in Pomona are safe and brought up to standard, academically," said Mrs. Livingston.

City pinches pennies, will fix up used car

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

One councilman's fear that "beat up" cars would be used for city business provoked controversy at the Chino City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Public Works Director John Gerardi said that since no bids were received on a 1973 Matador, formerly used as a police car, that auto would be retained for use by the city's code enforcement officer.

"By investing $500, we can bring the car up to snuff," Gerardi promised.

But councilman Leonard Frketich said he thought the city was "getting away from using old police cars for official business."

In the past, Gerardi explained, officials had generally used police cars in that manner but the practice was discontinued.

"It was a bad policy," he admitted. "We kept the old car on hand and it had a high maintenance cost."

Frketich put it another way. "We were using old beat up cars, and now we're going to do it again."

Gerardi said economically it's the "soundest thing we can do now," but he assured Frketich officials would not return to the old rule of using police cars. It would cost an additional $3,000 for a new auto for the code enforcement officer, he added, and that at least would be postponed by fixing the Matador.

Asked by Frketich why there were no bidders on the car, Gerardi indicated he did not know, but "the car's motor is not shot completely."

He added that the $500 cost to repair the car would cover replacement of the engine, paint, and tires so the auto's use could be extended beyond 60,000 miles, or five years, "normal city policy."

The Matador was one of six surplus vehicles placed up for bid by the city recently. When five new cars including two autos for police detectives were purchased there was a surplus.

Officials did not trade in the older cars because of "time constraints," according to Gerardi.

A 1971 Ford was sold for $626; 1968 Plymouth, $151; 1949 Ford, $310; 1966 Chevrolet, $231; and 1972 Chevy sedan, $721.

Councilmen finally voted to retain the Matador, with Frketich agreeing to the move. Mayor Bob McLeod, a salesman for a Chino Chevrolet dealer, abstained from voting on the entire surplus car matter.

In other action, councilmen voted to re-submit two annexations totaling 90 acres to the county Local Agency Formation Commission. The annexation areas are at Chino and Roswell avenues and Chino and the flood control channel.

City officials had proposed to enlarge the annexation area, and include the Hillview Acres Children's Home at 3693 Chino Ave. but Hillview withdrew its request to annex.

Gale Carr, director of planning and community development, said Hillview, a home for children with behavioral problems, withdrew the request because of planned additions to the facility. "They'd have to pay our fees for the construction," he said. "Of course, they'll still have to pay fees to the county."

G. NELSON LORTIE

Lortie installed as president of High Twelve Club

G. Nelson Lortie of Pomona has been installed as president of the High Twelve Club of Pomona for 1975. Past state association President Herbert Goddard presided over the ceremonies.

Lortie, who is a charter member of the club, was the 1973 recipient of the "older American Award," given out annually by the Department of Senior Citizens Affairs in Los Angeles. Lortie is 77.

Other officers for 1975 include Harold Herrling, first vice president; Benjamin Schneider, second vice president; Joseph E. Beydler, third vice president; G. Leonard Rygg, secretary; Keith E. Brown, treasurer; Glenn A. Dellenbach, Masonic representative; Blaine Weaver, chaplain; and Wilbur Gouger, sergeant-at-arms.

Another crusade chief selected

Dr. Joseph J. Jacobs of Pasadena is major employes division chairman of United Crusade in Los Angeles County's Region 2 which includes the valley area.

Jacobs is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Jacobs Engineering Group, Inc.

His appointment as division chairman was announced by Charles F. Horne Jr. of Pomona, regional chairman.

Jacobs is responsible for the contact of 117 major firms in the region that will result in an aggregate gift total of nearly $1 million that will go to support 250 agencies and services.

One of Jacob's innovations during the campaign was the appointment of a task force of 15 industrial and commercial executives to do liaison with 40 selected firms.

Parking lot ideas, costs to be aired

The cost of low-rise parking structures and parking enforcement and parking patterns will be discussed at the meeting of the Claremont Vehicle Parking District board of commissioners Thursday at 8 a.m. at the City Council Chamber.

Officer James Gucciardo will explain to the board what problems he encounters in enforcing the two-hour parking limit in the Village shopping area. He will also tell about the turnover in parking and suggest means of improvement.

New electronic device opens doors for blind

An electronic device, no larger than a pocket transistor radio, has opened the door to new worlds for blind residents at Pacific State Hospital in Pomona.

It is a "soni-guide," a gift from the General Telephone employe club. It produces a beat that tends to make sightless, mentally handicapped residents forget their fear of the unknown when attempting tasks that once seemed impossible, according to recreation therapist Roberta Stephens.

The regularly repeated tick of the "soni-guide," which is similar to the beat of the metronome, has allowed her to expand her teaching concepts in auditory training, she said.

Gene DeWeese of Claremont and Mel Jackson of Pomona, both General Telephone Co. engineers, spent the summer designing and producing the "soni-guide."

It was presented to the hospital by the Holmwood-Lorbeer Club, a chapter of the Independent Telephone Pioneer Association.

Word of the device has spread to Sacramento, where the state's Visually Handicapped Department has expressed interest in obtaining one, and to Kentucky where the American Printing House for the Blind wants to mass produce it for the federal government.

Traffic panel recommends city install more stop signs

The Claremont Traffic Safety Commission has recommended that the City Council order the installation of stop signs at seven downtown intersections where there never have been any.

City Public Work Director Paul Cook explained that the commission felt that the right-of-way should be assigned at each of the following intersections to prevent accidents: 11th Street at Cambridge Avenue; 10th and Ninth streets at Oxford Avenue; Ninth Street at Cambridge Avenue; 12th Street at Baughman Avenue; Cambridge Avenue at 10th Street; and Oxford Avenue at 11th Street.

The commission recommended taking out the stop sign on Bonita Avenue at Berkeley Avenue at Our Lady of Assumption Church, and making the Cambridge-Bonita intersection a four-way stop.

A contractor is installing crossing gates on the new Cambridge extension from Arrow Highway to Bonita and the commission believes the stop signs would be better at Bonita.

The commission also recommended changing the crosswalk on Vista Drive from the west side to the east side of Notre Dame Avenue, adding a crosswalk at Marygrove Road, and painting a loading zone on the curbing in front of Vista del Valle School.

The commissoin took under advisement recommendations from residents on Scripps Drive between Towne Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard regarding speeding vehicles. A resident suggested barricading the street in mid-block to stop it from being a through street.

The police department patroled the street, handed out 33 citations, 19 to local residents. Of the tickets handed out, 73 per cent were given to housewives.

Advanced first aid class to be offered

The Claremont Red Cross will offer a course in advanced first aid and emergency care beginning Monday.

The course, offered free of charge, is covered in about 51 hours of class time, and will be held from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays through Nov. 27. The class also is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25, Nov. 16 and 23.

Further information may be obtained by phoning the Red Cross at 624-0074.

Cost of the new first aid book is $2.50.

Plan to inspect vacant dwellings will get hearing

A public meeting will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. by Pomona's Residential Occupancy Committee to consider the city's proposed certificate of occupancy ordinance.

The meeting will be held in the Boards and Commissions Room at Pomona City Hall.

The proposed ordinance would require the inspection of all residential units in the city at the time of vacancy and the issuance of a certificate of occupancy before the property could be inhabited.

The proposed ordinance is aimed at eliminating continued use and deterioration of substandard housing.

The committee is expected to make its recommendation to the City Council following the meeting.

City will join in census, hoping to reap more aid

Upland will contribute approximately $20,000 in 1975 to a federally conducted census in San Bernardino County.

The Upland City Council unanimously approved Tuesday night the expenditure of about 54 cents per head for a count of the heads in Upland.

As representatives of the city which is growing faster than any other city but one in San Bernardino, the civic officials in Upland are convinced that an official federal census will result in increased financial aid to the city from the state, which allocates much of its money on a per capita basis.

County officials have called for the census, and will pay the cost of the head-count in unincorporated areas. Upland and other cities in the county agreed to support the census earlier this year.

The federal Bureau of the Census established that Upland's population was 32,551 in 1970. The San Bernardino County Department of Finance has certified the city's present population to be 37,900.

Veysey to address valley Rotary Club

Congressman Victor Veysey, R-43rd Dist., will be the guest speaker when the La Verne Rotary Club meets Thursday noon at Castaway Restaurant.

After a brief address, he will be questioned as to his candidacy in the new 35th District by L.T. Rogers, assistant city editor of the Progress-Bulletin, and Martin Weinberger, publisher of the Claremont Courier.

Kiwanians to hear high school coach

Claremont High football coach Esper Keiser will explain to members of the Claremont Kiwanis Club Thursday noon at Griswold's how his Wolfpack has won its first two San Antonio League games after losing two practice games.

Keiser will be accompanied by three co-captains Kent Stalwick, John Boehlke and Dan Thomas.

Family offering reward for information on missing girl

A 17-year-old Pomona girl, missing from home since Oct. 5, is being sought by relatives who have offered $250 for information leading to her return.

The missing person is Kathy Gordon, 1343 W. Holt Ave., who was discovered gone from her room shortly after 9 that morning.

The girl's father, Mitchell Gordon, a coppersmith, said the reward will be paid to anyone who has information which leads to her return. He asked those with such information to call 623-9222.

The teen-ager is described as white, 5 feet 5 and 120 pounds. She has dark-brown hair and brown eyes.

Gordon said his daughter has no history as a runaway and there was no incident at home that day which could have caused her to leave voluntarily.

Her absence has been reported to Pomona police, Gordon said.

One crime statistic that's down

Counterfeiters profiting less in Southland, nation

One serious crime situation — the counterfeiting of money — is being reduced in the greater Los Angeles area and throughout the nation.

So stated Robert E. Powis, special agent in charge of the Los Angeles office of the Secret Service, in a talk before the Pomona Rotary Club on Tuesday in the Elks Lodge.

Powis said that the counterfeiting of money greatly increased in the period between 1958 and 1971, largely because of increased technology in the field of photo composition offset printing.

In the past two years the passing of counterfeit money has dropped from a 1972 high of $4.8 million to $2.4 million for the fiscal year just ended, Powis stated. About $160,000 in bogus money was passed in the greater Los Angeles area last year as compared to $450,000 three years ago, the agent declared.

He credited the reduction in the passing of counterfeit money to improved undercover work and the use of informants. "It was just good bread and butter law enforcement work," Powis said.

Most of the detection of counterfeit money is done at the bank level, he said.

This is an announcement to my friends and patients that I am retiring from practice.

Inventors say laws unfair

The ability of American inventors and patent owners to capitalize on their creative efforts has been seriously eroded in recent years by government action and court decisions.

So claims Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., an organization of patent holders.

The result, it says, is a diminishing value of patents that has left many corporations uncertain whether they want to continue making the heavy investment of brainpower and capital necessary to ensure a continuing flow of new products.

The problem, it seems, has arisen from a confusion of two different objectives. One is the protection and encouragement intended for inventors by patent law; the other is the opposing thrust of antitrust legislation.

Preoccupied with antitrust objectives, the U.S. Justice Department has attacked, or is considering attacking, certain long-accepted patent licensing arrangements.

For example, so-called "tie-in" agreements, whereby a licensed corporation is permitted to produce a patented product provided it uses certain key parts manufactured by the original patent holder, have in virtually all cases been disallowed.

In cases where the ability of a licensed company to produce a satisfactory product may be involved, both the public and industry are badly served by antitrust overkill, says the organization.

Another example is the "grant back." For instance, X is willing to license Y, providing that Y will grant back to X a free license to any improvements Y makes. The object is to prevent Y from going into business under the license and then put X out of business by refusing to license X. The Justice Department has expressed its displeasure with most "grant backs."

The principal purpose of the antitrust laws is to prevent monopolies. But patents are not true monopolies, points out T.L. "Ted" Bowes, executive director of Intellectual Property Owners. They are a grant of exclusive rights to the holder for a limited period of time so that he can capitalize on his investment of time and money in creating a new product or process.

When the energy crisis hit, the United States learned to its dismay what it means to be dependent upon foreign sources. If American technology is held back by an emasculated patent system, says Bowes, the nation could find itself dependent on foreigners for much more than energy.

You can teach an old dog new tricks

It may be true, as the Pennsylvania Dutch saying has it, that "we get too soon old and too late smart." But it is not true that getting older necessarily means losing whatever smarts you have.

The commonly held belief that we hit a mental peak at about age 17 and then go downhill for the rest of our lives is a myth, says Dr. Lissy F. Jarvik, a professor of psychiatry at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Citing several studies, including her own, of intellectual functioning among aging populations, she maintains that generally there is no decline in knowledge or reasoning ability, not only into the 30s and 40s, but into the 60s and 70s as well.

One continuing study has been following children who are now adults in their 40s. No decline in intellectual functioning has been observed. Another study has followed college students who were first tested at the time of World War II. These people are now in their 50s, and no decline has been found.

The most common complaint of older people is that their memory is not as good as it used to be. But when learning takes place under laboratory conditions, there is equally proficient learning between young and old people and memory is also often equal.

Much of what we call loss of memory, says Dr. Jarvik, may be due to inadequate learning in the first place, possibly caused by such factors as hearing difficulty, impaired vision, inattention or trying to learn too fast.

In addition, she says, mental deterioration among older people is often a symptom of depression. Mental alertness can often be restored simply by supplying counseling, psychotherapy or antidepressant medicine.

There is also a stereotyped idea about older people and loss of memory, says Dr. Jarvik, and old people are as guilty of it as young ones.

For instance, when an older person puts something somewhere and can't find it later, we say it is "because of age."

Ah, but when a young person does the same thing, some other excuse is offered and the failure of memory is ignored.

Unhealthiness at the flip of a switch

We are the parents of three children, 12, 11 and 5, and are very concerned about the type of movies which are being shown on television. Recently we watched "the Last Picture Show" which was not fit for a young person's viewing.

It is one thing for movies like this to be shown in the theaters, as we can still control what our children attend, but quite another matter when it comes into our home and all that our children have to do is flip a switch and see these unhealthy things.

We can't possibly monitor our TV set at all times. My daughter along with other girls and possibly even yours is getting to the age where they babysit. What do they do when the kids are in bed? They watch TV.

We ask the television networks to examine their consciences and re-evaluate their motives in putting these movies on the air. We intend to write to the sponsors of these type of movies. — Mr. and Mrs. Kent Palmer, Claremont.

Money for research

I think Ray Cromley's column concerning medical health services on October 10 was excellent. Especially the statement "We spend too much of our medical talent and our funds on keeping patients alive and functioning and too little on developing ways to cure them."

Big headlines announce that we can expect to live much longer in the future. Who wants to be in continual pain? Not only my friends in their 70's and 80's with failing eye sight because of glaucoma and cataracts, arthritis, strokes, loss of mental facilities, deteriorating backs and feet, etc., but many of our children with arthritis, cancer, etc.

"In the several months after price controls went off physicians' fees increased at an annual rate of something like 20 to 23 per cent." Periodic health examinations, time and money could be used in reasearch. — Anna Overholtzer, Claremont.

Oil crisis and the environment

WASHINGTON — The oil crisis will change not only the nation's economics, but its environment, as well.

Higher oil prices have forced the United States, under Project Independence, to search for new sources of energy. This will bring some radical changes to America.

An exhaustive secret study by the Federal Energy Administration forecasts that the energy boom will bring more mine tragedies, fewer auto accidents, more industrial noise, silent solar energy. It may create shale oil boom towns, with wretched health facilities. It might even lead to earthquakes.

We have obtained the preliminary secret draft, running hundreds of pages, which will be condensed into a final FEA report next month. Here's how the new developments are expected to affect health and safety:

Oil: As oil becomes more expensive and less available, Americans will drive less and keep their homes cooler in winter. "Decreased reliance on the private automobile will cut accident rates, as well as automobile emissions," the report predicts. "Beneficial health effects may also result from lowered thermostats."

But homeowners probably will insulate their homes better, which would cause slower "venting of air pollutants emitted by . . . tobacco products, gas stoves, aerosol cans, etc." This would cause "increased indoor exposure to pollutants."

The new offshore drilling along the Eastern and Alaskan coasts, meanwhile, will expose workers to more hazards, and the increased spills "may become a public health concern if the petroleum products find their way into commercial fish or shellfish."

Coal: "Coal emerges as the dirtiest energy source of all fuels considered," declares the study. Yet it may become "the interim fuel source until nuclear, shale oil, solar and geothermal facilities can be built."

The nation's 125,000 coal miners, whose "health and safety record is one of the worst for any industry," can look forward to even more danger from lung disease, deafness and injury.

For the rest of the population, more coal will mean more sickness and deaths from pollutants. Tall smoke stacks will not help, despite what the power companies say. The environment will also be poisoned by slag fires, chemical leaks and other coal byproducts.

A study of asthmatics, for example, reveals that attacks go up the nearer the victims are to a coal-fired power plant. One of every five children near such a plant had silicosis. These plants will multiply under Project Independence.

Shale Oil: Shale oil workers will be plagued by "dust, noise and accidents," not to mention "volatile hydrocarbons," during the energy boom. Some of these may cause cancer, which the water run-off from the spent shale could also spread.

"Development of shale oil facilities could be accompanied by boom town development," the report warns. "Adequate medical and sanitary facilities must be provided to ensure public health."

Solar Energy: "Solar energy emerges as the cleanest, safest energy source," although there is a possible health hazard from the germanium used in "photovotaic cells," the report states.

Hydroelectric Power: Hydroelectric power, where it can be developed, is comparatively free of serious health problems. The chief danger, says the report, would come from a dam failure.

Solid Waste Fuel: Solid waste probably will be burned for fuel. This would help wipe out "open dumps which are excellent breeding grounds of disease-carrying insects and rodents." But solid waste fuel will increase air polltution.

Nuclear Power: "Nuclear energy, while a clean energy source in terms of air quality," states the report, "presents the greatest potential hazard to human health of all fuels. All persons are susceptible to radiation and its effects of cancer, mutations and life shortening. . . .

"To date," the report adds, "there have been no hazardous releases of radiation to the public from commercial reactors in the United States." The 50 now in operation are considered safer than power plants fired by coal or oil. But the enormous dangers of plutonium, which can cause bone cancer from the most infinitesimal exposure, "cannot be dismissed."

Geothermal Energy: As another substitute for oil, it may be possible to harness the heat from the earth's core. But along with the useful system, more noxious substances — sulfides, ammonia, carbon monoxide, arton, radon, boric acid and mercury — will also bubble out of the earth.

Drilling for geothermal power is a noisy exercise, sometimes causing deafness among miners. "The role of geothermal development in triggering earthquakes is not well known," the report adds ominously, "but the potentials for major seismic action cannot be dismissed."

As more and more energy is produced in America, the report foresees a noxious release of soot, salts, acid, tarry droplets, dusts, sulfurous gasses, nitrous gasses, carbon monoxide, oxidants, hydrocarbons and other filth into the air.

The results, as specified in the report, are enough to make a person want to go back to the horse-and-buggy and the triple-quilted double bed.

The Beggar's Opera: updated

Everyone was surprised to see Rockford Nelsefeller standing on the corner selling pencils because everyone thought he was richer than just about anybody.

"What's happening, Rocky?" a friend asked. "Are you running for something again and just doing your plain folks act?"

"Look," Rocky answered impatiently, "I'm just down here trying to pick up a few extra dollars for bowling money. You know how tight Gladly is about my allowance."

"Oh, come on, Rock. Why don't you just sell New Jersey or something if you need money?"

"Why does everyone keep acting as if I was rich?" Rocky said, making his famous face that was either a grin or a grimace. "So I've got 20 or 40 or 300 million or however much it is. How far will that get you these days?"

"But what about all the money the rest of your family has?"

"Boy! Thanks a trillion — or I mean, a thousand — for bringing that up. Just today I called my brother Dave to complain about how everyone in Congress is always unfairly picking on us for having so much money and influence. He said if they didn't cut it out he would buy the Capitol and make a bank out of it."

"You mean it isn't true that your family is one of the wealthiest in the world?" the friend asked.

"We've always been just like the friendly folks who live in the mansion next door," Rocky said sincerely. "We work a regular 11 to 2:30 day, we get along on our 29 weeks of vacation a year, we try and make do with 17 cars, we scrimp and save to buy the kids a college and we pay our taxes just like anyone else."

"I thought I heard you didn't pay any income tax one year?"

"Well, doesn't that just go to prove how poor we are? I mean, you don't know many people who make $10,000 or $20,000 a year who don't have to pay taxes? You can imagine how badly off I must have been when I didn't pay any. I barely had a few measly million take home pay that year, as I recall. I think maybe that was the year we had to cash in Upper Volta just to make ends meet."

"Gee, I'm sorry I was so hard on you, Rock," the friend said. "Why don't you give me a dozen pencils."

"Of course. That will be $7,943.16."

"For 12 pencils?"

"Inflation, you know. I tell you, things are so bad, I've had to go out and look for another job. It's the application that I'm getting all this static about. Sometimes I wish I could just get a job as a garbage man or a teacher or a salesman or something, I'm so desperate."

"Hey, Rock, I could probably get you a job at my plant. We need all kinds of help on the night shift. You could . . ."

"I'm not that desperate yet. I'll have to muddle through. Richesse oblige and all that. It's a heavy burden to bear."

Taking a nation to the cleaners

WASHINGTON — Thomas Kauper tells the story of his wife going to the laundry and learning that the price of dry cleaning had, overnight, gone up steeply. Well, she told the operator, "then I'll go someplace else." Won't do any good, the owner replied confidently, "because all the other laundries have gone up, too."

Kauper is the nation's top cop in charge of the Justice Department's antitrust division, and he uses the story of his wife to illustrate his opinion that millions of Americans are today being taken to the cleaners because of large and small price-fixing schemes.

The trouble is, many Americans don't know it, and many others don't care about it, and thus in spite of the recent presidential assurance of a "return to vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws", very little can be immediately done to set this most undemocratic matter straight.

Price fixing is an epidemic in the nation, Kauper insists, but inflation makes it hard to tell. When the economy is stable, dealers who conspire to hike prices stick out like warts on a long neck. But during inflationary periods such as now, when everything rises every day, antitrust activity is nicely camouflaged by circumstances.

So it is that Kauper's office estimates the American consumer is likely to be overcharged some $80 billion this year for goods and services purchased in a marketplace that is increasingly uncompetitive. Much of this money waste will go for perfectly legal monopolistic services, such as regulated public utility concerns, but a good part will be forfeited to illegal business practices, i.e. those that get together to set mutually beneficial prices.

The situation is downright un-American. Worse, since it hides in the inflation it helps promote. Yet, unhappily, and again despite President Ford's wrath, there are no quick solutions. The laws against price fixing, for one thing, are totally ineffective when facing large industry. Six months ago the Justice Department filed indictments against eight major dye making firms, charging they had conspired to jack prices by 10 per cent or $300 million; if they are convicted the maximum judgment against them would be $50,000 each — "almost worth it," as one lawyer grumps, "against the $300 million."

As for the small fry price fixers, they can be hurt in court but seldom are. Kauper's staff, limited in size, concentrates on 60-to-80 cases a year, mostly big; the little crooks, then, which collectively are as dangerous as the big, break laws and bank accounts with impunity.

Presumably, consumers could help drag the small conspirators to justice. But there are risks in citizens acting as cops, one being that proving antitrust is much more difficult than suspecting antitrust.

"Suppose you have two gas stations across from each other," says a trust busting attorney, "and one day they both raise their prices 5 cents a gallon. If one guy says he raised first, and the other says he followed to protect himself, that's legal. You may know damn well they got together and decided to hike prices, but unless you can prove it in court — which almost means getting an admission of guilt from both — you have no case to try at all."

And even if the legalities of prosecution were simpler, Kauper and his people feel the price fixing epidemic would still flourish. "This is probably not the kind of thing I'm supposed to say," Kauper has confided, "but I have always had a little doubt about how committed the general public really is to the notion of competition."

Evidence is that fewer and fewer people show outrage with price fixing, fewer and fewer officials are reluctant to grant antitrust exemptions to requesting industries — and hardly anyone even grumbles at the continuing growth of competition-killing multinational corporations.

It's hard to figure the public attitude here. But perhaps it's simple resignation. At a time when man, following Hobbes' theory, is beginning to be wolf to man, people may have become too busy trying to survive in the market to worry whether it's still free.

Family's aid finally arrives totaling $1,844

More than a year ago I applied for aid to the totally disabled and was denied.

I appealed that decision and was given a hearing. Six months later I was notified that I had been granted aid effective September 1973.

Last January my case should have been transferred from he Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services o the supplementary security income program under the Social Security Administration.

I have called Sacramento, West Covina and Los Angeles several times but cannot get any results.

I have not received any money and I need it as I have two children in high school. They need clothes.

When I went to the Social Security office nine days ago I talked with a very nice lady who called the Department of Public Social Services office in West Covina.

She said she had my documents in front of her and that I should receive a check in eight to 10 days.

This morning a very nice man called to tell me that someone had misplaced some documents and my check for September through December 1973 should be here in about three weeks.

I don't know whether to believe this because last July I was told that I would get my checks in four to six weeks.

A year is a long time for something like this to go on. —E. S., Pomona.

When we contacted the Social Security Administration, we were told that your pay for January through September also could be obtained in about three weeks.

This time both agencies kept their promises. Your checks arrived in three weeks to the day. The Social Scurity check had been sent air mail.

Together they amounted to $1,844.

I had written to you earlier about this matter but my husband would not let me send the letter. He didn't want our name and address in the paper because of the type of exerciser I ordered.

I am sending a copy of all correspondence, except the first letter, which I mailed to Betty Weider's Body Persuasion Systems, Inc. I did not make a copy of the first letter because I though the company would keep its word and mail my exerciser.

I would appreciate anything you can do to help me get my Beauty Breast Plan or a refund.

We are moving out of the state and I am giving you my future address. —Mrs. T. S., Pomona.

Many people order the type of exerciser you want, helping to make Betty Weider's Persuasion Systems Inc. an expanding business.

Large volume makes it difficult to keep up with the mail, according to Mimi Roberts of customer service.

She replied to our own persuasion system by writing to your new address and sending us a copy of the letter.

Miss Roberts stated your exerciser had been mailed to your Pomona address before your departure and asked whether you had received it.

If you have not, she will re-ship it to your new residence.

FOLLOW-UP:

Several weeks ago we published a letter from a reader saying a piano was needed by a group of retarded boys at Pacific State Hospital.

No immediate response resulted but a second mention of the need brought a call from Tobi Siegel of Upland. She wanted to know whether a play-by-number electric organ with instruction books would be acceptable.

It was welcomed and is now in use in one of the wards. We are told that all types of musical instruments are sought to add to the pleasure and progress of patients.

ANN LANDERS

Old hubby's lunch dates with his secretary needlessly upset spouse

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are both in our 60s and have been married for 36 years. I know he has never been interested in another woman until now.

A few months ago, he started a new job. He has been going to lunch nearly every day with his secretary, who is in her 30s. He told me about it himself, making a big deal out of the fact that they go Dutch.

I don't give a damn who pays, but I find it upsetting that he is lunching with a woman half his age. He says it is just a convenience, that he really doesn't enjoy it, but I notice they don't go to the neighborhood coffeeshop. Every few days they try an interesting new place.

He can't understand why I am perturbed. I cry myself to sleep at night (quietly, so he won't hear me) and sometimes I cry during the day, around lunchtime.

I've offered him his freedom and he tells me I'm crazy. Am I? Is he? — Harpooned

Dear H.: In the absence of any solid evidence, I think you'd be wise to stop making accusations. He may be completely innocent but if you continue to badger him, he might get ideas.

My own hunch is there's nothing going on but lunch and a little flattering of the ego. One of these days, a waitress is bound to ask, "And what will your daughter have?" — and that'll kill his appetite for lunching out.

Dear Ann Landers: Is something wrong with me? I'm 24, married five years and teach school. I don't mind housework but I see no point in doing things in the conventional manner. For example:

I don't press my towels, bed sheets and pillow cases and stack them neatly in the linen closet. I just fold them and figure the wrinkles will fall out when I put the linen on the bed and the towels on the rack.

When I hang shirts on the line, I use one clothespin instead of two. It doesn't look very fancy, but who cares?

Some of my friends have intimated that I'm not a good housekeeper. Would you call me lazy or efficient? — I'll Take Your Word For It

Dear Word: It's your home and you can do as you please but since you asked for my opinion, I'll give it. Any woman who won't take the time to press her bedsheets and pillowcases and stack them in reasonably orderly fashion has got to be a little lazy. Some towels may look O.K. just folded, but we iron ours.

As for hanging a shirt with one clothespin, that's more than lazy, honey, it's stupid. A good wind comes along and your shirts stand only half as good a chance of staying up as if you had used two clothespins.

Dear Ann Landers: A girl in our office is so thrilled because she landed a professional man that she always introduces herself as "Mrs. Doctor Whatdoyouhoozit."

After I heard her do this for the tenth time I took her aside and told her it was not in good taste. She replied, "It saves a lot of time. Whenever I tell anyone I'm Mrs. Whatdoyouhoozit they ask me if my husband is the surgeon." Who is right? — No Jealousy, Just informed

Dear N.J.: You are. But save your breath to cool your soup, Lovey. The gal isn't interested in etiquette. She just wants everybody to know she married a doctor.

Got those wedding bell blues over costs . . . guest list.. . what to wear ... and other details? Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will help. For a copy, send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

AT WIT'S END

The goldfish is putting on the dog

By ERMA BOMBECK

The newest addition to our family is a small goldfish that my son won by throwing a Ping-Pong ball into a custard cup at the state fair.

He named him Herbie. I figured Herbie was my kind of a pet. He didn't lick your feet, shed under the bed, stay out all night, scratch under the table, nuzzle in embarrassing places, drink out of the toilet, scare small children, have bad breath, or chew the cork off your wedgies.

He just swam around in his custard cup and bobbed occasionally for crumbs.

Then one day my son said, "Herbie needs a home. A real one."

The request seemed reasonable and we went to a pet shop. Homes for Herbie ran from your simple glass cottage beginning at $14.95 to your tri-level condominium at $384. We bought a modest aquarium for Herbie and the salesman said, "With this size aquarium we will need a filter system to keep the water clean."

"Of course we will," I said.

"And a thermometer to make sure the water is kept at the same temperature."

"Absolutely," I said weakly.

"And we can't imagine a beautiful aquarium without a light to illuminate it, can we?"

"We are being comical, aren't we?" I said.

"And, of course, the food ring so that our fish doesn't have to run all over the bowl."

"So what else does he have to do?" I asked.

"Now, about the furnishings," said the salesman. "What style do we prefer? We could do it in early Castle? Or the Pirate motif with the sunken treasures and the trunk or Contemporary Reef with one or two pottery scuba divers and the carpet in pink sand."

"Keep it simple," I pleaded. "I mean for one lousy little goldfish. . ."

"You don't mean to tell us that Herbie will occupy the aquarium alone? Fish does not live by bread alone, he said. "He needs friends." ($36.79 worth of them.)

As the family sat around our living room (furnished in Early Poverty), our thermostat and lights turned down to conserve energy, we watched Herbie throwing an orgy in his new pad.

Who has to keep up with the Joneses? I just want to live like a goldfish!

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Exercise helps shed pounds properly

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to have more information on safely losing weight as I am diabetic and on a 1,000-calorie diet. At first I lost real fast and these past two months I've only lost six pounds.

My doctor was quite perturbed with me and said, "You are not staying on your diet." I really am, Dr. Lamb, and I know my doctor thinks I'm not telling him the truth.

I take thyroid pills, water pills, high blood pressure medicine and oral medicine for my diabetes. My blood pressure is over 200, and I'm terribly nervous.

My weight was 310 and now it is 270. I am 60 years old. I wanted the doctor to give me hormone shots, but he said no. The doctor I used to go to before he died gave me estrogen once a month, and I lost much faster and felt so good, too.

DEAR READER — You are doing fine. As long as you average a loss of a half pound a week and keep at it you will eventually get rid of your excess fat. If you try to lose too fast you will feel tired and have other problems. It is common to lose weight fast at the beginning and then settle down to a slow, steady loss thereafter.

It works out that you are losing three-quarters of a pound a week. That means your body is using a total of 1,350 calories a day, counting the calories in the fat and the calories in your food. Unless you are reasonably active that may be all you can use.

My suggestion would be for you to increase your physical activity. You can do this without raising your blood pressure. Just start taking regular walks at a comfortable speed for you. It isn't necessary to do it all at once. Break it up into two, three, or more short walks if it tires you, but do it every day, rain or shine. If you can build up to walking an hour a day, a distance of about three miles, you will increase your weight loss over a half a pound more each week, or about 30 more pounds a year. Of course, that assumes you don't increase your food intake.

With your present diet and the exercise combined, you should lose about 70 pounds of fat in a year. That is fast enough. You have a long way to go, and it will just take time.

Hormones are another matter. If you are getting a tablet medicine for this it should work just as well. In general, if a woman is deficient in female hormone to a significant degree then it is probably best to provide some hormone replacement.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is your opinion of taking oral vitamin B-12 for pernicious anemia? I was getting only temporary benefit from iron injection plus B-12. My doctor started giving me liquid iron which seems to raise and stablize my blood count. If I can absorb liquid iron why not oral B-12?

DEAR READER — You have to have a substance formed in the stomach called intrinsic factor to enable you to absorb B-12 Iron is important in the process, too. If you are deficient in the intrinsic factor you can't get B-12 into the bloodstream except by injection. So, you can absorb iron from the digestive tract but if you have pernicious anemia, you cannot absorb B-12.

I'd like to add that normal people swallow B-12 and use it because they have normal amount of intrinsic factor, while patients with pernicious anemia do not.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Losing Weight" booklet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are not going to be as cooperative with a friend as this person was with you. Her feelings will be hurt but she won't show it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll not be as productive today as you should be. The loss of momentum will be due to a division of your attention between pleasure and responsibility.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you find yourself in the company of one who displeases you, don't show it in a manner that will spoil the fun for others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Put on a convincing countenance even though you may feel very doubtful about a position you've taken on an issue another is calling you on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's best for you in the long run if you take care of obligations first. Then use whatever remains to gratify your present whims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful your generosity isn't exploited by one who is a much better taker than a giver. Have a genteel refusal ready in case you're put-upon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you let too many self-doubts slip in they will have an eroding effect. You'll perform far less efficiently than you are capable of acting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though you know better, you're going to get your fingers burned by going along with a pal's suggestions despite your own judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't ask a favor of someone if you have a hunch you'll be turned down. It will cause embarrassment for both parties.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This can be a successful day, provided you don't depend on another to do something for you that you should do for yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are a bit too sensitive with people you like. This could lead you to believe you're being treated unjustly.

Your birthday Oct. 17

Much progress can be made this year and important goals can be attained if you don't mix business with pleasure at the wrong times. Be serious when gravity is called for.

Talking computers at work in 2 auto firms

Two Pomona auto dealerships, Fair City Ford and University Lincoln-Mercury, have installed talking computers to order replacement parts for their customers.

Ford's Direct Order Entry System (DOES) employs a computer terminal about the size of a portable typewriter that talks in a female voice and has a vocabulary of 96 words.

"Using the DOES terminal, dealership personnel enter parts orders directly into Ford's vast computer network," said E.R. Mulholland, manager of the Los Angeles-Phoenix, Ariz., parts division.

Second in size only to the National Aeronautics and Space Adminstration's (NASA) computer system, the Ford computer operation eliminates paper work, reduces processing time and provides on-the-spot information needed to schedule customer repairs, Mulholland said.

Pets of teacher killed in crash need homes

Friends of Karen Olson, a Pomona teacher killed in the mountainside crash of a light plane last week, are searching for homes and families for Miss Olson's six dogs and three cats.

Miss Olson was well-known for her work with and love of animals. She was a member of a quartet in a small plane leaving Brackett Field in La Verne Oct. 3 to attend a Mormon conference in Salt Lake City.

The Federal Aviation Administration and Department of Transportation are investigating the cause of the crash.

Sandy Simmons, a close friend of Miss Olson, told of the young woman's devotion to animals. That devotion played a large part in her teaching methods because she believed children who were concerned with animals would be more concerned about people.

"We want homes with people who love animals as Karen did," said Miss Simmons. "We'd like a fenced yard and children because all the pets have ben around children. We'd also like references that we can check, and for the pets to be allowed in the home. They are all housebroken."

The three male adult dogs are neutered and are of medium size. The female adult dog is spayed. The two female puppies will be spayed soon by a veterinary friend of Miss Olson.

Interested persons should call Miss Simmons at 626-3140.

Parents and teachers: skits...open house...cookbook

Skits and singing by third, fourth and sixth grade students will be features of the Thursday night meeting of the KINGSLEY SCHOOL PTA unit in Montclair.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a short business session. Officer H. S. Fox of the Ontario Police Department's Operation C.U.R.B. (Community Understanding to Reduce Burglary).

The film entitled "Rip Off" will also be shown.

POMONA VALLEY CHRISTIAN SCHOOLS will host the fall open house next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., 845 E. Arrow Highway, Pomona.

The open house will include both the preschool under the direction of Charlotte Thompson and the elementary and junior high divisions with Raymond Nevills as principal.

The evening will begin in the auditorium with musical presentations by the elementary choir directed by Joyce Antal and the junior choir directed by Debbie Beck. Teachers and staff will then be introduced and classroom visits will follow.

A cookbook entitled "Spirited Recipes" is being sold by the CLAREMONT HIGH SCHOOL junior class parents as a major fund-raising project for the senior graduation night party in 1976.

The cookbook has the theme of the "Spirit of '76" for celebration of America's bicentennial.

The book contains 487 recipes for foreign dishes, casseroles, desserts, soups, ice creams and pickles. Marge Overholt and Dorothy Forester are serving as co-chairmen of the ways and means committee coordinating the sale.

Books may be purchased at room 901 at Claremont High from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, by calling 626-4828 or 626-4909 or by mail from Lynn Kirkendall, chairman of the class parents' organization, by sending $3.95 for the book plus 50 cents mailing costs to 721 W. Seventh St., Claremont 91711.

Senator: fertilizer will be in even shorter supply

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, warned that fertilizer will be in even shorter supply next year and blamed the problem on a lack of processing plants.

Talmadge said a shortage of nitrogen had forced prices up sharply but he said the primary reason for the insufficient supply was the lack of plants. He blamed "governmental inaction" on environmental requirements and the priorities given to natural gas allocations for the failure of processors to build new facilities.

The Georgia Democrat told a conference of the Fertilizer Institute his committee hopes to come up with amendments soon to the Natural Gas Act to give higher priorities to the manufacture of fertilizer, which he called the "key to U.S. agricultural production."

"With inventories of fertilizer supplies for next year expected to be down nearly 20 per cent from a year ago, and because of capacity limitation expected for next year, it is obvious that supplies of these essential materials will likely be even tighter this coming year," Talmadge told the conference.

Talmadge said the country is in a "bad economic picture" but he said agriculture has a record of "amazing achievements" in the face of adversity and he does not feel the industry is on the verge of disaster."

Until the problems can be eased he said, "I urge you to put the American farmers and consumers first, and, within your ability, exercise price and profit restraint in the pricing of fertilizers marketed here at home."

There are two good reasons for opening the South hand one club rather than one notrump. One is that with 18 high-card points and a five-card suit headed by A-10-9 and five quick tricks, this 18 point hand is too strong. The other is that you should try to avoid notrump openings with a worthless doubleton.

The reason to open it one notrump is that if you do open one club and partner responds one heart or one spade you won't know what to rebid.

In any event it doesn't matter this time what you open. You should wind up playing three notrump and get a jack of spades lead.

It doesn't make much difference whether you grab the first spade or duck it. You are going to win a spade, lead the eight of diamonds and let it ride.

If East wins with his king you will wind up making at least 10 tricks. If East ducks as he should, you will lead your last diamond. At this point it is up to West to make the obligatory falsecard of the jack of diamonds. If you are the seventh son of a seventh son, you will play dummy's ace. If you are an ordinary bridge player, you will play the queen and dummy's nice diamond suit will have disappaeared into limbo.

Cotton crop dips slightly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department has estimated the 1974 cotton crop at 12,800,000 bales, down from the September estimate and 1 per cent below last year's crop of 12,958,000 bales.

The new estimate indictes the harvest may exceed demand, which agriculture economists say may run between 11.7 million and 12.7 million bales. If the crop does outrun demand, carryover supplies in mid-1975 will be up from the relatively low 3.3 million bale reserve on hand this summer.

The new crop report indicated yields of upland cotton this year will average 471 pounds of lint per acre on the 12,990,300 acres for harvest. Last year, yields averaged 519 pounds for each of the 11,912,100 acres harvested.

Envoy spends $250,000 for his lifestyle

LONDON (UPI) Retiring U.S. Ambassador Walter H. Annenberg says he has spent about $250,000 of his own money annually to keep the American Embassy operating in the style he's accustomed to for the past five and a half years.

The millionaire publisher, who says he was able to write off some of the expenses against taxes, concedes that a less stylish ambassador could greatly cut the costs.

The 66-year-old Philadelphian, leaving for home Oct. 30, told American newsmen the out-of-pocket costs were in addition to the job's $42,500-a-year salary and $250,000-a-year "nominal" expenses.

"But it all depends on the style of the operation," he said. "It could probably be operated on $100,000 to $125,000-a-year, and I'd say the U.S.- government would probably come up with $75,000 to $100,000 of that."

Annenberg singled out "graciousness of living" as the most pleasant memory of Britain he would take back to the United States. "It may not last long," he said. "But it is very pleasant."

He admitted being concerned about "journalistic attacks" at the start of his stay, but went on to say, "You have to have such a negative experience thrust on you as an incentive to better performance."

The British press accused Annenberg of being inexperienced in foreign affairs and made fun of his "preposterous circumlocutions" when he presented his credentials to Queen Elizabeth.

The ambassador told the monarch he was not yet living in the embassy because of "some of the discomfiture as a result of the need for elements of refurbishment and rehabilitation."

Annenberg, appointed by Richard M. Nixon, said historians will have to wait "15, 25 or 50 years" before they can properly assess the former president's place in history.

"Too many passions are flowing now," he said. "But he gave me the greatest honor in my life and I shall be everlastingly grateful to him for that."

Annenberg, publisher of TV Guide, Seventeen magazine and the Daily Racing Form, said "good heavens, no" when asked whether he plans to enter politics on returning to the United States.

He said he hopes to organize a seminar in New York or Washington "to help alleviate the lack of international communication between the peoples of the world."

Jokers brick up wed pair's door

MESTRE, Italy (UPI) — Paolo Pavan could not carry his bride, Anna, across the threshold, because when the couple returned home from their wedding banquet they found only solid wall where their apartment door should have been.

Friends had bricked up the door and painted it to match the rest of the wall as a practical joke.

There's catch to increasing rice yields

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A "green revolution" in rice farming has eluded India so far because new high-yielding varieties developed in the United States do not perform well on its humid, tropical paddies.

They are an easy prey to pests.

Agricultural scientists say rice production cannot be increased by just planting new high-yield varieties or pumping on more fertilizer unless the new varieties are protected against pests.

"The attention to pest control research has been so inadequate so far, that the pests have become the most serious bottleneck in increasing rice yield," one scientist said.

He said unless the varieties are protected by an insecticide "umbrella," it was impossible to increase rice output.

"The pest losses are rapidly mounting with the spread of HYV's to the serious detriment of the whole program," he said.

India has one-third of the world's rice paddy acreage but it accounts for only one-fourth of world production; of the 1.8 billion rice eaters in the world, India alone accounts for 400 million people. Total area under rice cultivation in India is 90 million acres or 20 per cent of the country's arable land.

A pest "umbrella" is not as vital for wheat, which is a sturdy plant and practically pest-free.

"We had a revolution in wheat as it is basically a safe and pest-free crop," an entomologist said.

He said the breakthrough in rice is not that easy. "Though the process of evolution of varieties of these crops began at the same time, the impact of wheat was felt much earlier than rice."

Another scientist said it is "a waste of time" to bring in the heavy-yield varieties from the Philippines, Japan and the United States because of the pest factor.

Pests are too many and too active in hot, humid countries like India, but less serious in cold climates. This is one of the reasons why the yield of a tropical crop like rice in Japan is three times that of India.

Scientists say that with the accelerated introduction of heavy-yield variety rice, the pest problem has become very severe.

A pound of fertilizer can give 10 pounds of additional grain but a pound of pesticide can yield another 150 pounds.

Although more than 20 new rice varieties have been introduced into India over the years, the yield was 955 pounds per acre in 1971, only 35.2 pounds more than the yield obtained in 1897.

Scientists think that India jumped onto the new rice bandwagon by taking a wrong lead from the West.

The United States and Japan launched major programs to find the right kind of tropical cross that could grow in their cold climates. Once the selection was made, not much thought was given to pests because of their cold climates.

"Without taking into account the climate and pests in India, our people joined the queue for HYV's, without realizing the consequences," a scientist said.

"Because of this," he said, "research in the tropical belt must be oriented towards protection research than in favor of production research."

Oil executive sees drop in prices soon

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Oil prices are unlikely to drop very soon, according to the chairman of Standard Oil Company of California.

H.J. Haynes, Standard's top executive, said Tuesday that for the "medium term" there "would seem to be a better prospect for reductions."

In the long range, he said, the price of oil will be determined by the cost of alternative sources of energy.

Speaking before the San Francisco Security Analysts Organization, Haynes said his company expects its profit pattern to "follow a favorable trend."

Pacemaker implanted in transplant

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Doctors at Medical College of Virginia Hospital have implanted a pacemaker in the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient whose heart has begun to beat irregularly.

The MCV Hospital announced Monday that Louis Russell, 49, received the permanent pacemaker Saturday morning after experiencing pulse irregularity. The hosital said Russell was "in satisfactory condition, resting comfortably and in good spirits."

A spokesman said Russell received the pacemaker after his heart beat began to fluctuate Friday night. Doctors did not immediately know if the fluctation was a sign Russell's body was rejecting the new heart he received in transplant surgery six years ago, he said. Hospital officials said Russell is the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient.

"They won't know that until after conducting and analyzing tests," said hospital information officer William VanPelt.

VanPelt said Russell was equipped with a temporary pacemaker Friday when the problem arose.

He explained that the pacemaker "is of the demand-type, becoming active only when triggered by signs that it is needed."

He said the permanent pacemaker has not been needed since its installation Saturday.

Russell, a father of four and an industrial arts high school teacher in Indianapolis, received his new heart at the the MCV hospital in August 1968.

He was admitted to the hospital last Monday after complaining that he was feeling somewhat below par and reporting that his electrocardiogram, which measures his heart beat, had been fluctuating.

Russell's heart beat had returned to normal after admission to MCV and he was permitted to take a short walk downtown Friday afternoon.

It was just hours after that, that Russell's heartbeat became irregular and doctors installed the temporary and then the permanent pacemakers.

Ghost returns, asks if tax refund coming

PHILOMATH, Ore. (UPI) — The State of Oregon declared Mrs. Edith Smith dead, but she insists she's the "liveliest old ghost the state ever saw."

The state Department of Revenue sent her a letter asking whether her tavern would be operated by her estate since she was "dead."

Mrs. Smith said Wednesday that she wrote back asking whether her death was accidental and could she collect double indemnity, whether she was removed from the tax rolls and whether she had a tax refund coming.

She signed the letter: "Yours from the beyond."

A red-faced state official said it was all the fault of the computer. "There are an awful lot of Smiths, you know," he said.

Demo solon incumbents get richer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The title would seem to imply that the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee is charged with electing Democrats to the Senate.

But the manner in which campaign funds are doled out strongly indicates that the committee operates as a welfare trough for incumbents.

The committee gets its money from two sources —the annual congressional dinner and private donations.

With the exception of some contributions that are earmarked for specific candidates, the committee is free to dispense the money as it chooses.

With the Democrats perpetually on the brink of financial ruin, it is doubtful whether the faithful attending the annual dinner realize their money is squandered on family bloodlettings and on incumbents certain of reelection.

Yet, that's exactly what the committee does.

For instance, the committee pumped $21,500 into the primary campaign of Sen. J. William Fulbright against Dale Bumpers in Arkansas.

Not only was the money used by one Democrat trying to kill off another but it was spent in a state where the Senate seat is safely Democratic.

That $21,500 is gone, without in any way having helped elect a Democrat to the Senate. So is the $5,000 awarded Sen. Howard Metzenbaum who was dumped in the Ohio primary by John Glenn.

As of Sept. 1, the committee's donations also showed a strong penchant to help out incumbents who are not in need.

Four of the most entrenched senators are southerners James B. Allen of Alabama, Russell Long of Louisiana, Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina. Yet the committee gave Allen $12,000, Long, $5,000, Talmadge, $79,000, and Hollings $23,000.

The unneeded largesse is extended as well to other senators without really serious opposition. Sen. Alan Cranston of California has gotten $28,000, Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, $20,500, and Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, $22,000.

But what does the committee do for nonincumbents who have a good chance to unseat a Republican or to succeed a retiring Democrat? Relatively little.

For instance Rep. Wayne Owens of Utah stands a fine possibility of winning the seat now occupied by retiring Sen. Wallace F. Bennett. Owens won the nomination July 13 but got nothing from the committee until Aug. 28 and then it was a piddling $5,000.

Kentucky's Gov. Wendell Ford won the Democratic nomination May 28 and exactly three months later was rewarded with $5,000 from the committee.

In fact, no nonincumbent had received more than $5,000 as of Sept. 1.

If the Democrats wonder why they are always broke, the committee might be a good place to inquire.

State group wins grant

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensing has won a $3.7 million contract to study teacher behaviors related to student achievement, Gov. Ronald Reagan announced.

The study marks the first major effort by state certification agency to define some of the teachers behaviors and skills which are important in the student learning process, Reagan's announcement said.

The contract, from the National Institute of Education, provides funds to continue research which the commission has been conducting under a federal grant the past two years. The new contract will finance research for the next three years.

The commission has hired the Far West Laboratory for Educational Research and Development of San Francisco to do the research work.

Italy's Reds are seeking new image

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

With the fall of Italy's 36th postwar government, Italian communists may have their best chance in nearly 30 years to move into a position of power.

The largest communist party outside the Soviet bloc and the second largest political party in Italy is arguing that only its participation in government can save the country from economic and social disaster.

Italians live with day-to-day evidence of succeeding Italian governments' failure to cope with Italy's multitude of problems. It ranges from the rising price and even scarcity of pasta to mounting political violence.

A recent public opinion poll showed that only 9.6 per cent of those questioned felt the outgoing government of Premier Mariano Rumor had done a good job.

Among the group below 24 years of age, the number of favorable answers fell to 2.8 per cent, a fact which could prove of particular significance in view of the possibility that Italian 18-year-olds soon may get the vote.

Of further significance is the fact that if Rumor is unsuccessful in forming a new government, early elections become a distinct possibility.

On a number of points there is general agreement.

Of all the crises which Italy has managed to survive, this must be considered the worst. Inflation is running at close to 20 per cent, the worst in Europe.

Balance of payments deficits are expressed in trillions of lire.

Predictions for this fall are for more than one million unemployed and for widespread bankruptcies.

Yet all this does not upset a certain Italian belief that something will save them in the end. A case in point is the recent $2 million loan from West Germany.

There is also the belief that neither the rest of western Europe nor the United States can afford to see Italy slide into chaos for the reason of its importance to western defenses in the Mediterranean.

For years the communists have been seeking what they call a "historic compromise" with Italy's largest political party, the Christian Democrats who have ruled alone or in coalition since the end of World War II.

In the 1972 parliamentary elections they polled more than 27 per cent of vote, second only to the Christian Democrats' 265. Trailing far behind are the Socialists with 61 seats.

To bolster their case, the communists have promised their party would "act within the framework of a specific international, geographical and political reality" —generally interpreted to mean they would accept continued membership in NATO.

Strong figures within the Christian Democrats have rejected the communist overtures. But others are listening to the siren call.

Yakima brings back streetcar

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — A brightly refurbished 1904 vintage streetcar rolled over the tracks through this central Washington community Saturday, the first streetcar here since 1947.

The streetcars, brought here from Portugal, are the start of a revival of an interurban rail system as part of the nation's bi-centennial celebration.

The cars run along tracks owned by the Union Pacific railroad, which serves orchards, fruit processing plants, lumber mills and factories on the line in several suburban towns.

Firemen controlld the 3 a.m. blaze in 20 minutes. Cause of the fire was under investigation.

Foreign food sales problem: speculators

TOKYO (UPI) — William D. Eberle, President Ford's special ambassador for foreign trade, said today the United States is out to block foreign countries from buying American grain in 1974 and then reselling it to third nations.

Eberle told a news conference the United States is willing to meet the legitimate food needs of its customers which he defined as "what they will eat this year."

"If the grain we sell them for their own use is delivered to third countries we want to take a hard look at it," Eberle said.

Eberle answered "yes" to a question whether the new U.S. policy of monitoring grain sales contracts was aimed at stifling speculative buying in the American grain market by foreign countries.

Eberle was questioned about recent reports in Tokyo newspapers that the United States has asked Japanese officials in America to restrain Japan's big trading companies from overactivity in the American grain market this year.

Eberle said he had no knowledge that such a thing had happened.

He said Japanese and other foreign grain traders were given the news of the contract monitoring impartially at a recent meeting in Washington. Eberle said "what we are interested in is the destination of the contracts. We look at the country that is doing ordering."

The Soviet Union was accused by some U.S. government officials of driving up grain prices in the United States and the world in 1973 by shrewdly cornering a large share of America's grain exports. The U.S. government recently halted execution of one contract for 1974 grain delivery to the Soviets for restudy.

Eberle wound up a two-day visit in Japan during which he explained president Ford's new economic programs to top Japanese leaders including Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura, Finance Minister Masayoshi Ohira and Minister of International Trade and industry yasuhiro Nakasone.

West German chancellor to visit U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West Germah Chancellor Helmut Schmidt will make an official visit to the United States Dec. 5-6, the White Hhouse has announced.

Schmidt's visit, the first since he assumed leadership of the Bonn government, will include talks with President Ford.

"The visit will provide an opportunity for the two leaders to discuss issues of mutual concern," the brief announcement said. Notice of the trip was released simultaneously in Washington and in Bonn.

The tangled international economic situation and the continued debilitating effects of high oil prices on the economies of Germany, the United States and other industrialized nations will undoubtedly be at the top of the agenda.

Schmidt was finance minister before becoming chancellor, succeeding Willy Brandt, and is familiar with the intricacies of the international economic situation.

Protests spur decor change by restaurant

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — The Cell Block Restaurant in a motel here was closed this week after prison reform groups said they found its decor offensive.

The restaurant, which had been open about two months, was decorated with nooses, posters, a mock guillotine and a mock electric chair. The menu was printed in the style of a prison newspaper.

Officials said the motif would be changed and the restaurant would operate "more traditionally" when reopened.

Mrs. Shirley honored by Parks Foundation

Mrs. [illegible] H. Shirley of Pomona, a [illegible]ber of the Board of Trustees of the California State Parks Foundation, was honored at the annual meeting of the foundation.

She was one of eight trustees honored at the fifth anniversary dinner at Will Rogers State Park in Pacific Palisades.

Resolutions were presented to the trustees by Paul Priolo, 60th District Assemblyman, who represents the area where the dinner was staged.

The resolution commended the trustees and volunteers and contributors from California. Beginning without funds in 1969, the California State Parks Foundation has since generated over $11 million for state park purposes and has deeded more than 10,000 acres of park land to the state parks system.

The foundation has completed numerous park projects, including the acquisition of the Annadel Farms State Park, the construction of Pine Ridge Museum, the raising of funds to rebuild Fort Ross chapel, the preservation of Los Osos Oaks, the purchase of the San Marcos Indian Painted Cave and the acquisition of park land in the Santa Monica Mountains.

The foundation is now engaged in a fund-raising drive to acquire one of the last great stands of wild California poppies and holds the option on 940 acres of prime wildflower fields in the Antelope Valley area.

Mrs. Shirley, as chairman of the nominating committee, presented the committee's annual report. At the meeting, members and guests toured the Will Rogers home and were entertained by Monte Montana and his horse.

PADDLEBOARD TRAVELER — Larry Capune, 32, of Balboa, arrived at Mission Beach, San Diego, Sunday, nearing completion of 2,400-mile paddleboard trip from Brookings, Ore. He tried to visit Nixon.

Long distance surf paddler

Nudity but no Nixon in Pacific marathon

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI) — A "sea hiker" paddling along the Pacific Coast can see many interesting sights including sharks, rabid foxes, naked zucchini peddlers and Ron Ziegler.

That was the way Larry Capune recalled today his 1,240-mile, 6-day paddleboard odyssey from Brookings, Ore., almost to the Mexican border.

Capune, 32, did it to show young people they can go on exciting "trips" without using drugs, and to promote his concept of sea hikers.

"If you can have groups that hike in the mountains, why not groups that hike in the sea?" Capune asked, coming ashore Monday with his 17-foot kayak-like "paddleboard".

Capune's sea trip included a face to face meeting with a white shark —"a maneater," he said—near Point Reyes.

"It was scary. I found the best thing to do is not stop paddling. I put a little extra English in the strokes."

Capune camped each night on shore, and a rabid fox, foaming at the mouth, appeared beside a campfire near Vandenberg Air Force Base. The animal crouched and Capune grabbed up his flare pistol, fired it into the fox and then beat the wounded animal to death with a stick, he said.

Near San Francisco, Capune said he was laying face down in the sand when he heard a girl's voice asking if he wanted to buy some zucchini cake.

"I said 'sure' and reached for the 35 cents. When I looked up, I realized the zuccini cake was all she had," he said. The cake peddler was not alone. Two other nude women were with her, he said.

He climbed aboard his paddleboard and returned swiftly to sea.

Capune, who was greeted by Mrs. Rose Kennedy during a similar swim on the East Coast, said he had hoped for a bipartisan touch by dropping in on President Nixon at his ocean side San Clemente home.

Ideas on intelligence refuted by scientists

LONDON (UPI) — A lot of the heat has gone out of the controversy over whether Arthur Jensen of the Institute of Human Learning at Berkeley, Calif., was right when he declared some races inherit more intelligence than others.

Three or four years ago any symposium on the subject might have led to violence. But only a handful of young scientists peacefully picketed the Institute of Biology recently when it discussed the theme "Racial Variations in Man."

They handed out a leaflet which said: "It is disquieting that an extremist like Arthur Jensen should be invited to project his ideas among serious biologists."

Jensen was among the scientists who attended and he repeated the results of the research he has conducted at the University of California — that the influence of heredity and environment is in the ratio of 80-20 and some races are less well-endowed genetically than others.

"Attempts to explain differences in intelligence between American blacks and whites on other than genetic grounds do not stand up to examination," he said.

One by one the big guns of biology stood up to refute Jensen's findings, some in more severe terms than others but in an atmosphere noticeably less explosive than in the past.

Barbara Tizard of the Institute of Education at the University of London said in a small, quiet voice that she had not been able to find any inborn deficiency of intellect in any ethnic group.

Further, she said, her studies showed IQ was not fixed at birth but could be continually changed by circumstance. There was still much scientific ignorance about transmission of cognitive skills and the distribution of genes among races.

"Given this state of ignorance the issue raised by Jensen of the contribution of heredity to racial differences of IQ is both politically offensive and educationally irrelevant," she said.

Steven Rose of the Open University at Milton Keynes, England, made an effort to close the long debate on the alleged importance of inherited intelligence. Choosing as his topic "Science, Racism and Ideology" he said there was no scientific method available to discover how far genetic influences controlled development.

"Scientific racism is one aspect of a large group of what have been generically referred to as 'social contempt' theories," he said. "There is nothing new in the theories of the genetic basis of class or racial differences in IQ ... they are essentially similar to arguments put forward in the 19th century and during the 1920s and 1930s and they have repeatedly been shown to be fallacious."

There was only one incident inside the hall. When Jensen stood up to speak Rose, a Marxist, decorously left the room. He returned only when Jensen had finished.

$6 million suit filed in beating at Presley party

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A man who said he was beaten at a party given by Elvis Presley has filed a federal court suit seeking more than $6.2 million damages.

Edward Ashley of Nevada County, Calif., alleged he was beaten after he knocked on the door of a 14th floor room at the Sahara Tahoe Hotel where Presley was giving a party last May 20.

The complaint said Delbert West, David Stanley and Dick Grob, named defendants, seized him and threw him to the floor inside the room. He alleged he was beaten severely in the presence of Presley, who, the complaint said, "refused plaintiff's request to stop, and did in fact participate."

Ashley asked general damages of $250,000 and punitive damages of $5 million. He sought $10,000 general damages and $1 million punitive damages from the hotel operating corporation.

Masked gunmen rob mail truck

ELKO, Nev. (UPI) — Two masked gunmen held up a mail truck recently and escaped after tying up the driver and placing a bag over his head.

Driver Ed Johnson of Elko freed himself and flagged a passing motorist.

Postmaster Bryce Ballard said he was unaware of anything of great value being carried in the truck. Sheriff Jesse Harris said there was no estimate of the loss, if any.

Johnson said the men ripped open the mail sacks and rummaged through the contents. The gunmen then left after taking the keys to the truck.

Washington gossip

What's happened to Wilbur Mills?

By DON PHILIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI) "What happened to Wilbur" is one of Washington's latest gossip subjects.

"Wilbur" is the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., one of the most powerful men in Congress. Some colleagues agree that something did happen to Wilbur in the past two or three years, about the time he decided to run for President.

The change, if there was one, became headlines last week. There were jokes about Mills' relationship with a former nightclub dancer. For example: "She was only a stripper from the Silver Slipper, but she had her Ways and Means."

For most of his career in Congress, Mills was intellectual, staid and mostly serious. He was said to refuse White House invitations so he could stay at home with his wife Polly. His bedside reading was articles on tax law.

Most people thought all Mills had to worry about was how big his re-election margin would be —but that was before a week ago.

Events well known

The events are by now well known. About 2 a.m., Oct. 14, police stopped a speeding car with no headlights.

A woman ran into a tidal basin of the Potomac River and was pulled out by police, screaming. One passenger was an intoxicated, scratched and bleeding man who identified himself as Wilbur Mills.

First, Mills' office denied he was present. Two days later, with the congressman still absent, his office issued a written statement saying that it was all a misunderstanding, simply a party of friends.

Polly was not there, it said, because she was home with a broken foot.

The woman, Annabel Battistella, 38, whom Mills called a neighbor in his apartment complex, once worked as a nightclub stripper, billed as "Fanne Foxe, the Argentine Fire Cracker."

Published reports said Mills was a regular customer at one of the "public places" where he admitted going that night, once spending $1,700 in a single night.

Faces voters

Mills now has to face the voters back in Arkansas who have regularly returned him to Congress for the past 35 years. For the first time, a Republican, 31-year-old Judy Petty, is giving him a serious challenge.

He must campaign now, talk with the people and wonder whether they came to ask his opinion on tax matters or to see how deep the scratches are on his face.

When he will appear, where and how remains a mystery. But he has promised to go home to campaign, and the election is only 3 ½ weeks away.

"I just can't understand what happened to Wilbur," said one bewildered senior member of his committee.

For most of his career, Mills ran his committee as a benevolent dictator, forcing both lobbyists and legislators to come to him. It was said he could have been Speaker for the asking.

Many of his colleagues say whatever happened to Wilbur happened in 1972. He decided to run for President, got roughly 1 per cent of the vote in the primaries, and dropped out before the convention.

Shunned publicity

Mills had largely shunned publicity before that and was known as one of the most effective legislators — and sober, retiring personages —in several decades.

"Wilbur used to take delight in brushing past cameramen before that race, but when he got the presidential bug he'd say anything," said one committee member.

What's more, the Senate Watergate Committee uncovered charges that for his presidential campaign, Mills accepted $75,000 in illegal contributions and services from Associated Milk Producers, Inc., and Gulf Oil Corp. had illegally contributed $15,000.

After that, Mills was hit with back problems. He was laid up for eight months in Arkansas for treatment which included disc surgery and recuperation. When he returned, both Mills and his committee had changed.

The committee had begun holding open meetings, and its members —none of whom had even been appointed to the committee when Mills became chairman 16 years ago, found they could act and think on their own.

Different moods

Mills began to show different moods. On some days he was pensive and appeared not to hear reporters' questions. He would lapse into long dialogues about past occurrences, appearing to shut out those around him.

On other days, he would be decisive, with flashes of what some committee members call, "Wilbur at his best."

Once, the usually serious Mills kept his committee laughing for almost two hours with a series of wry comments about pending amendments.

Mills has been taking pain-killing drugs for his back, and some committee members attributed his behavioral changes to that fact.

Dodger errors give A's 2-1 edge

OAKLAND (UPI) — Everybody has been saying right along the Oakland A's and Los Angeles Dodgers are so evenly matched that the breaks will decide the 1974 World Series.

After three games, the A's have gotten the breaks twice, so maybe it's no surprise they lead the Dodgers today two games to one.

Last Saturday in the opener, a throwing error by Dodger third baseman Ron Cey helped the A's to the run in the eighth inning that wound up as the margin of difference, and Tuesday night here, Joe Ferguson, switched from right field to catcher, committed two errors to tie a World Series record and the A's won 3-2.

So today, with the two-time defending World Champion A's holding the edge, lefty Ken Holtzman will pitch against Andy Messersmith. They were the first game pitchers, with Messersmith the loser and Holtzman going out after 4 1-3 innings with no decision.

Tuesday night, Jim "Catfish" Hunter, a 25-game winner during the regular season, went 7 1-3 innings and wound up with his fourth World Series victory in as many decisions over three seasons. Al Downing was the loser although he deserved a better fate.

Not since Jimmy Wilson of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1928 had a catcher made two errors in a World Series game until Ferguson in the third game of this year's Classic.

His first error came in the third and helped the A's to a pair of unearned runs. His second followed in the fourth and while the A's registered their final run in that inning, the error didn't figure in the scoring.

Still, it hung the goat horns on the likeable Dodger backstop, who will go back to playing right field in tonight's game with Steve Yeager taking over behind the plate.

"They (the A's) got away with murder," said Ferguson. "We hit three or four line shots that they caught. They are a team of opportunists, to say the least."

KNBC (4) & KTTV (11), 5:30 p.m.

A's Manager Alvin Dark called the victory in the third game a big one but he said tonight's fourth game "really is the important one."

"In a seven game series, the fourth game, I think, is the big one," said Dark. "Of course, you have to win the third one first before you can start thinking about the next game. Still, when you are in this position (leading two games to one) you start thinking about winding it up in five."

Dodger Manager Walter Alston, whose mood rarely varies whether his team wins or loses, said he thought Downing, who pitched in both the 1963 and 1964 World Series for the Yankees, wasn't as bad as the figures would indicate (four hits and four walks in 3 2-3 innings).

"He was missing a little with his pitches," said Alston. "I think he pitched pretty good under the circumstances."

After the Dodgers got through kicking the ball around, Downing was in the hole 3-0 and solo homers by Bill Buckner in the eighth and Willie Crawford in the ninth couldn't pull it out.

Billy North, who hadn't had a hit in his last 20 playoff and Series appearances, singled to left after one out in the third and then showed the Dodgers why he was the AL's leading base stealer with 54 this year.

Bert Campaneris followed with a smash behind third which Cey made a fine stop on and threw to first in time for the out. But North, running on the pitch, made it to third as first baseman Steve Garvey hesitated making a return throw to Cey and it was too late by then.

Reggie Jackson, warned by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn before the game for his run-in with a sports writer the day before, was the next batter and he topped the ball in front of the plate. Ferguson took off after the ball, got his glove on it and then saw the ball trickle out for an error. North scored on the miscue and Bando went to second from where he scored on a single by Joe Rudi.

In the fourth, Dick Green, who tied a Series record by taking part in three double plays, walked leading off, went to second on a sacrifice by Hunter and scored on a single by Campaneris. Campy continued on to second when centerfielder Jimmy Wynn threw home and when the ball got away from Ferguson, with no one backing him up, he went to third.

That finished Downing and Jim Brewer came on to strike out Bando to end the inning, but as things turned out that was the run that won the game.

Alston conceded defense is not his club's strong suit.

"Defense is probably the weakest spot on our club," he said. "But we got here this way and I wouldn't change it now. Don't get down on Ferguson as a catcher. He's still a pretty good catcher but Yeager will catch the next game."

That's tonight.

Joe Ferguson no 'butcher'

OAKLAND (UPI) — If you listen to Joe Ferguson, he's a "butcher" back there behind the plate, but don't listen to him because he's not.

As a matter of fact, he still has a shot at winding up with that shiny new car they give the outstanding World Series performer each year.

Why not? Remember that eye-popping throw of his from right field to cut down barreling Sal Bando at home plate in the eighth inning of Saturday's opener at Los Angeles? They're going to talk about that one for a long time.

And what about that dramatic home run he nailed Vida Blue for in the sixth inning of Sunday's contest? It came with one on and proved the Dodgers' ultimate margin of victory.

Okay, so he made a couple of errors in Tuesday night's 3-2 setback to the Oakland A's. Big deal!

Those two errors equaled a World Series record set by Jimmy Wilson of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1928, and if you ever saw Jimmy Wilson catch, then you know he was no bum. The greatest catchers in the world, Bill Dickey, Mickey Cochrane, Roy Campanella and Gabby Hartnett, all made errors.

This is not to suggest Joe Ferguson is in their class, or that he's even on a par with the Dodgers' other receiver, Steve Yeager, who some day may rank with the best, but he's better than he lets on. Especially for someone who started out as an outfielder and still plays there as much as he does behind the plate.

Somebody was asking him how much trouble he has handling Charlie Hough, the Dodgers' Hawaiian-born knuckleballer who came into the ball game in the fifth inning Tuesday night, and Ferguson said "they should give me a medal every time I catch the ball."

Don't believe it.

Joe Ferguson can catch.

Fewest errors

He doesn't say he set a major league record for the fewest errors by a catcher last year when he committed only three.

Nor does he volunteer the fact he led all National League catchers last year in double plays with 17.

When you ask Joe Ferguson which he prefers, catching or playing the outfield, he shrugs and says:

"It doesn't make any difference. I just like to play."

You can tell that right away.

He was upset the Dodgers lost Tuesday night's ball game but he wasn't bothered by the fact he had made two errors or that he hadn't looked good in his own backyard so to speak because he comes from this area, and among those who watched his performance were his father and mother, his brother and sister, his grandfather and his wife.

"I tried as hard as I could on every play," he said, sitting in front of his locker with a piece of cold roast beef on a paper plate. "It just didn't work out right. I'm not mad at myself. If you try as hard as you can, and you don't come up with the play, that's it. When you give your best, you have nothing to apologize for."

Joe Ferguson certainly hasn't.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter struck him out his first two times up Tuesday but that didn't make Fergy break out in any sweat either.

"I've struck out five times in one game and made two errors a lotta times," he said.

"A lotta times?" someone pressed him.

"Sure," he said.

Tommy Lasorda tells how he counseled Ferguson that he could reach the majors quicker as a catcher than an outfielder while he was managing him at Spokane in 1971.

Lasorda told Ferguson that Bill Dickey, Mickey Cochrane and Gabby Hartnett all had started out as outfielders and became great catchers.

Joe Ferguson listened to what Lasorda had to say and went back behind the plate with renewed enthusiasm.

Sometime later, a newsman straightened out Lasorda, pointing out to him that Dickey, Cochrane and Hartnett all began their pro careers as catchers.

"You know that and I know that," said Lasorda, "but Joe Ferguson doesn't know it."

It doesn't matter.

Joe Ferguson knows he loves to play anywhere.

That's all he really needs to wind up with that car.

Dark is delighted Herbie escaped

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

OAKLAND (UPI) — Alvin Dark couldn't resist.

"Herbie didn't get picked off," he said, laughing a little.

Those were his first words to newsmen after his Oakland A's went one up on the Los Angeles Dodgers by beating them 3-2 Tuesday night in the third World Series contest.

What he was talking about, of course, was the fact he had put in sprint specialist Herb Washington, the "goat" in his team's second game loss, to run for Gene Tenace in the eighth inning and Dodger reliever Mike Marshall didn't pick him off this time.

"Yeah, but why did he stop at second with two out on the ball (Dick) Green hit?" someone hollered up to Dark.

If the A's manager heard the question, he merely pretended he hadn't.

Actually, there were mistakes on both sides in Tuesday night's contest but there was no argument at all over which club made the most.

Joe Ferguson, the Dodgers' second game stickout, equaled a Series record for a catcher with two errors in the same game, and struck out twice as well.

"It's not my worst game," he said. "I've struck out five times in a lotta games and made two errors."

Al Downing, the Dodgers' starter, neglected to back up Ferguson in the fourth inning when Jim Wynn's relay home from center field skipped past the Los Angeles receiver for his second error. The error didn't figure in the A's' scoring but it did prolong the inning.

"I should've been back there," said Downing. "I didn't think the throw was gonna go through. I thought it would be cut off."

First baseman Steve Garvey, who has been playing superbly for the Dodgers in this Series, was the cut-off man, but he let the ball go through instead of grabbing it and trying to head off speedy Bert Campaneris at second.

"I lost it (the ball) a little bit in the lights," Garvey said, "but since it didn't figure in the scoring, it doesn't matter that much."

Ferguson's initial error helped the A's score their first run of the game off Downing in the third inning when with Sal Bando on first and Bill North on third with two out, Reggie Jackson followed with a one-bouncer in front of the plate.

Ferguson, originally an outfielder, jumped out after the ball, which he sort of pancaked in his glove, then dropped for an error. North scored on the bobble and Bando went to second.

Jackson, running as hard as he could, never saw the play materialize at all.

When he got to first base safely, he asked Jerry Adair, the A's coach there, what had happened.

"He bobbled the ball," Adair said, meaning Ferguson. "He could've given you a hit on it," he added, meaning presumably any one of the three official scorers.

"To hell with it," said Jackson. "I'm here. That's all that counts."

Later, after it was all over, Jackson talked about the ball he topped in front of the plate.

"I was using the wrong club," he joked. "What happened was that they made a mistake, and we being a good club, took advantage of it, that's all."

There were a lot of mistakes.

But as Alvin Dark laughed:

"Herbie didn't get picked off."

Dodger catcher Joe Ferguson looks vainly for ball as he lets a throw from the outfield get past him in fourth inning Tuesday night for his second error of the game to tie World Series record.

Shields, Kibby box at Olympic

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former AAU national champions Randy Shields of Los Angeles and Dave Kibby of San Francisco are rematched Thursday night in a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout at the Olympic Auditorium.

The unbeaten Shields, 14-0 with 10 KOs, won a controversial decision from Kibby April 18 in Portland, Ore.

Shields won the AAU national junior welterweight title last year. Kibby, 12-4 with eight KOs as a pro, won the AAU featherweight and junior lightweight crowns the previous two years.

Sun can wrap up crown

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Southern California Sun will be out to clinch the WFL Western Division championship when its hosts the Birmingham Americans at Anaheim Stadium (8 p.m.) tonight.

The Americans dealt the Sun one of its four losses in the season opener July 10 at Birmingham.

The Sun defense shut out George Mira and company in that game, but lost 11-7 on an intercepted pass and a field goal. The Sun (11-4) has won six in a row and nine of its last 10 games.

Birmingham (12-3) won its first 10 games before tasting defeat, 46-7, at the hands of the Memphis Southmen (who also defeated the Sun 25-15).

After coming back to defeat the Houston Texans (nee Shreveport Steamer) 42-14, the Americans dropped two games to Portland (26-21) and Hawaii (14-8).

While the Sun was edging the Steamer 25-23 last week, the Americans were getting revenge against much improved Portland, 30-8.

The other Sun losses were to the New York Stars (nee Charlotte Hornets) 11-8 and Chicago Fire, 32-22.

"Birmingham is a much improved team," said Sun coach Tom Fears. "But we are, too. Our kids have matured since we played them in the opening game.

"We're still the youngest team in the league, but we're much more experienced now and we've been waiting all season for this game. We haven't forgotten our mistakes from our last meeting."

After being relatively healthy two weeks, the injury bugaboo has sidelined a couple of first line players.

Running back Alonzo Emery has a shoulder separation suffered in last week's game. Emery is the Sun's leading kickoff returner with 546 yards on 25 returns for a 21.8 average.

Backup quarterback Gary Valbuena just rejoined the team today after being hospitalized for a muscle spasm in his back.

Valbuena has been de-activated and former Whittier star Wayne Estabrook will be the backup man tonight.

"Wayne has been practicing with us every day and has made every road trip since the season began," said Fears. "He'll be suited up and ready to go and I wouldn't hesitate to use him if the situation dictates a change."

Linebacker Mike Denimarck has been lost for the season. Denimarck, a reserve, collided with starting outside linebacker Cleveland Vann in practice Sunday and tore his knee up.

Offensive tackle Joe Carollo has a calf bruise and may not be able to play. If he can't, Booker Brown will return to left tackle and Younger Klippert will replace Brown at guard.

Birmingham coach Jack Gotta has his share of worries too. "We're so banged up physically I just hope we can find some healthy people to put out there," moaned Gotta.

"Having lost defensive tackle John Andrews earlier and defensive end Larry Estes last week with a dislocated shoulder puts more pressure on us defensively than I would like."

Navarro to box Muniz on Friday

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Ruben Navarro of Los Angeles and Mexico's Aurelio Muniz fight in a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout Friday night at the Coliseum.

The veteran Navarro has fought for the world title three times. Muniz, of Tampico, is a former featherweight champion of Mexico.

King, Goolagong sweep; Evert vs. Casals tonight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong, the second and third seeds, swept to straight set victories Tuesday night in first round matches of the $100,000 Virginia Slims tennis tournament.

Mrs. King trounced Betty Stove of the Netherlands, 6-4, 6-2, while Miss Goolagong had a tougher battle before subduing Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego 6-1, 7-6.

Chris Evert, the top seed in the tourney, will meet Rosemary Casals in a quarterfinal match tonight.

Mrs. King played a steady game, relying on strong forehand and backhand shots. She did have some trouble with her serve, however.

"I don't think I was penetrating with my serve," she said. "I wasn't accelerating enough."

Mrs. King went ahead 4-3 in the first set by breaking Miss Stove's serve.

She had an easier time in the second set, scoring service breaks in the third and seventh games.

Miss Goolagong, after losing her serve in the first game, rallied to break Miss Ziegenfuss' service in the second, fourth and sixth games of the opening set. Miss Goolagong lost a 5-3 lead in the second set when her opponent rallied to win three of the next four games and set the set into a tiebreaker. She won the tiebreaker 5-3.

In another first round event, Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia rallied to defeat Kathy Kuykendall of Miami 1-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Two views on rise of NFL losers

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

What makes a winner in professional football became the topic of conversation Tuesday at the weekly luncheon of valley coaches and writers at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona.

Discussing the current trend of perennial also-rans, New England and St. Louis rising to undefeated 5-0 seasons in 1974, local coaches were divided on how and why.

"It's teaching," said Mt. San Antonio's Mal Eaton. "Both New England's (coach Chuck) Fairbanks and St. Louis' (Don) Coryell came to the pros from successful programs in college. College and high school coaches teach.

"Even (Ram head coach) Chuck Knox was a high school coach at one time."

Disagreeing was Citrus College coach John Strycula.

"Teaching hasn't got anything to do with it," said Strycula. "In professional ball it's strictly personnel. A team that wins consistently gets up emotionally more often than teams that don't.

"So many college and high school games are a mismatch," Strycula continued, "because one team has superior talent over the other. In the pros this isn't the case. Each team has outstanding personnel and it comes down to emotions.

"Even a team like Houston can win on any given week. But there is no way a college team like Wake Forest is going to stand a chance against say an Oklahoma."

Coaches and writers were in agreement, however, on elections for college and junior college players of the week.

For the second week in a row, MSAC's Binky Benton and La Verne's Jeff Button were honored.

Benton had his second 100-yard game in the Mounties' 28-21 loss to L.A. Valley, gaining 152 yards and one touchdown on 24 carries. He has nearly 500 yards in five games with a 4.2 average.

Button sparked La Verne's 10-0 upset of Azusa Pacific with 14 tackles, including two sacks of the quarterback. A middle guard, Button delivered 13 tackles a week ago in La Verne's 13-3 loss to USIU.

Honors also sent to Cal Poly center Lou Fanucchi and Chaffey defensive back Rick Godinez.

Of Fanucchi, coach Andy Vinci said the center graded out at 96 per cent efficiency in films of Pomona's 14-14 tie with San Luis Obispo. Godinez, the first Chaffey player to win an honor this year, intercepted a pass, recovered two fumbles and made five tackles in Chaffey's 21-20 loss to Riverside.

Quoting the coaches:

Mal Eaton, Mt. San Antonio College — "It's the same darn thing every week. We gave up 28 points to Valley in the first 13 minutes. It could have been 100 to nothing. In four out of five games we've given up 14 points or more in the first quarter. I told the team we haven't got any more excuses. We've come back each time and our kids haven't quit which to me is something. We have a bye this week and open conference play against Orange Coast Oct. 26."

Knox picks Harris to start at QB

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Hadl, last year's NFC Player of the Year, is being benched as the Los Angeles Rams' quarterback in favor of James Harris.

"This is the toughest decision I have had to make since becoming the Rams' head coach," Chuck Knox said Tuesday after disclosing the change.

"John has said himself that he's in a bit of a slump right now. All of it has not been his fault. There have been some dropped passes and other breakdowns."

But, he added, "When things are not going well, you must make changes to set them right...I talked to John about it yesterday. I would never make a change like this without discussing it with the player first."

The Rams, last season's NFC West champions and the preseason favorite to win their conference this year, are only 3-2 after the first five weeks of the NFL campaign.

"It's a shock to me," said Hadl of the move by Knox. "This team is in first place. We can go two games up Sunday over the team (San Francisco) we have to beat for the division. I don't understand this at all unless it's part of some long-range plan."

"I know I haven't played like I did the early part of last year but physically there's nothing wrong with me or my arm. If anything, I'm better."

Of Harris, Hadl's roommate on road trips, Hadl said, "He's a good athlete, he has a good arm, and he's a good friend. He has the ability to do it."

Harris said he plans to concentrate on getting ready for Sunday's game with San Francisco.

"I feel it's best for me to keep quiet and keep a low profile," said Harris. "I'm going to try to play good football before I start talking."

Los Angeles lost 17-6 to the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee Sunday. The Rams' other loss was 20-13 to New England Sept. 29.

With 43 seconds left in the third quarter, Knox replaced Hadl with Harris Sunday.

The Rams have managed only 77 points this year compared to 162 at this time a season ago.

A 13-year NFL veteran who led the Rams to a 12-2 regular season record after being acquired from the San Diego Chargers before 1973, Hadl hasn't been anywhere near the same quarterback who threw 22 touchdown passes last year.

Hadl, 34, has hit 53 of 114 passes—a .465 percentage—for 680 yards and five TDs in five games this year.

Poly's Gomez likes area

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

Cal Poly is happy Richard Gomez likes the area.

Gomez didn't want to stray too far from his La Puente home when he was looking for a college after starring for two years at Mt. San Antonio College.

What could be closer than Cal Poly?

"I wanted to stay in the area so Poly was an easy choice," the rugged defensive end explained. "I am majoring in political science and considering a law career. Right now, I'm involved in the bail bonds business."

Gomez, a product of La Puente High, was a fullback and defensive end during his prep days but switched to a linebacking spot at MSAC where he served as a co-captain last year.

After starting out as a linebacker at Poly during the spring drills, he was switched to a defensive end spot.

RICHARD GOMEZ
... Bronco end

"I was happy about it," Gomez said. "It's the position I like to play."

Gomez was at his best last week in the 14-14 tie against archrival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. He recorded two sacks of the quarterback and was in on many tackles.

"Getting the quarterback is the big thing," he said. "That's the best thrill a defensive end can have."

In discussing the SLO battle, Gomez added, "I am really psyched up for that game. I have a lot of friends playing for them."

He also should be ready for Friday afternoon's game against undefeated Cal State Los Angeles on the Diablos' field.

"We'll be ready," Gomez promises, "because we know we have to win all of our league games. It should be a long game because of all the passing."

Gomez (6-3, 220) feels he is getting better each week.

"I am getting more used to my position," he explains. "Playing on defense is more exciting because you can roam the field looking for contact."

Defensive coordinator Tom Hoffman explained why Gomez was switched to an end spot.

"Richard didn't have enough speed to be a linebacker according to our needs but we wanted a big, tough guy like him at one of the ends," Hoffman said. "He especially does a good job holding up the tight end."

In discussing his improvement each week, Hoffman said, "His foot quickness is a big reason as well as his whole attitude."

BRONCO BUSTERS — Poly head coach Andy Vinci feels the winner of Friday's game will have the inside track for the California Collegiate Athletic Association crown . . .

CSLA plays its game on Friday afternoon in an effort to attract more students . . .

Vinci feels quarterback Jim Zorn, who had an off night against SLO, may have been affected by the bye the week before. "his timing was off," the coach said.

Sports news in brief

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Maury John, former national basketball coach of the year who led Drake to the NCAA finals in 1969 and former head coach at Iowa State, died Tuesday night of cancer. He was 54.

John, who had been confined to Mary Greeley Hospital since Saturday, fell victim to cancer of the esophagus last December, midway through his third season at Iowa State. He had switched to Iowa State after 13 seasons at Drake.

The Sweet Springs, Mo., native had been undergoing chemotherapy treatment until mid-summer and resigned his coaching post on July 30 after announcing that he did not feel he was phsycially able to continue major college coaching.

John's 1969 Drake team finished third in the NCAA championship at Louisville, Ky., and nearly upset top-ranked UCLA in the semifinals, losing to the Lew Alcindor-led Bruins, 83-80.

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI) — Desire, not size, was what made Donnell Hunter a standout athlete at Roswell Goddard High School.

Hunter, who despite his 5-foot-7 size and 150 pounds was a star baseball, football and basketball player at Goddard High, died Tuesday at the Eastern New Mexico Medical Center from a severe neck injury suffered in a football game last Friday.

"He was a leader with an outstanding and outgoing personality," said Hunter's coach Joe Allen. "He and I were very close."

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback John Hopkins will draw the starting assignment against UCLA at Los Angeles Saturday night, according to Washington State Coach Jim Sweeney.

Known primarily as a passer, Hopkins came off the bench to complete 13 of 19 passes for 117 yards and one touchdown in the Cougars losing effort against USC last Saturday night.

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The Baseball Writers Association of America Tuesday named Charlie Feeney of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette as their national president at the group's annual World Series meeting.

The BBWAA also named Richard Dozer of the Chicago Tribune as vice president, while Jack Lang of the Long Island Press was reelected secretary-treasurer.

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Veteran slugger Orlando Cepeda, recently released by the Kansas City Royals after catching on as a designated hitter late in the '74 season, will play in the Japanese League in the 1975 and 1976 season, it was learned Tuesday.

According to local sports sources, the 37-year old Cepeda, who batted just .215 for the Royals after being released by the Red Sox in spring training, has signed a $250,000 contract to play in Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Veteran Golden State Warriors guard Jeff Mullins was sidelined Tuesday after breaking his hand in practice, the National Basketball Association club revealed.

Mullins fractured a bone in his hand during practice and will be out of the lineup for three weeks.

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Mike Popovich, Gresham, Ore., a two-year letterman senior, has been dropped from the Oregon football team for disciplinary reasons, according to coach Don Read.

Popovich had been a starting offensive guard this year for the Ducks. He started at middle linebacker as a sophomore and was Oregon's starting center last season.

Ken Bondelie, a freshman from Campbell, Calif., will move into the No. 1 guard spot.

Soccer clubs enjoy wins in Claremont

Three of the Claremont Pacific Soccer League teams scored resounding wins last meeting.

The Division II Peterson Pharmacy Claremont Kings defeated the Torrance Fram Juniors, 7-1. Mike Hunter scored three goals, Jerry Van Zee scored two, and Mark Hunter and George Rubio each scored one. John Mack was credited with three assists. Outstanding midfield play by Ruben Raya and Tai Martin, and defensive effort by goalie Steve Tipping helped the Kings remain undefeated.

In Division III action, the Spittin' Image Claremont Knights defeated the Torrance Fram Boys, 6-0. Lance Folden scored twice while Chris Jollymour, Raye Calderon, Larry Ryan, and Greg Eyrich each scored once. Mike Waldman and Dan McIntosh were standouts on defense.

The Division IV Claremont Stars completely dominated the second half to defeat the Brea Spurs, 11-0. Leading only 1-0 at halftime, the Stars scored 10 goals in the second half. Allen Pitts led the scoring with six goals. Tom Carey and Larry Jackson each had two, and Henry Gonzolez scored one.

However, the Straw Hat Pizza Claremont Lancers were defeated by the Culver City Estudiantes, 5-3. Phil Adams scored two goals for the Lancers while Mike McNamara scored one.

This Saturday, the Knights and Lancers meet at noon at the El Roble Junior High School Field. The Kings hosts Cucamonga at 1:30 p.m., also at El Roble. The Claremont Stars travel to Torrance to play the South Bay Gunners at 2:10 p.m.

'Hen booters look ahead to big match

Pomona-Pitzer's soccer team is risking its perfect season record this afternoon in a match at Occidental.

However, the big match is at 10 a.m. Saturday when Pomona-Pitzer visits campus rival Claremont-Mudd on the Stags' field in a battle for first place in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Coach Don Zenger's Sagehens defeated La Verne, 9-1, and Caltech, 4-1, last week to improve their season record to 6-0.

Paul Suter scored three goals and set up two others to pace Pomona past La Verne. Leon Thanopoulos scored two goals to pace the win over Caltech with Tom Moore's pass setting up the first score.

However, Zenger wasn't happy with last week's play.

"Except for Suter's outstanding play and rugged individualism, I was not happy with our play," the coach commented. "No one played together. We will not be able to play this way next week and expect to win. Both goals were scored at the end of a period; we are letting down before the final whistle."

Walnut, Romans will go at it again

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

Traditionally the annual Royal Oak — Walnut battle has been more than JUST another rivalry. In fact, the winner of the past four meetings between the two teams has gone on to capture the Hacienda League crown.

Thursday night at Citrus College Alta Loma tackles Gladstone to kickoff the week's

Hacienda League

H.L. prep activity followed by the Ontario at Bonita, San Dimas at Sierra Vista and the Walnut — Royal Oak matchup Friday. All games start at 8 p.m.

The Romans have won four of the previous six meetings, winning in 1968, '69 and '70. In 1971 the Romans, unbeaten and CIF ranked, were buried by Walnut and quarterback Ron Himes, who threw six TD passes in a 41-16 romp.

Then with both teams unbeaten entering the '72 confrontation, the Mustangs came out victorious and went on to cop the crown.

Royal Oak won last year's battle, again both teams entered the affair unbeaten, and went on to the CIF playoffs.

Needless to say when both teams set foot on the Charter Oak High turf Friday the adrenalin will be flowing.

"They're our traditional rivals," said Walnut coach Ken Gunn. "Our big game each year."

"When our schools get together you can throw out previous records and accomplishments because anything can happen."

"Oh yeah," echoed Roman coach Len Mussack. "This is the biggest game of the year for our kids. Not only because of the rivalry but because our kids feel they're (Walnut) the team to beat. I've seen Bonita and I'm not that impressed. We know they have good good talent but so far they've squeaked by twice. Walnut has dominated its victims. We feel they're the team to beat.

Walnut shares the league lead with Bonita at 2-0 (2-2) overall) while the Romans trounced Ontario, 40-8, and tied San Dimas, 0-0. The Mustangs are coming off a 6-0 shutout over Gladstone.

"I'm really impressed with that defense," said Gunn of Royal Oak. "And they have a real explosive offense — they're awesome. They have a real good option attack and three fine running backs (Chris Tribble, Rick Hall, and Vince Nixon) and that quarterback (Jim Garcia) runs well. My hat's off to (Bob) Baiz they (San Dimas) did a good job stopping that option."

Tribble has rushed for 390 yards in four games, including 160 yards on seven carries in the season opener, and scored three times. Hall has 185 yards while Nixon has 150 and Garcia 145 yards.

Walnut has played some defense of its own recently. The Mustangs blanked Gladstone while getting fine play from tackle Dan Jenson who had six tackles, caused a fumble and recovered a fumble. Rick Packer and Kevin Veselic led in tackles with seven each while Ron Turner, Steve Chapple and Mark Thompson also helped lead the charge.

Besides being a big rivalry the game stacks up with the league's best defense (Royal Oak) — especially against the pass — going against the loop's top passing team, Walnut.

The Mustangs' Scott Stowell has completed 53 passes of 125 attempts for 744 yards and five TD's. The Romans have interecepted 12 passes.

Guess who's shooting for a title?

What's Garey High's secret?

Viking head coach Lawson Bush, now in his second year as skipper, calls it "sheer desire."

"We don't have the personnel," stated Bush, "but where we're short on numbers we're great on desire. We have some outstanding individuals, but it's been more or less a team effort. That's something I've never seen at Garey since I've been here (he was an assistant coach at Garey for two years)."

That "desire" Bush is speaking of just may put the Vikings in a contender category in the San Antonio League. They are already threatening to take the league lead this weekend.

Garey, which started off the season with a loss to Morningside (21-0) and a tie to Riverside Poly (0-0), is currently tied with Pomona for second place in league. And the Vikings will take on league-leading Claremont Saturday night at Mt. San Antonio College in the big SAL showdown of the week.

If Garey happens to knock off the Wolfpack and Pomona drops a decision to Damien Friday night, Bush's troops will have sole possession of the league lead with a month of SAL action to go.

So what has suddenly made Garey a contender in the SAL?

The beginning of league play this season didn't look very bright for the Vikings, since they opened with a 13-13 tie against Pomona. But last weekend, they put it all together and upset Ganesha, 13-3.

Now there's talk that the Vikings may be on their way up, especially the way the league has been going the last two weeks (only one team has a winning record).

"I think Garey will beat Claremont this weekend," predicted Pomona coach Mike Clifton. "They've got two of the better backs in the league."

Of course, the rest of the league would like to see the Vikings bring the Wolfpack down to earth since it gives everybody else a better shot at the title. And Clifton especially would like to see the mild upset. If it happens, his Red Devils may get a share of that lead — if they can defeat an angry Damien club.

But Claremont would rather stay unbeaten in league play.

If there's any part of the Garey team which could upset the Pack it would probably be the defense. The Vikings have the sixth-ranked defense in the valley and had the No. 1 defense of the valley last year.

But it'll have to go up against a Claremont team which has scored an average of 35 points in the last two outings.

"I'm primarily a defensive coach," revealed Bush. "I feel we can stop almost anyone. But I think our offense has been our turning point this year."

Despite the fact the Vikings have been shut out twice in their four outings, they have displayed a strong running game with Dana Hutchison and Stanley Webster doing most of the work.

Bush promised exciting football when he took over the reins last season. But last year his Vikings could only come up with a 3-4-2 season record.

However, his philosophy hasn't changed.

"I haven't changed my philosophy at all," he exclaimed. "I think we still play exciting ball. We'll try anything to win. We'll run if we have to and we can pass if we have to. However, I'd rather run."

Exciting wasn't the word for it when winless Garey stunned No. 2 ranked and unbeaten Claremont two years ago on a 56-yard touchdown pass with less than 50 seconds left in the game to win 13-12.

And then last year the Vikings put up a fight before losing 7-6 to the Wolfpack.

"For some reason, we always seem to play our best against Claremont," Bush revealed. "Usually we play our best ball game of the year against them. They give us a tough time and I guess it makes us try harder."

With that in mind, you know Saturday night's contest will be an interesting one.

Other San Antonio League games on tap this weekend besides the Garey-Claremont and Pomona-Damien confrontations will see Chino host Ganesha and Upland entertain Montclair.

All games are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. kickoffs.

QUOTING THE COACHES:

Jim Rawls, Chino — "We're under the gun now. But I think two losses can win the league title. I don't think we're out of it. Ganesha may have a similar offense to ours (Wishbone vs. Veer), but they tend to go outside while we tend to go off tackle."

Garry Norvell, Ganesha — "We're improving. I don't think our game with Chino will be a high-scoring one. They've been having trouble with their offense and we've been having trouble with ours. If one of the two teams score three touchdowns it'll be a lot."

Mike Clifton, Pomona — "We played well at times against Chino, but it just so happens we played well at the right times. We'd like to be able to throw against Damien. I don't know if John Souza (starting quarterback out with an injury) will be ready this weekend, so we're preparing sophomore Kevin Johnson and junior Tom Soto."

Ron Smedley, Damien — "Pomona has a fine defense. In fact I think it's one of the best in the league. And they have good running backs. We'll plan to throw the ball more when we get more confidence in our passing game."

Jack Simpson, Montclair — "Upland is one of the biggest rivals as far as the kids are concerned. Usually Claremont is the big rival for the people who've been at the school for a while, but now the emphasis seems to have shifted."

Bob Holycross, Upland — "I think Montclair is one of the best teams in the league. I don't see how they can be 0-2. It'll be our homecoming."

Bush, Garey — "Claremont is always tough. They have a tremendous athlete in Kent Stalwick and I think their right guard Jon Boehkle is a terrific player."

Esper Keiser, Claremont — "Garey usually plays us a good game, but they also play good games against Pomona and Ganesha. I think their offense has real good success and they have a strong defense."

'Cats take valley lead in defense

There's one big change in this week's valley high school football scoring derby.

Bonita High, the only undefeated team in the valley with a 4-0 record, has taken over the lead as the valley's top defensive team. The Bearcats have only given up an average of 5.5 points an outing, claiming one shutout in its first four games.

Last week's defense leader, Damien, dropped out of the top ten when it gave up 34 points against Upland. The Spartans had given up only an average of 4.3 points before last weekend.

Chino High running back Rick Riedel is still the leading individual scorer in the valley with six touchdowns and 36 points, but Rowland High quarterback Flavio Garcia is closing the gap.

Garcia has scored five TDs and kicked an extra point to pick up 31 points. Right behind the Raider QB in scoring is Montclair running back Jim Donaldson with 30 points.

Webb School is still the valley's top offensive team, averaging 30.7 points an outing.

Arrowhead showdown

Webb out to prove itself

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Sports Writer

Webb School's veteran coach Les Perry was asked how it felt to be on top of the Arrowhead League standing this week.

"It's great — so far," replied the cautious Gaul mentor.

Perry has his reasons for being less than overwhelmed by his team's 2-0 ledger.

Prep roundup

Webb has faced two of the lesser lights in the league in beating Lutheran Orange 62-0 and Sherman Institute 16-0.

Actually, Perry figures that easy opening win over Orange was less than a blessing. "That game did us more harm than good. We all had fun that day and then forgot we had to play football the next time around."

The effect of the easy win showed up against Sherman last Friday, when the Gauls fumbled five times and had difficulty putting the Indians away.

This Friday night Perry figures that everyone better be ready to play as the Gauls face a toughie at Aquinas High in San Bernardino.

"Aquinas is a fine ball club," points out Perry. "They might be down after losing to Big Bear last week, but we still will have to beat them to prove ourselves as a title contender."

Perry is worried about the passing game, both his and Aquinas. "We have had no passing game so far, and we will have to develop one in order to beat teams like Aquinas, Big Bear or Notre Dame."

Perry also figures that his Webb defense will have to stop the Aquinas passing attack to contain the San Bernardino school. Perry was happy about one thing, however, and that is his offensive backfield.

"It looks like I've finally settled on my backfield," said the Webb skipper. "Paul Richards and Doug McCowan have run the ball very well for us in our two league games."

Asked if he was still using the single-wing formation for which the Gauls are famous, Perry responded, "Is there any other formation?"

That single-wing attack will be hoping to prove itself this Friday, as Webb continues its quest for the Arrowhead League crown.

In the other Arrowhead contest involving La Verne Lutheran, the Trojans appear to be in over their heads again as they host Big Bear at Damien High Saturday afternoon.

La Verne lost 67-0 to Notre Dame last week and Big Bear is reputed to be the league power, which all adds up to a long day for the league newcomers.

Over in the Montview League, two locals go at it this Saturday as Rowland High travels to Charter Oak to play the Lancers.

Rowland is rolling in league play, ringing up a 2-0 mark and outscoring opponents 42-14 in loop games. Charter Oak on the other hand is fighting to stay alive in the Montview race. The Lancers absorbed a 13-0 loss at the hands of Azusa last week and now stand at 1-1 in league.

The Raiders have a star-studded offense headed by quarterback Flavio Garcia, twin brother Dave and Don Pearce, ace wide receiver Mike Eropkin and running back Bob Alkema. Alkema broke loose to a 70-yard touchdown run last week to ignite the Raider triumph.

However, Charter Oak can't overlook a fine Rowland defense which was surrendered only two scores so far in league play. The Lancers will have to get their offense going or it could be a long evening for them. In particular, the Charter Oak air game has been practically nil of late, as quarterback Wayne Bradley clicked on only four of 16 passes against Azusa and had five intercepted.

In the other Montview contest involving a valley school, winless Nogales goes against co-league leader Azusa Friday night at Citrus College.

Nothing went right for the Nobles in last week's 38-0 loss to Baldwin Park, and to complicate things Nogales has tallied only once in two loop outings. Azusa, the surprise of the league at this point, will give the Nobles a stiff test.

Spirits are high on the Ontario Christian campus after the Knights' upset win over Whittier Christian in an Olympic League outing last week.

Sporting a 1-1 league record and an overall 3-1 ledger, the Knights continue their quest for the loop crown Friday as they travel to Brethren High. The Paramount school is also right in the midst of the Olympic race with a 2-0 mark so the Knights have another tough assignment on their hands.

Chaffey High, riding a three-game winning streak, enters Citrus Belt League play on Friday as they meet Eisenhower at the San Bernardino Orange Show stadium.

The Tigers lost to highly-regarded Anaheim in their 1974 opener and then rattled off three straight non-league triumphs, besting Alhambra 12-0 last week.

Things have to get better for American Christian Academy. The Minutemen, now 0-4 on the season, were bombed 59-0 by Ambassador last week and go against Heritage Christian Friday in an Academy League contest.

Capitals gain 1-1 tie with Kings in home debut

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The nation's capital became a big-time hockey town Tuesday night and a sparse crowd of 8,093 fans wound up happy that their fledgling Washington team achieved a 1-1 tie with the Los Angeles Kings.

In their home debut, the Washington Capitals marked up their first point in National Hockey League play against the undefeated Kings.

The crowd for Washington's entry into major league hockey was disappointing numerically, but explainable in view of the fact that baseball's World Series was shown on national television. Well over half the seats in the recently built Capital Centre in suburban Landover, Md., were unfilled.

The debut of the Capitals on ice provided Washington with its third major league team along with the Washington professional football Redskins and the pro basketball Bullets. Washington fans also are optimistic that a major league baseball team will be in the nation's capital by 1976.

Ron Low turned away 33 Los Angeles shots for the Caps and he stopped breakaway threats by Mike Murphy and Gene Carr as the Kings outshot Washington 16-4 in the third period and 34-20 for the game.

Yvon Labre, selected from Pittsburgh in the expansion draft, scored Washington's first home goal with 4:35 gone in the second period.

Bill Lesuk and Dave Kryskow assisted in the Capital goal after the rookie defenseman Greg Joly had brought the puck up ice.

Los Angeles, now 2-0-2, scored three minutes later at 7:35 when Danny Maloney took a short pass from Terry Harper to beat Low.

Washington, which had allowed 12 goals in losing two opening road games, twice found itself two men short on the ice. But Low, helped by veteran defenseman Doug Mohns, thwarted the Kings' scoring bid.

AYSO clubs keep growing in Pomona

The Pomona American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) has swung into action for the 1974-1975 season without much fanfare but bursting with an unprecedented number of teams; the Pomona Region grew from 23 teams last year to 42 for this season.

In addition to the three divisions ranging from age seven through 15, Pomona AYSO has six girls teams and two Senior Division boys team which registers players through age 18.

After four games of play, the Division I boys already have three teams tied for first place. Last Saturday, the Panthers scored twice in each half to nip the Cobras 4-3; Rusty Grimes scored his first "hat trick" of the season and Javier Garcia added the winning tally while John Huff, Andy Evans and Rick O'Shay scored for the loosers.

The Aztecs who at first looked like they were going to run away with the title were stopped by the Gunners, 4-1, on two goals by Dale Clark and singles by Peter Trejo and Mario Grajeda while the lone Aztec goal was scored by Alberto Contreras.

The Stars came back strong in the second half but it was not enough to avoid a 5-2 defeat at the hands of the Ranger sharpshooters while Allen Quay and Kenny Romo tallied for the Stars.

In Division II, the Palominos turned back the Roadrunners, 4-1, on four goals by Danny Holloway as Chuck Porter discounted one for the birds. The Eastern Wings' Steven Mercado also scored all four goals for his team as they defeated the Chargers, 4-1, with Jeff Blyther the lone Charger scorer. The Torpedos blasted the Tigers 6-1 on goals by Trevor Jordan (3), Charles Hayes (2), and Steven Jarnagin; Marty Foutts scored for the Tigers. The Kestrels blanked the Sharks, 4-0, and two goals by James O'Brien and singles by David Hughlock and Byron Melling.

The Marauders and Wildcats each scored in the first half to give them a 1-1 tie. Jon Marker tallied for the Marauders and Johnny Quiroga did the same for the Wildcats. The Renegades shot past the Jets, 5-2, on two goals by Leonard Ice and Timothy Thompson as Jeffrey Byrum made it five; John Creighton and Ivan Abbott jetted goals for the victims. The Thunderbirds had a close call against the Kings but thanks to Ricky Garcia's two goals and Brent Snead's solo they managed to rim the Kings 3-2; Alan Matthews and Sam Stavros scored for the Kings. The Mustangs had difficulty in finding the range and were blanked by the Hawks, 2-0, on two scores by Thomas Leach.

In Division III, the Cougars single tallies by Joe Cianciolo and Andrew Wilson. The Steelers also blanked the Kiwis, 2-0, on Sean Caro and Joey Morehouse goals. The Cheetahs just went by the Streakers, 3-2. Mike Rafferty scored twice for the Cheetahs with teammate Eric Arranaga addinng to the margin while V. Aguilar and D. Young's goals were not enough. The Eagles flew faser than the Pumas and won their match 2-0 and goals by Clifford Jackson and Jerry Duffy.

The kickers defused the Bombers, 1-0, on a second half goal by Charles Lavrusky.

The girl's soccer program kicks off this weekend with a joint Pomona - Claremont League. The boys Senior Division season also begins this coming weekend also with teams from Pomona, East End, and San Gabriel.

Quoting the coaches at weekly confab

John Strycula, Citrus College — "We had six turnovers in our game with Southwestern and still won (35-13) because we simply had better personnel than they did. We play Chaffey this week and I know it sounds like a cliche but this is the type of game where anybody can knock anybody off. Chaffey is the best 0-3 team we're going to play."

Willie Richardson, Chaffey College — "We dominated the game against Riverside, but they scored on broken plays. We should have won the game and I was very disappointed in the officiating. We had some good individual performances from Mario Caridi who started at quarterback for the first time and completed 10 of 21. Lonnie Carr caught five for 105 yards and one TD. John (Strycula) has a very good football team. The best I've seen. We'll have to have some stats like last week to win."

Roland Ortmayer, La Verne College — "Our win over Azusa was very enjoyable for us. Ben's (Hines) defense did it for us. I'm thinking of nominating him for defensive player of the week. Offensively we didn't do as much as we'd like. We play Cal Lutheran this week and they romped at will against Oxy. In our notes on them we've jotted down, 'do not arouse.' We haven't beaten them in 14 years."

Jerry Sconce, Azusa Pacific — "La Verne is going to sit there and say that defense did a fantastic job. But I have to say our offense stunk. It all depends on what side of the fence you're on. This Saturday we play a top offensive and defensive team in St. Mary's They're going to be tough. We will have to play a superior defensive game."

Andy Vinci, Cal Poly — "It was very impressive . . . the largest crowd (8,500 estimated) ever to see a Cal Poly sports event (14-14 tie with Cal Poly SLO) . . . SLO is a 1-3-1 team they should be a 3-1-1 team. We play L.A. State Friday and they are averagiing 31.5 points per game and we're averaging 17. Doug Hopper, a converted wide receiver (formerly at Citrus) is the key to their offense. It's good we're getting a game so soon. Our kids are antsy after the tie. They feel they gave SLO a hell of a game."

John Zinda, Claremont-Mudd — "USIU scored on three play action passes against us when we had a lot of people up front to stop their off-tackle run. We have a bye this week and we're going to get ready for conference play. It's a new season now."

Walt Ambord, Pomona-Pitzer — "I guess I'm not very good coach. I'm having trouble motivating the team. We haven't really had a good game this year (32-3 loss to St. Mary's last week). This week it's San Diego and they've been on the short end of the stick this year but they are capable of scoring 40 points."

WTT to vote on its future

CHICAGO (UPI) — Officials of World Team Tennis planned to announce today a decision on whether the league would continue for another season.

All but one or two of the 16 franchise owners met all day Tuesday to discuss problems incurred during the first season. League President Frank Fuhrer, owner of the Pittsburgh Triangles, said he would make a statement today at a 1 p.m. news conference.

WTT sources said that if the league continued in 1975, as many as five or six financially troubled franchises probably would be dropped or shifted to other sites. Two teams most notably experiencing financial difficulties are the Chicago Aces and the Minnesota Buckskins.

Burleson tangles with Walton again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three-time All-America Bill Walton gets a chance to face old nemesis Tom Burleson when the Portland Trail Blazers host the Seattle SuperSonics Sun. Oct. 27 in the first of at least 38 National Basketball Association games to be nationally televised by CBS.

Walton met Burleson last in an NCAA semifinal game last season, when Walton's UCLA team lost to Burleson's North Carolina State squad in overtime. This time Walton will have to contend with Jim Fox, who has been seeing a good deal of action for Seattle at center, as well as Sonic forward Spencer Haywood, likely to be helping out on Walton.

The network, in releasing its videocast schedule Tuesday, said the game will be seen at 4:30 p.m. EST after a regionally televised National Football League contest, the first of four such NFL-NBA twinbills.

Starting in January, 17 Sunday afternoon games will be televised, ending with an NBA doubleheader April 6. The 25th NBA All-Star game will be shown Tuesday, Jan. 14 at 10 p.m. EST from Phoenix.

For the playoffs, CBS will show five afternoon games and two night contests in the first round, five games of the second round and the entire championship series.

Other pro odds were: Atlanta 11 over New Orleans; New York Jets 13 over Baltimore; Washington 14 over New York Giants; Pittsburgh 15 over Cleveland, Buffalo 3 over New England; Minnesota 14 over Detroit; St. Louis 14 over Houston; Dallas 8 over Philadelphia; Denver 12 over San Diego; Miami 14 over Kansas City; Chicago and Green Bay even in Monday night's game.

Pop Warner roundup

Bruins rebound

The Pomona Bruins rebounded from an upset loss to post a 14-6 victory over the San Bernardino Saints this past weekend in local Pomona Warner football action.

The Bruins scored on a 14-yard scoring pass from quarterback Houston Walker to fullback Tony Gooden and a run by Larry Wilmore. Gooden carried the ball 12 times on the ground for 145 yards, while flanker Wesley Shepard picked up 122 yards on 15 totes.

Lamar Hudson, Arthur Ramsey and Ricky Porter led the Bruin defensive charge.

A very important game comes up this weekend for the Bruins, as they host the Fontana Wolves. The Wolves hold a perfect 4-0 record while the Bruins, 1973 division champs, are 3-1. A victory for the Bruins could take the team into a playoff match with Fontana at the end of the regular season.

In other Pop Warner games, the Pomona Piranhas scored a 13-0 shutout victory over the Chino Mavericks.

Marc Pruitt ran 15 yards for the first Piranha score while Jerry Campbell dashed 40 yards for the final Pomona score. Ricky McConnell and Virgil Millon played outstanding defense for the Piranhas.

The Pomona Sharks also won their Pop Warner contest, beating the Fontana Elks 6-0. The lone score in the game came in the second quarter on a one-yard run by quarterback Rodney Dixon.

Hard running by Shark fullbacks David Palmer and Brad Carrow sparked the Shark offense. In the hard fought defensive struggle the highlight was an inspired goal line stand by the Sharks in the final seconds of the game.

The Sharks stopped the determined Elks on seven consecutive plays inside the Shark 10-yard line to preserve the win. Damian Beeks, Russell Jackson, Carey Shepard and Gary White led the Shark defensive effort.

The Diamond Bar Dons nabbed a Midget Division win, beating the Montclair Marauders 12-8.

The Don scores were recorded on a pass from Louie Lopez to Chris Burrell and a 15-yard run by Arnold Neri.

The Diamond Bar Bandits also were victorious, recording their fourth shutout of the season in a 13-0 win over the Ontario Bears. Rich Oseguera got the Banditos off and running with a 95-yard punt return for a TD. Harold Lee followed with the second Bandito tally, a 67-yard scoring jaunt.

Al Bertram, Tom Carcelli, Todd Herrington, Rene Perez and Kevin Steussel led the stingy Bandito defensive unit.

The Diamond Bar Chiefs did not fare as well, losing 33-7 to the powerful Ontario Packers. Todd Woods recorded the lone Chief score.

Other Pop Warner results saw the Upland Chargers down the Diamond Bar Gauchos 14-0 while the Upland Rams blanked the Diamond Bar Lobos, also by a 14-0 score.

Mario Roman KOs Pasumil

HONOLULU (UPI) — Mexican Mario Roman knocked out Cris Pasumil of the Philippines in the second round of their scheduled 10 round main event Tuesday night at the Honolulu International Center.

Roman, who weighed in at 138 pounds for the fight, sent Pasumil down at 1:50 in the second round. Pasumil fought the fight at 136 ¾.

In a companion 10-round main event, Al Gutierrez of the Philippines scored a unanimous decision over Jose Luis Flores of Mexico. Gutierrez weighed 116 ½ pounds and Flores tipped the scales at 113 ¾.

In preliminary action: Modesto Dayaganon won a six round decision over Shinobu Fujita, Kiyoshi Kazama took a six round decision from Mitsuyuki Nakane; and Virgilio Amano knocked out Joe Estrella in the second round of their scheduled four-rounder.

49er coach okays rookie

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rookie Dennis Morrison will probably get the nod again at quarterback Sunday when the San Francisco 49ers call on Los Angeles.

Coach Dick Nolan hasn't made it official but he seemed reasonably pleased with Morrison's showing in a 17-13 loss to Detroit Monday night where the southpaw signal-caller showed his inexperience but kept his cool.

Washington has top recruiting budget

SEATTLE (UPI) — Washington, which lost nine of 11 football games last season, has the largest recruiting budget for that sport among teams in the Pacific 8 Conference, it was reported Tuesday.

The Huskies, who lost all their conference football games in 1973, spend $60,000 to $70,000 a year trying to persuade top players to attend the school, according to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

By comparsion, the recruit budget for Southern California, which has gone to the Rose Bowl as conference champion six times in the last eight years, was listed at $39,000, next to the lowest amount for the Pac-8 schools.

In basketball, the P-I said Oregon was the big recruiting spender at $30,000 a year. By contrast, UCLA, winner of seven straight NCAA championships during the past decade, spends $6,000 to $8,000 a year, less than all but one of the conference schools.

However, Oregon Athletic Director Nov Ritchey, when asked about rumors that Duck basketball coach Dick Harter spent $60,000 recruiting last year, answered: "I suppose it got up that high one year."

The P-I's list of football recruit budgets included: Washington, $60,000 to $70,000; California, $53,000; Oregon, $50,000, Washington State, $47,000; UCLA, $45,000; Oregon State, $42,000; USC, $38,000; and Stanford, $20,000.

In basketball, the newspaper's list was: Oregon, $30,000; California, $28,000; Washington State, $24,000; Washington, $15,000; Oregon State, $13,000; Stanford, $9,000; UCLA, $6,000 to $8,000; and USC, $6,000.

The P-I said one of the major reasons that California schools tend toward the bottom of the list is high travel costs for northern Pac-8 schools which hope to lure blue chip athletes from the more populated California.

UFOs attracting interest in Texas

By ANDREW A. YEMMA

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The UFOs are back!

A colorful circle of lights in the remote Texas hill country is said to be attracting alien aircraft that travel at 10,000 miles an hour, and a research group studying UFOs has released a photograph purporting to prove it.

Members of "Project Starlight International" say the photograph was taken the night of Oct. 2, and shows a brilliantly lighted Unidentified Flying Object traveling more than 10,000 m.p.h. about 100 miles above Earth.

They report that the craft made two sharp turns within 2 to 4 seconds — maneuvers that would tear a manmade object to shreds.

Ray Stanford, director of the group, said the UFO was photographed on ordinary black-and-white film through a 300 millimeter lens with the shutter left open for several seconds.

The picture shows a trail of light along a wavy line moving east to west with a sharp left and a sharp right turn in the center. Stanford said the UFO shut down its lights before the camera's shutter closed.

"This is a typical maneuver for UFOs," Stanford said. "We believe UFOs have some control over gravity and inertia."

Stanford's group constructed a circle of about 100 lights in the seven colors of the spectrum during a number of reported UFO sightings in the fall of 1973.

In the center of the display west of Austin is a spotlight which blinks "dot-dot-dot-dash," the numerical equivalent of the Greek letter pi, which they believe some intelligent creature might identify.

He said on Oct. 22, 1973, his crew of observers spotted two lights in the sky where stars were not supposed to be.

"They were oval shaped white objects. The four of us aimed our camera lenses at them and they turned down their lights just like a rheostat. Then they disappeared.

"Within four minutes two Phantom jets from Bergstrom Air Force Base came zooming in closer to our site than they ever had come before. They were followed by a prop plane. It's quite possible they sighted the same things we did."

Stanford says he has seen dozens of UFOs since he began his research project in Arizona in 1964. He said most sightings can be explained. It's the others that interest him.

"I cannot rest at ease until this thing is solved," he said. "We are not interested in collecting UFO stuff, but scientific data and we are attempting to see if a UFO will respond to intelligent signals."

The Air Force, which is the U.S. government's official investigatory agency for UFO's, doesn't take data from civilians, Stanford said, so his information is shared with other UFO research groups in California, Arizona, Illinois and Maryland.

He said he believes creatures that pilot UFO's aren't necessarily super-intelligent and haven't developed means of flight incomprehendible to man.

"They don't have to be any more intelligent than we are, just about 10 years ahead of us. This kind of work is going on in highly secret projects today and we'll probably have something like this in 10 to 15 years," he said.

Stepin Fetchit loses bid for trial by jury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today refused to order a jury trial to decide whether black actor Stepin Fetchit was defamed when a television documentary said he portrayed "the tradition of the lazy, stupid, crap-shooting, chicken stealing idiot."

Fetchit, who sued under his real name of Lincoln Theodore Perry, 72, said he was entitled to a full jury trial to air his complaint that the documentary was "baseless commentary" holding him "up to hatred, contempt or ridicule" and thereby destroying his entire career.

The black actor sued CBS, the Xerox Corp., which sponsored the broadcast on black history, and WISH television, Indianapolis, Ind.

Ferry hits rock; 300 on board OK

SITKA, Alaska (UPI) — The Alaska ferry Columbia limped into Sitka with 300 passengers Monday night after striking a rock in choppy seas.

The 418-foot ferry, the newest and most modern of the state ferry fleet, brushed a rock in the Sturgis Narrows early Monday while en route to Juneau.

After discharging its passengers and 58 vehicles at Sitka, the ferry prepared for a slow trip to Seattle, Wash., for repairs.

There were no injuries when the double-bottomed ferry hit East Francis Rock during high winds a few miles out of Sitka.

Amnesty plan helps cook find job

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Robert Lee Green's failure to sign up for the draft in 1970 may turn out to be the best mistake he ever made. It could give him a full time job for the first time since he dropped out of school three years ago.

Green, the first Pittsburgh man to apply for President Ford's conditional amnesty program for draft dodgers and deserters, said his problems with the federal government began on his 18th birthday, Sept. 13, 1970.

"I forgot to sign up for the draft," he said. "I thought they were supposed to send you a letter, and I just forgot."

He tried unsuccessfully three times to volunteer for the Army. But, he said, "I flunked the first test by five points, the second by two and third one by one."

He registered with the draft board in 1973, but a short time later he was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of failure to register when he turned 18.

He pleaded innocent on the advice of his attorney last July and was awaiting trial when he got a letter from the government advising him he could opt for the amnesty program.

A talk with his lawyer, John V. Adams Jr., convinced him accepting amnesty was the right course.

"He (Adams) said that if I hadn't taken the amnesty I might have had a jury trial and gotten some time," Green said. "And then he told me I might want to take the amnesty since I ain't never been in no trouble. So I decided to take the amnesty."

Green, 22, hopes to find a job cooking —a career he said he became interested in about a year ago by "watching my mother."

He already has had some training at the Opportunities Industrialization Center and some experience working on a grill at a short-order restaurant. He said keeps in practice in by baking rolls and cakes for his family and friends.

He hasn't found a job yet, but he said now that the Selective Service will find him one if he doesn't find his own by Nov. 1, he is no longer worried about it.

"I feel great," Green said.

His attorney said, "For an individual like Bob, I think it is an excellent idea. Now I hope he can get a job where he will get meaningful training no matter how menial the work.

Ears said better off unwashed

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Children who refuse to wash their ears may be right, according to Dr. Rudolf Link of the Hamburg Ear, Nose and Throat Clinic.

Link told the newspaper Hamburg Morgenpost "Ear wax is not dirt. It protects the drum of the ear. There is no place for soap and water in these sensitive organs."

Stage hopefuls get exposure at nation's amusement parks

By DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — Want to get into show business? Don't come to Los Angeles or go to New York. Go to Arlington, Tex., or Orlando, Fla., or a few other places like that, spots which are gigantic in recent show business history.

It sounds funny but it's true. Today the biggest employer of show business talent is the amusement park industry, especially those huge theme parks such as Disneyland, Walt Disney World and the various Six Flags parks.

Scattered across the nation, these frolicsome acres employ hundreds of young kids, singers and dancers mostly, who are getting their first shot at professional show business.

David Blackburn produces the shows for Six Flags which has large amusement parks in Texas, Georgia and Missouri with smaller operations elsewhere in Texas and in California.

Among them all, Blackburn employs around 500 performers. He holds auditions every year and every year he personally auditions, he says, perhaps 5,000 youngsters.

He auditions generally around the city where he needs the talent — Dallas-Fort Worth, Atlanta, St. Louis—but when his staff has the time it goes further afield in search of fresh young faces and voices. Once, he went to Provo, Utah, which he remembers most because an Indian boy came in and danced with a snake. They didn't hire him.

Once performers are hired Blackburn puts them to work in shows at one or another of the parks. Generally, they are amateurs at first, but quickly become pros, although not what you'd call overpaid. They work for salaries of a bit more than $3 an hour.

Blackburn's counterpart with the Disney organization is Bob Janni, who produces all the shows and parades for Disneyland and Walt Disney World.

"The live entertainment business changed with the decline of nightclubs," Janni says. "Today its a different ball game than it was five years ago. Today, the buying power of outdoor amusement parks is significant."

Janni says that he is currently running the only showroom in the country that is open every day of the year—the Top of the World room in the Contemporary Hotel at Walt Disney World in Florida.

Over the years, much new talent has been developed at the amusement parks. Janni is proud that the first professional engagement of the Osmond Brothers was at Disneyland some years back.

And Blackburn takes satisfaction in the emerging careers of some of his alumni—Cissy King and Ralna English, both now with The Lawrence Welk Show, and Betty Buckley, recently starring on Broadway in "Pippin," got their starts as youngsters in the Six Flags shows.

"John Denver worked at Six Flags Over Texas," Blackburn says, "but he wasn't in one of our shows—for some reason, he never auditioned as a singer, but worked as a gunfighter in the park."

Janni had 98 college students working in his parks last summer, in a program he ran in conjunction with California School of the Arts. They came from 37 different universities. It was, for virtually all of them, their first business.

BACK AGAIN—John Stewart, popular folksinger, will perform in the new University Union at Cal Poly at 7:30 and 10 p.m. Friday. Stewart attended Pomona Catholic High School and Mt. San Antonio College. He is a former member of the Kingston Trio.

John Stewart

Folksinger plans Cal Poly concert

John Stewart, Pomona's most famous folk singer, will perform in the new University Union at Cal Poly at 7:30 and 10 p.m. Friday. Tickets are $2.50, students $2.

Stewart, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart of Claremont, attended Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic School in Claremont, Pomona Catholic High School (now Damien) and Mt. San Antonio College. He lived in Pomona for several years and was a carrier for the Progress-Bulletin.

Stewart was part of the Furys, a local rock group, while at MSAC. He began to make a national reputation with the Cumberland Three, and later he became a member of the already famous Kingston Trio. When the group dissolved, he went his own way as a composer, guitarist and singer whose style has been described as western-folk-rock.

Besides numerous best-selling albums with groups, Stewart has had many hit albums of his own, including "California Bloodlines," "Willard," "The Lonesome Picker Rides Again," "Sunstorm," "Cannons" and his most recent, "Phoenix Concerts." Among his own compositions are "Chilly Winds," "Armstrong," "Durango," "July, You're a Woman," "Never Going Back to Nashville," "All Time Woman" and "Back in Pomona."

Cal State Fullerton does Williams drama

The theater arts department of Cal State Fullerton will present "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" in the Little Theater at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer Prize-winning drama opens the university's 15th mainstage season. Reservations can be obtained by calling the theater box office, (714) 870-3371, weekdays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dr. Ronald K. Dieb, associate professor of theater, directs. Sets are by William H. Raoul, assistant professor of theater; costumes by drama student Joe Yakovetic; and lighting by Darrell F. Winn, assistant professor of theater.

Members of the cast are Kent Benedict, Alex Golson, Ron Coffman, Michelle Dutch, Mike Putnam, Sandy Hatfield, Jack Cantwell and Susan Payer.

"Cat," currently enjoying a professional revival at the Lincoln Center in New York City, has been described by the playwright as dealing with "human extremities of emotions." Against his favorite background of the Mississippi Delta region, Williams creates members of a close-knit family who have been lying to each other for years and are now faced with some basic truths.

MEETIN' & EATIN' at BETSY ROSS
By GENE NEIGHBORS

Hi, Neighbors,

In for lunch on October 7th at Betsy Ross Claremont was REV. LEE PRYOR of Pomona, with his guest, REV. PETER SOLOMON, Executive Secretary of the Convention of Churches, Bamoh Madhya Pradesh, India. REV. PRYOR, retired as minister of the First Christian Church of Pomona after fourteen years' service there, is now serving as interim pastor of the East San Diego Christian Church. LEE said to tell the Pomona Host Lions he would be visiting soon to help keep Rev. HERSHEL RICE in line. Good luck down South, LEE.

Fall lends zip to the appetite as well as to the air, so when you're feelin' really hungry, try one of our delicious dinners to satisfy that feelin'. Have you had our Chicken in a Basket? It's great for only $2.45. One-half plump chicken, cut into four pieces, deep fried to a golden brown, served with French fries, soup or salad . . . yum. Treat your wife to an evening out of the kitchen when she's had a hard day with the kids, or at her own office position.

CAROL, waitress at Upland Coffee Shoppe, reports that GREG PORTER enjoyed his 10th birthday celebration at their Betsy Ross on October 8th, and we wish him many more.

Do ya yearn for a farm breakfast such as you had when a child, maybe visitin' an aunt in the country at Thanksgiving? Don't give up, try our cuisine some Saturday or Sunday morn, if you don't have time before goin' to work durin' the week. Nothin' beats our sausage patties, when combined with the right number of eggs, done to your order, or a stack of steamin' pancakes, or a hearty waffle (or if you're hungry enough, a combination!) Man, that puts stamina in your stride. Of course, we have smaller breakfasts for the dainty eaters, and we serve them until 11:30 AYEM.

Gypsy troupe to perform at the Shrine

Rajka, Hungary's colorful gypsy company of dancers and musicians, will perform at Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Currently on its second tour of the United States under the aegis of Hurok Concerts, it presents a program of music and dance ranging from classical Hungarian works to military hussar dances to wild gypsy numbers.

"Rajko" is literally translated as 'gypsy youth' and every member of the company is descenced from gypsy musicians. In addition to the violins and other string instruments, authentic cimbaloms, or dulcimers, an instrument of trapezoid shape with metal strings and played with two small hammers, are featured.

Tickets for this Variety Concerts presentation are now on sale at all Mutual ticket agencies.

Ford, wife get Polish invitation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President and Mrs. Ford have been invited to visit Poland by Polish Communist leader Edward Gierek.

A joint U.S.-Polish communique issued Sunday said that the Fords had accepted the invitation but that no date had been set for the trip.

AN OLD STORY RE-READ — People in Albany, where Nelson Rockefeller ran New York State as governor for 15 years, are looking up long-forgotten copies of the "Goldberg Book." The book, published during the Rockefeller-Goldberg gubernatorial race in 1970, has created a story of controversy that may affect Rockefeller's confirmation as vice president. Here, Humphrey S. Tyler of Albany, a veteran writer, reads his copy with the New York State Capitol building in the background.

Our nuclear waste: where do you put it?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If the nuclear power industry grows as expected by the Atomic Energy Commission, the United States will accumulate 80,000 10-foot tall canisters of highly radioactive atomic waste during the next 25 years.

The unwanted byproducts of nuclear energy must be kept out of the environment for many centuries —thousands of years in some cases —until it decays to safe levels.

The question is: where do you put it?

The AEC last month said it plans to store the waste material temporarily in special surface storage plants that may be located in Nevada, Idaho or the state of Washington. Eventually, however, permanent disposal will be required so future generations won't have to worry about it.

A few years ago, the AEC planned to dispose of the wastes 1,000 feet deep in an abandoned salt mine near Lyons, Kan. But concern about possible water seepage into the storage area and political pressure forced the commission to give up the plan for that site in 1972.

Dr. Frank Pittman, director of waste management for the AEC, said surface storage facilities will be used for two or three decades until permanent disposal methods are perfected, probably in underground rock or salt formations.

A variety of other disposal schemes have been proposed during the past few years including rocketing wastes into space, depositing them on a polar ice cap, dumping them into the deep ocean or placing them in a volcano.

A new suggestion was published in the current issue of EOS, the journal of the American Geophysical Union. Dr. Isaac J. Winograd, a research hydrologist for the U.S. Geological Survey, suggested that nuclear wastes be buried at shallow depths beneath mesas and plateaus in the deserts of the southwest.

Such areas, he said, were particularly good sites for disposal because of the greath depth of the water table. The wastes could be placed at the bottom of holes drilled 50 to 100 feet deep in dry rock or in tunnels driven into the sides of mesas or plateaus.

The problems with such a plan, he said, would be predicting climatic changes and erosion rates over the thousands of years the materials would have to be buried.

"Although the climate of much of the southwest is arid to semi-arid today, it has been considerably wetter in the geologic past and may well become so in the future, resulting in possible transport of dissolved wastes to the water table," Winograd said.

The question of disposal of wastes in Antarctica was raised a few weeks ago by the Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research, a group representing the United States, Russia and 11 other nations involved in polar research.

It would be nice to have a savings account that earns top interest.

It would also be nice to have a savings account you can dip into anytime.

With this in mind, we suggest you stop by your nearest Bank of America office.

We have Certificates of Deposit that earn 7¼% annual interest. All you need is a minimum investment of $1,000 for at least 4 years. Or as many as 10 years if you wish. Republican incumbents are strong in New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — It looks like a good year for Republican incumbents in New Hampshire, a state which has merrily gone its own way since it snitched the British gunpowder to fight the king's troops at Lexington and Concord in 1775.

Veteran politicians predict reelection wins for Gov. Meldrim Thomson and Rep. James C. Cleveland, and for Rep. Louis Wyman, who wants to move up to the Senate seat held by the retiring Norris Cotton. All are Republicans.

With October one-third gone, the one close fight shapes for the seat Wyman is vacating. Auto dealer David Banks, a Republican, faces strong competition from Democrat Norman D'amours, nephew of a former state attorney general.

Both are considered conservatives. The turning point may be the fact that D'amours, a French-Canadian, is a native of Manchester. The state's largest city, which is largely Democratic and conservative, likes to vote for home town boys.

Banks is campaigning on the fact that he has had experience in Washington, four years in a high post in the General Services Administration.

Inflation is a dominant theme in most of the New Hampshire campaigns, but there is a Watergate angle to the Senate race.

Former Insurance Commissioner John Durkin, the Democratic nominee who is given to "quotable quotes," has hit hard at Wyman's role in introducing Ruth Farkas to Maurice Stans, Richard Nixon's former campaign finance chairman.

Mrs. Farkas, named ambassador to Luxembourg soon after Nixon's re-election, donated $300,000 to former president's campaign. The dates of her meetings with Stans, and when the money was promised, have not been firmly established.

Wyman says he is too smart to have been involved in anything illegal. He says charges he helped engineer the Farkas appointment are a smear.

New Hampshire, population 800,000, is the only state in the nation with neither a general sales nor income tax. Property taxes are high. The fight about where the tax burden should lie is the perennial major issue in state races. Whether a politician is considered a liberal or a conservative depends on whether he is for or against broad-based taxes.

Thomson is running strong on the slogan "He kept his word— no new taxes." Nashua attorney Richard Leonard says he would not approve such a tax, but as a state legislator he voted to put the question of broad-based taxes to the voters in a referendum—and some New Hampshire voters equate that with original sin.

Republicans opposed to Thomson's strongly conservative philosophy and what Leonard calls his "one man rule" are organizing to support Leonard's campaign.

Stewart Lamprey, a staunch Republican who three times was speaker of the House and three times Senate president, shifted his support to the Democrat on grounds Thomson had been responsible for a federal audit of his Leonard's taxes. Thomson denied it.

Lamprey still simmers from an incident that occurred three weeks after the governor took office in 1973. Lamprey and two other of Thomson's political foes had their confidential state business profits tax files searched by the governor's top aide.

Cleveland is judged a shoo-in for a seventh term in the 2nd Congressional District, which includes all western New Hampshire and the conservative and scantly developed north country.

Cleveland eschews any thought of using his office to become a national political figure, and campaigns on the platform of personal service for his constituents.

"I'm running on my record of 12 years of service to the people in communities in my district. That is not going to be completely overshadowed by events in Washington," he said, discounting Watergate influence in New Hampshire.

His Democratic opponent, Helen Bliss, maintains Cleveland has lost touch with the people, citing his votes against minimum wage legislation, extended day care funding and most of the costlier social problems.

Cleveland argues most of the country's economic woes were caused by 20 years of Democratic control of Congress.

Innocent plea to charges of crash murders

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — Nancy Lynne Reeve, 18, Victorville, pleaded innocent Wednesday to a charge she murdered a minister and his wife by crashing head-on into their car in an attempt to commit suicide.

The Rev. Hiawatha Crain of the Missionary Baptist Church of Victorville and his wife Jacqueline were killed in the crash in August. Miss Reeve's trial was scheduled to begin Dec. 2 in Superior Court.

20% more of doctors in direct patient care

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nearly 20 per cent more physicians are engaged today in direct patient care than 10 years ago, according to figures released by the American Medical Association.

The figures, contained in a thick report on physician distribution, show 86.4 per cent of the nation's 288,424 non-federal physicians are located in metropolitan areas.

This, according to the AMA, is one non-federal physician for every 629 civilians in the United States.

The report, which reflects the physician count at the beginning of 1974, makes no attempt to measure the adequacy of physician distribution. "No commonly accepted standard exists that can be applied nationally for such an evaluation," the AMA said.

The tables show a national rate of 159 non-federal physicians for every 100,000 civilians. New York had the highest rate among the states, 195, physicians per 100,000 population, but it was even higher in the District of Columbia—339.

The figures show a continuation during the past 10 years of the trend toward specialization, with the number of general practitioners declining by 26.6 per cent. The number of specialists increased 43.7 per cent.

Of the 388,379 physicians in the United States, 36.8 per cent are in general practice, internal medicine or general surgery. General practice still had the highest proportion of all categories, 14.7 per cent, but in 1931 the proportion was 75.7 per cent and in 1949 53.5 per cent.

One of the most dramatic increases shown in the statistics is the total of women physicians. The number has increased 76.5 per cent in 10 years. Women physicians now represent 8.3 per cent of the total physician population.

Here is the ratio of non-federal physicians engaged in patient care for every 100,000 civilians, state by state:

Alabama 82, Alaska 78, Arizona 131, Arkansas 81, California 168, Colorado 150, Connecticut 169, Delaware 121, Florida 127, Georgia 102, Hawaii 140, Idaho 87, Illinois 125, Indiana 92, Iowa 89, Kansas 104, Kentucky 94, Louisiana 105, Maine 101, Maryland 159, Massachusetts 177. Good hot soup is doubly satisfying

NEW YORK (UPI) — A good soup can be doubly satisfying these crisp fall days. It can warm you when you are chilly while it eases the strain on your food budget.

If the soup you make is hearty, it also can satisfy your family's nutritional needs for a complete meal, provided you serve a salad and either a sandwich or bread and cheese with it.

Many soup recipes call for meat or poultry stock as an ingredient. Canned and concentrated soups, dried bouillon mixes and bouillon cubes can be substituted. But it is both easy and economical to make your own stock, using bones leftover from roasts and fowl.

If you have a large freezer, accumulate bones in a large container to be used as needed. Ham, pork and lamb bones should be stored separately. They are particularly good for bean soups but may be too strong for others.

The following directions for bone stock, a pea puree casserole and clam chowder are from The Sendout, the employe publication of Brooklyn Union Gas, a public utility.

Bone Soup Stock

Place leftover bones in a large saucepan. Add 6 to 8 cups of water, salt, peppercorns and a bay leaf or celery tops. Bring slowly to a boil and simmer 2 to 3 hours. If water evaporates too quickly, add another cup or so as needed. Cool stock a few minutes, strain it into a metal bowl and immerse the bowl in cold water to cool rapidly.

Ladle the cooled stock into storage containers and refrigerate or freeze. To lessen the chance of food spoilage, do not leave the stock at room temperature longer than half an hour.

Yellow Pea Puree With Bacon

Bring 6 cups of water to boil in a dutch oven or heavy saucepan. Add 2 cups of dried yellow split peas, rinsed and drained, 1 cup each of finely chopped carrots and celery and thinly sliced leeks (optional), one half cup of finely chopped onion, one and a half teaspoons of salt and one fourth teaspoon of dried leaf marjoram. Cover partially and simmer over low heat about 45 minutes, or until peas are soft and most of the liquid is absorbed. Force the vegetables through a food mill or a sieve over a bowl and transfer to a 2-quart lightly greased baking dish.

Dice 4 to 6 slices of bacon and brown lightly in a small skillet. Remove and drain bacon and leave 2 tablespoons of the rendered fat in the skillet. Lightly brown 1 medium onion, thinly sliced, in the bacon fat. Place onion rings on the puree, sprinkle with the bacon and drizzle with 3 tablespoons of butter or margarine, melted. Bake in a 400-degree oven about 20 minutes, or until top of puree is golden and lightly crusted. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

New England Clam Chowder

In a dutch oven or heavy saucepan over low heat, cook one fourth cup of diced salt pork until golden brown. Drain and reserve pork. Melt 3 tablespoons of butter or margarine in drippings. Add three fourths cup of chopped onion and cook until soft but not brown. Blend in one third cup of flour; stir until smooth. Drain 3 (ten and a half ounce) cans of minced clams, reserving liquid. Add water to the liquid to measure 3 cups. Stir liquid into onion mixture. Add 4 cups of peeled, diced potatoes and one fourth teaspoon of ground white pepper. Cover and cook until tender, stirring occasionally. Add clams, 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine and 3 cups of milk, scalded. Taste and add salt if necessary. Heat to serving temperature but do not boil. Sprinkle with paprika and top with diced pork. Makes about three and a half quarts.

Give careful study to buying bulk beef

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With large supplies of beef expected to hit the market soon, dollar conscious consumers may find some excellent deals for their freezers, but the Agriculture Department says there are some key decisions that should be made before buying a side or quarter of beef.

It is important to know how much meat can be stored in the freezer, the amocnt your family can use within a reasonable time and the kind of cuts and quality your family prefers.

By buying a whole carcass, side or quarter of beef, consumers receive a wide variety of cuts from the highest to the lowest priced. Most locker and freezer outlets will convert cuts you do not want to use "as is" into ground meat or stew meat.

A carcass, side or quarter is normally sold by its hanging weight which means the weight before cutting and trimming. The amount of meat you take home will be considerably less. For a beef carcass, loss due to bone, fat trim and shrinkage could vary from 20 to 30 per cent (at a 25 per cent cutting loss rate, a 300-pound side of beef would yield 225 pounds of usable cuts).

The department says a rule of thumb for carcass beef is 25 per cent waste, 25 per cent ground beef and stew meat, 25 per cent steaks and 25 per cent roasts.

A hindquarter of beef will yield more steaks and roasts but will cost more per pound than a forequarter. A forequarter, which contains the rib roasts, has more of the less tender cuts than the hindquarter because the chuck, or shoulder, makes up about half the forequarter's weight.

The yield of usable lean meat, however, is greater in the forequarter than the hindquarter.

Calculating the yield from the two quarters of a 300-pound side of beef, here are the cuts and amount of waste that could be expected:

Hindquarter (144 pounds): Round steak, 27 pounds; rump roast (boneless), 9.9 pounds; porterhouse, T-bone, club steaks, 15.3 pounds; sirloin steak, 24.9 pounds; flank steak, 1.5 pounds; lean trim, 21.0 pounds; kidney, .9 pounds; and waste, 43.5 pounds.

Forequarter (156 pounds): Rib roast (7-inch cut), 18.3 pounds; blade chuck roast, 26.7 pounds; arm chuck roast (boneless), 17.4 pounds; brisket (boneless), 6.3 pounds; lean trim, 49.2 pounds; and waste, 8.1 pounds.

When trying to determine whether you can save money by buying beef in quantity, take into account the yield you will get from the carcass, the quality of the meat and the costs of cutting, wrapping and quick-freezing. Find out whether these costs are included in the price per pound or if you'll have to pay extra for them.

Also consider how long meat can be stored before it loses quality. Properly wrapped meat cuts, stored at zero degrees, can be stored for 8 to 12 months, but they can be safely frozen for longer periods although there will be a quality loss.

For large meat purchases, it's best to get the freezing done by a commercial establishment properly equipped to do the job because quick freezing causes less damage to meat fibers.

If you wrap the cuts yourself, remember proper wrapping is as important as proper storage. Use moisture proof wraps such as heavy aluminum foil, heavily waxed freezer paper or specially treated papers. Seal the packages well and mark them with the date.

And the rule in using frozen meat should be first in, first out.

Driver killed in trail accident

COLTON (UPI) — A 25-year-old man was killed and his passenger was injured late Saturday when they were thrown from a four-wheel drive vehicle that overturned on a trail in Riche Canyon.

James R. Williamson of Loma Linda died when the vehicle overturned on top of him.

David V. Bradley, 25, of Grand Terrace was thrown clear of the vehicle and taken to a nearby hospital.

Baking own bread has many benefits

Who, me? Bake Bread? Now just hold on a minute. Baking bread is not difficult. Anyone who has ever done it can tell you, and probably with great zeal, about all the many benefits of making your own bread. Of course there's that great, "I did it all myself!" feeling. But if you've never baked bread, you'll be amazed at how absolutely therapeutic just the mixing and kneading process can be. And . . . what a wonderful way to greet the family at dinner time, with the aroma of fresh baked bread.

This new recipe from R. T. French Co., in Rochester, N.Y., adds a stream-lined touch to break baking.

Years ago leftover mashed potatoes were added to bread dough, making the end result a moister loaf that stayed fresh longer. Now you can modernize that trick by using instant potato granules or flakes.

Anadama bread is a traditional favorite that blends the flavors of molasses and corn meal for a slightly sweet, hearty bread. If the family doesn't devour it immediately, it makes breakfast something special with its nut-sweet flavor toasted to a turn. Country-style mashed potato flakes are the moisture makers in this recipe.

Of course you don't need to be told about another benefit of home-baked bread . . . it's nutritious . . . and you did it all by yourself.

ANADAMA BREAD

- 5½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup country-styled mashed potato flakes
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- ½ cup corn meal
- 2 cups boiling water
- ½ cup molasses
- 1-3rd cup shortening
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 eggs

Combine three cups flour, potato flakes and yeast. In large bowl, stir corn meal into boiling water; add molasses, shortening, and salt; cool to lukewarm. Add flour-yeast mixture and eggs. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for ½ minute, scraping bowl frequently. Beat 3 minutes at medium speed. Stir in enough flour to make a soft dough.

Knead on floured surface until smooth and elastic, 7 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease all surfaces. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, 45 to 60 minutes. Punch down, divide in half, cover, and let rest 10 minutes. Roll out each half on floured surface to 12-x7-inch rectangle. Roll up tightly, jelly roll fashion, starting with 7-inch side. Seal seams and ends. Place into two well-greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Cover and let rise again until double, 45 to 60 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, until deep golden brown. Remove from pans; cool. Makes 2 loaves.

Bill doubles size of park

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted and sent back to the Senate a bill to more than double the size of Grand Canyon National Park.

By voice vote, the House passed a bill that would increase the park from its present 674,000 acres to more than 1.4 million acres.

The House also approved a controversial amendment to give the tiny canyon-dwelling Havasupai Tribe 185,000 acres of land on the rim of the canyon.

The amendment was opposed by three members of the House Interior Committee Reps. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio, and John Delleback, R-Ore. They argued that carving the lands out of a national park would set a precedent that could result in the "dismantling" of the entire park system.

What changes in beef-grading mean to the consumer

If the U.S. Department of Agriculture changes the federal beef grading standards as recently proposed, what would it mean to you — the consumer?

John C. Pierce, Director of the livestock division of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, says the changes proposed are not drastic. Nevertheless, he believes the changes could have both long and short range benefits for consumers and would add both precision and efficiency to the production and marketing of beef.

The most significant effect, he feels, would be the long range one — one that could mean extensive reduction in the amount of excess fat on cattle — and on beef. This could mean substantial savings to both producers and consumers. The cost of producing, shipping, and trimming off excess fat on beef now runs to more than $2 billion annually.

Much of this cost could be avoided through increased production of "meat type" cattle. These are cattle which have the inherent ability to produce high quality beef, are thickly muscled, but yet have little excess fat when they reach market weights.

Genetic improvement of beef cattle along these lines takes time, says Pierce, but improvement could be hastened if superior meat-type cattle receive the recognition and consequently the market prices they merit.

Such recognition and pricing would be facilitated through one of the changes proposed in the beef grading system — the proposal to require that whenever beef is graded, it be graded for both quality and yield. (USDA yield grades run from 1 to 5 and measure the percentage of trimmed retail cuts.) This change would give carcass beef buyers and sellers a more complete and accurate indication of the carcass' market value. Pricing in accord with this value would encourage production and increase the supply of highly desirable beef available to consumers.

The short range effects of the proposed changes would be threefold, says Pierce: there would be (1) slightly leaner beef in the top grades; (2) a redesigned and more restrictive Good grade; and (3) more uniform eating quality in each of the higher grades, Prime, Choice, and Good.

The first of these — slightly leaner beef in the top grades — would be brought about by changing the marbling-maturity relationships for beef from young cattle under about 30 months of age.

Present grade standards operate on the premise that marbling (flecks of fat within the lean) enhances beef eating quality while increasing age has the opposite effect. Therefore, present standards require increasing amounts of marbling with an increase in age. But more recent research has shown that for young animals — those under 30 months of age — advancing age does not have a significant effect on eating quality. Therefore, USDA is proposing to reduce the marbling requirements within each grade, but only to the level now required for the youngest beef animals in the grade. Consumers would get slightly leaner beef in the Prime and Choice grades if this change is adopted.

The second short range effect relates only to the Good grade. The minimum marbling requirement for Good grade beef would be increased slightly, making the range of quality within the Good grade much narrower than it is now. The results would be a special, very uniform-quality grade of beef which should appeal to consumers who want beef with less internal and surface fat than they get in the Choice grade.

The third short-range effect would be increased uniformity and consistency in the eating quality within the Prime, Choice and Good grades of beef. This would be achieved by the proposal to eliminate conformation (shape of the carcass) as a quality grade factor. Confirmation has no effect on the eating quality of beef, but does relate to the yield of retail cuts in a carcass and thus to its value. Yield grades, however, are a better measure of the contribution of confirmation to retail value. Hence the proposal to drop conformation as a quality grading factor and require that when carcasses are graded they be identified for both quality and yield grade.

Pierce explains that dropping conformation would mean a more uniform quality in each grade because under the present system it is necessary to arrive at a "compromise grade" when quality and conformation differ. For example, a carcass with Prime quality meat, but only Good conformation, is graded as Choice even though it has none of the characteristics of the Choice grade carcass. Dropping conformation would eliminate this form of "compromise grading" and thus increase the uniformity and consistency of the eating quality within each of the grades.

USDA is soliciting public comments on these proposed changes. Your comments are invited. They would be sent, in duplicate, to the Office of the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Comments must be filed by Dec. 10 and will be available for public information.

NUTRITIONAL LABELING

To help consumers identify and select foods properly, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) has proposed a program for nutritional labeling of meat and poultry products. This proposal is very similar to the one which the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) issued early in 1973, governing nutritional labeling of other food products. If adopted, the USDA's label requirements would become effective January 1, 1975.

Essentially, labeling programs have two purposes: To improve the nutrition information available on labels and make it more meaningful to consumers.

USDA's labeling proposal for processors of meat and poultry products would be a voluntary one. However, under the following conditions, manufacturers would have to label their products: If a nutrient(s) is added to a food, a food is recommended for "special dietary use," if nutritional statements and claims are made on labels or in advertisements. (Iodized salt, sodium claims and statements, nutrients added for technological purposes or in federally "standardized products" would be exempt.

If a food were labeled according to USDA's current proposal, it would need to follow a standard format governing type and content of nutrition information and placement on the package. The format parallels FDA's requirement. Also, before becoming part of USDA's labeling program, a food processor would have to present a quality control inspection plan for approval.

To make information on food labels more meaningful to the public the new system would disclose "nutrition information per serving." That is, serving sizes, number of servings per container and nutrient content per serving.

One important aspect of USDA's proposal is that with certain foods which require cooking, the nutrition panel would also show the food value after cooking. This information would coincide with a statement explaining cooking instructions according to a common method of cooking the product — such as frying, broiling or baking — and might also include time and temperature needed.

Nutrients that must be declared are: calories, protein, carbohydrates, fat, vitamin A, vitamin C, three B-complex vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin and niacin), and the minerals calcium and iron. Protein, carbohydres and fat must be given in grams. In addition, protein and the above-mentioned vitamins and minerals must be expressed as percentages of U.S. RDA's. Don't let those initials scare you.

The U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA's) were established by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council. The Board set up specific amounts of 20 nutrients considered essential for good health, and "recommended" that these be eaten daily. So, the RDA's were adopted as the standard nutrient reference for all nutrition labeling.

By reading package labels and adding up the RDA's per serving that you are consuming, you will be able to tell whether or not your diet includes the suggested amount of nutrients. However, the regulations do not require listing all 20 RDA's. Only 8 — protein, vitamin A, vitamin C, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, calcium and iron. Twelve nutrients for which the RDA's have been established and the many other nutrients are essential to man. Therefore, it is vital that your diet includes appropriate amounts of foods from each of the four basic groups: milk and milk products; meat, poultry, fish and eggs; fruits and vegetables, and bread and cereals.

Nutritional labeling of foods climaxes several years of study and preparation involving every segment of the food processing and distribution system, including consumers and government agencies. It is an important step in better nutrition education and improved public nutritional status.

KEEPING FOOD SAFE TO EAT

Food quality is a fragile factor. Because of the nature of food products, they are susceptible to spoilage, nutrient loss, insect attack, changes in color, flavor, odor or texture and loss of functional properties (like leavening and thickening powers).

"Shelf Life", the time a food product maintains good quality as it passes from processor to consumer, varies with each food type. The shelf life of fresh foods is pretty much determined by nature. Food manufacturers have a lot to do with the shelf life of processed foods. In both cases, proper handling by distributors, retailers and consumers determine a product's keeping qualities.

Obviously, inadequate shelf life leads to consumer dissatisfaction, and at worst, illness or malnutrition. For these reasons, processors try to provide the longest shelf life practical, consistent with costs and handling patterns. Not only appropriate packaging, but also preservatives, antioxidants, emulsifiers and stabilizers are sometimes used to retard chemical and physical changes in stored foods.

Most perishable foods will clearly show evidence of spoilage. Nevertheless, there is always the potential danger that foods unfit for consumption will go undetected, for one reason or another. Cooking and refrigeration control bacterial hazards in food, but often foods become contaminated and cause illness simply because they are not handled properly in the home.

Given the complexities of food handling and storage, what should you as a consumer do? Here are a few safety rules. And for further information, write for a single free copy of FOOD SAFETY IN THE KITCHEN, a new leaflet from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the

Put a little (rum) punch into your Halloween party

Halloween is coming and that means it's harvest time!

Just like our forefathers did in the early days of our country, why not plan a harvest time get-together with verybody bringing one of the various courses to your house while you provide the punch and dessert (and a place to sit down and eat it).

A pumpkin can serve as your colorful and unusual punch bowl and centerpiece where guests can dip in and serve themselves a tasty rum punchkin.

It's easy to turn the pumpkin into a serving bowl. Just take a sturdy kitchen knife and cut off the top of the pumpkin, scalloping the edges, if you want to, for a pretty touch. Smooth out the bottom, then pour in the punch and add plenty of ice.

Have one of your guests bring country baked chicken and biscuits. Ask another to whip up the pizza wedge appetizers. Someone else can do the refreshing autumn fruit salad with a favorite dressing. Top it all off with rum-frosted brownies for dessert and a helping of punch.

RUM PUNCHKIN

In a large bowl mix:
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 cup lemon juice
- 2 cups cranberry juice
- 2 cups orange juice
- 2 cups strong tea
- 2 bottles white Puerto Rican rum

Pour into a hollowed-out pumpkin shell. Add ice cubes. Serves 12 people twice.

PIZZA WEDGE APPETIZERS

Buy frozen pizzas, or make them from a mix. Before baking, scatter the tops with sliced olives, thin slices of pepperoni or salami, anchovies, cubed cheese, pepper and onion rings. In fact, all the pizza fixings you can think of, or have available, can be used to make the pizzas deliciously appetizing. Add a little extra sauce and bake as usual. Cut in smallish wedges to serve. One frozen pizza will cut into 12 to 16 wedges.

COUNTRY-BAKED CHICKEN
- 2 large broiler-fryers, cut up
- 2 envelopes onion, chive or dill-flavored salad dressing mix
- 1 cup soft butter or margarine
- 2 cups corn flake crumbs
- 1-3rd cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Paprika

Rinse chicken pieces and wipe dry. Blend salad dressing mix with the butter or margarine and use a spatula to spread mixture over chicken pieces. Roll the chicken in combined crumbs and cheese. Sprinkle with paprika and bake, skin side up, in well-greased shallow pan at 375 degrees for 1 hour or until done. Makes 8 servings.

AUTUMN FRUIT SALAD

Prepare fruits in season—apples, oranges, grapefruit, avocadoes, others,—and arrange on large platter. Center with a cluster of grapes and scatter with canned pineapple chunks, grated carrot and raisins. Until serving, store in refrigerator to keep moist and fresh. Serve with a tangy creamy dressing.

RUM BUTTER FROSTING
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 package (1 pound) confectioners' sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 tablespoons cream
- Rum

Cream butter and beat in about half the sugar. Beat in vanilla and cream. Beat in remaining sugar. Continue to beat, adding rum a little at a time until frosting is of spreadable consistency. Makes enough to frost two big pans of brownies, made from your favorite recipe.

PUMPKIN POWER

October is pumpkin season. Time to welcome those round, orange vegetables that come alive for children at Halloween.

All pumpkins and squashes are of the same family, which also includes watermelons, cucumbers, muskmelons and gourds. There are no grades specifically for pumpkins, but the same selection criteria apply as to other winter squashes. They should be well matured, free from excessive scarring, indications of disease or freezing and generally rich in color. Most varieties of pumpkins do not keep as well as hard-shelled or winter squashes, and are subject to chilling injury at low temperatures.

Aside from the artistry of jack-o'-lantern carving, pumpkins provide the makings of spicy pies, breads, puddings, custards and soups. To cook a pumpkin, wash it and cut it in half, crosswise, Remove seeds and strings. Place in a pan, shell side up, and bake at 325 degrees for one hour or more, depending on size, until tender. Scrape the pulp from the shell, and if desired, put it through a ricer or strainer.

To add that special touch to your evening meal, serve Old World Pumpkin Puree with roast pork, lamb or duck.

OLD WORLD PUMPKIN PUREE
- 2 cups cooked mashed pumpkin
- 2 tablespoons butter, at room temperature
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon ground cardamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ⅛ teaspoon mace
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- ½ cup brandy

Combine all ingredients in a heavy saucepan. Cook over lowest possible heat, stirring constantly, until the puree is well blended and dry enough to keep its shape when served. Makes 4 servings.

Board will rehire all fired teachers

COMPTON (UPI) — The Compton Board of Education has rehired, or offered to rehire, all 325 teachers fired in a cutback because of declining school enrollment.

The Board of Education did not say why the teachers were reinstated, but a spokesman for the California Teachers Association said the board was reacting to indications that the teachers would win a lawsuit they filed. The board Tuesday night rehired 23 of the last 50 who had been dismissed. Twenty-seven refused the offer and the others were reinstated earlier.

WHAT'S IN STORE...

SUPER-SATISFIED?

Many times in this column, I've talked about our guarantee of quality and satisfaction. Alpha Beta shoppers have come to expect this guarantee. But it is always gratifying to hear from consumers who were especially pleased with that extra bit of service and friendliness which has also become a part of Alpha Beta's image. The most recent supermarket industry survey points out what we really knew already — this courtesy and quality is what the customer is looking for when selecting a supermarket.

According to the survey, other factors in selecting a favorite market are: store cleanliness, convenience, ample stock, freshness in perishables with plenty of variety, as well as good values. We try our best to provide all these for you, along with our special shopping helps — unit pricing, open dating, quality private label, and nutrition labeling.

We'd like to hear from you. Perhaps you can give us additional ideas to serve you better.

Entertaining can be easy, even if you live on a boat

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Year-round living aboard a boat conjures up all kinds of wishful thinking among the fireside set during chill wintry days.

For most of us, it is an idyllic dream, but some actually do make the dramatic shift from shore to ship. Bud and Lois Altman, for example, cut their apartment ties in Queens 10 years ago, after eight years of metropolitan life, and look back with no regrets on their decision.

Actually, Mrs. Altman revealed their current home aboard the 45-foot "LoBud" was all due to a honeymoon experience 18 years ago.

"We were having lunch at a dock side restaurant in Cape Cod. We saw a couple dining on the fantail of their boat at anchor and thought, 'What a lovely way to live.' We decided then to go into boating." They've never regretted it. This is their sixth boat.

While still in an apartment, the Altmans built their first—a 23-foot cabin cruiser. "We went to Power Squadron school and took a cruise to Lake Champlain. It was marvelous," she said.

"It finally reached a point where we were spending so much time—winter and summer—on a boat that we decided to live aboard all year."

For several years their floating home was docked at the World's Fair Marina in Flushing Bay, just a baseball fan whoop from Shea Stadium. There were 28 "live-ins" and this meant a great deal of open house living with many parties during Christmas and New Year's, Mrs. Altman said. However, for the last three years they have moored in a private marina in Westchester where they have access to a yacht club. There are only three other "live ins," which makes for less entertaining.

The Altmans have air conditioning and keep cozy in winter with a hot-air heating system. Since Mrs. Altman is sales-floor manager for Simmons Co. in Manhattan, she had a special hand in decorating the yacht and turned to crisp greens and white rather than nautical red, white and blue. A long shag rug was installed throughout the boat and fabric in a leaf design picks up her color scheme throughout. The boat sleeps six with a hide-a-bed sofa providing extra seating and sleeping room in the salon which merges into the all-electric galley. With a three-burner range, princess oven with rotisserie, refrigerator and small freezer she can whip up meals for eight at a sit-down dinner. However, Mrs. Altman prefers to serve buffet style with simple dishes such as beef fondue, lasagne or chicken breast parmigiana.

"We love to eat and I love to cook and entertain," she said. Since both work in Manhattan—he is a video engineer with Ogilvy & Mather, Inc., an advertising agency—they generally eat breakfast in the city and simple beef steak, chops or pot roasts when alone.

She plans her food shopping around meat buys, for example, and can get up to 13 steaks in her freezer. "I don't buy large economy-size cans, although we do have a fairly large pantry. We just don't use many canned items when docked but we do use frozen vegetables and mostly fresh fruits and vegetables."

During August the couple cruises the East Coast, going to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard. When on anchor they barbecue a lot and cook fish and seafood. But they must be careful not to stock too many foods, such as fresh milk, that will spoil because the generator runs on a two-hours-ons, two-off cycle. She makes salads such as a kidney bean, chick pea and corn salad and lots of clam dishes, since clamming is quick and easy for them.

They hope soon to make their first inland voyage to West Palm Beach, where they plan to retire—on their yacht. "The is going to be a one way trip to Florida," she said.

After 18 years of marriage and boating she gave this advice to other women whose husbands are boating enthusiasts:

"Try it. It's a great sport, peaceful. It's great to anchor in a cove and my husband is ten years younger when he starts that engine."

BAKED BLUEFISH

Clean bluefish and place whole in foil pan. Bake 20 or 25 minutes. Then spread mayonnaise on top side of fish and place under broiler. Broil quickly until skin puffs. This is good for other bland fish.

QUICKIE CLAM CHOWDER

- 2 cans vegetable soup
- 2 cans water
- 3 slices bacon cut into quarter pieces
- 1 teaspoon leaf thyme
- 1 small bottle clam juice
- 1 dozen fresh clams chopped or 2 cans whole baby clams
- 6 large ginger snap cookies

In a large skillet combine first 6 ingredients, bring to boil and then simmer gently 15 minutes. Crumble ginger snaps and add. Simmer another 10 minutes. Serve hot in bowls. Makes six servings.

HOT CRAB MEAT HORS D'OEUVRES

- 1 7½-ounce can crab meat
- 1 large package cream cheese
- ½ onion sauteed
- 1 teaspoon horseradish
- 1 teaspoon dry sherry or white wine

Mash ingredients together and press into 9-inch pie plate. Sprinkle with slivered almonds and bake in 350-degree oven until pie bubbles, about 15 minutes. Cut into wedges.

Take bland effect away from chicken

Chicken is an international favorite despite its being one of the blandest of all meats commonly eaten. To fit the tastebuds of people in various parts of the globe chicken is prepared with all types of spices. For example, there is the curried chicken of India, the paprika chicken of Hungary and the gingered chicken of the Orient. Mexican-style includes the use of cumin seeds and the Spanish use saffron. Want chicken a la Francaise? Use tarragon, thyme and bay leaves while some Italians reach for the anise to perk up their chicken dishes.

For those who are just beginning to experiment with spices and herbs in cookery, start simply with an Herbed Chicken Delicious which relies upon a touch of garlic and poultry seasoning and tomato to pep up this dish.

HERBED CHICKEN DELICIOUS

- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
- 2½ pound chicken, cut in serving-size pieces
- 3 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes, crushed
- ¾ cup water, divided
- ½ pound chicken livers, halved
- 3 tablespoons flour

Combine salt, poultry seasoning, black pepper and garlic powder, rub into all sides of the chicken. In a large skillet heat oil. Add chicken, a few pieces at a time; brown about 5 minutes on each side. Return all chicken to skillet. Add tomatoes, ½ cup of the water and chicken livers. Heat to boiling point; reduce. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until chicken is fork tender. Blend flour with remaining ¼ cup water. Stir into broth in skillet. Cook and stir 1 minute or until thickened. Serve with rice or noodles, if desired. Makes 6 portions.

Tungsten mine will be built in so. Nevada

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — The nation's second largest tungsten mine will be constructed at a cost of $21 million in southern Nevada, Union Carbide Corp. announced.

Vice President James Rawlings said the mine and mill operation would produce an estimated 1,000 tons of ore a day. Production at the facility, to be built near Alamo, is expected to begin in 1976.

The largest tungsten mine in the United States is near Bishop, Calif., and is also owned by Union Carbide.

An elegant entree on moderate means

Are you searching for an entree that looks like a million and tastes like it too? Probaly another requirement is that the cost of the ingredients doesn't strain the food budget. While you're dreaming, you might add that you'd be just as happy if this dream entree is also easily and quickly prepared. That's a tall order in any cook's kitchen—but dream on! You can have an elegant entree with little effort and only a moderate amount of money. Take another look at shrimp. The good news for consumers these days is that heavy inventories of shrimp have kept the supply well above last year, 25 percent higher in fact. Heavy inventories of any product usually result in more moderate prices at the retail level, and this is true especially on small frozen shrimp.

Another shrimply delightful thought to consider is that a little shrimp can go a long way when combined with other foods. Would you believe that one pound of small frozen shrimp can be extended to feed six hungry people with ease as well as pleasure?

In the following Creamy Shrimp and Noodles recipe, one pound of small frozen shrimp is extended in a savory sauce of sauteed onion, green pepper, can-dandy condensed cream of celery soup, milk, and pimiento. The hot, succulent shrimp sauce is served over tender, buttery noodles highlighted with parsley. This entree is as delicious to eat as it is quick to prepare, and it's sure to please the hungriest members of the family or the fussiest guests. What more could you ask of one pound of small frozen shrimp?

Another bonus is the fact that shrimp provide excellent quality protein and they are an exceptional source of many essential trace minerals. Shrimp can make a major contribution toward providing nutritionally balanced meals as well as being delightful to eat. While the supply is high, you might take advantage of this shrimp bonanza and store a few pounds in the freezer for future use. The price may be higher once the surplus is gone.

CREAMY SHRIMP AND NOODLES

- 1 pound peeled and deveined small frozen shrimp
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 4 tablespoons margarine or cooking oil
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 can (10¾ ounce) condensed cream of celery soup
- 1-3rd cup milk
- 2 tablespoons diced pimiento (optional)
- 1 package (8 ounce) noodles, cooked and drained
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Thaw shrimp. Cook onion in margarine or cooking oil until tender, but not brown. Add shrimp, green pepper, and ½ teaspoon salt; heat until shrimp turns pink and is done. Add soup, milk, and pimiento, if used. Heat well. Combine hot noodles, butter or margarine, remaining ½ teaspoon salt, and parsley; toss noodles until butter or margarine is melted. To serve, spoon shrimp mixture over hot noodles.

Turn budget dining into gourmet treat

All the experts agree that we are in an inflationary period, and that it is probably going to be a long siege. You could have told them that! Don't you wish someone would tell you how to continue feeding your family on a budget without boring them and yourself to death?

Two new recipes from the R. T. French Company prove that budget dining need not be dull. With one pound of ground beef you can turn mealtime into a Mexican fiesta.

Tacos on the Double are quick to fix from tortillas which you bake then fold, instead of frying. The taco filling is quick and easy, too, thanks to an envelope of Chili-O seasoning mix.

A Worcestershire sauce dressing makes Mexican American Salad the perfect taste-mate for your tacos.

Complete your fiesta menu with fruit punch, vanilla pudding topped with crushed pineapple and cookies.

TACOS — ON THE DOUBLE

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 envelope (1¾ ounces) chili-o mix
- 1 cup tomato juice
- 8 to 10 tortillas
- Softened butter or margarine
- Shredded cabbage
- shredded cheese, drained pickle relish

Brown ground beef in skillet, stirring to crumble; pour off excess fat. Stir in contents of Chili-O mix envelope and tomato juice; cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Arrange tortillas on greased baking sheet; brush with butter. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes. (Tortillas should begin to set, but still be flexible.) Remove from pan and fold in half to form shells. Spoon meat mixture into shells; top with cabbage, cheese, and pickle relish.

MEXICAN-AMERICAN SALAD

- ¼ cup oil
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 1 can (1 pound) garbanzo or kidney beans, drained
- 1 can (4 ounces) pimiento, drained and chopped
- 1 cup chopped celery

Combine oil, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar and parsley flakes. Combine beans, pimiento, and celery; add dressing and toss lightly.

Snacks need not be short on nutrition

Quick lunches for school children and for their busy mothers need not be short on nutrition. Savory Stuffed Egg Salad combines hard-cooked eggs and canned chicken spread spiced with a touch of curry. Kids will enjoy eating these with their fingers. Stuff several hard-cooked eggs, wrap them in plastic wrap or keep in plastic storage units in the refrigerator. These make good afterschool snacks and some will even enjoy them for breakfast. Mothers especially will find these give them more energy that lasts longer than the usual mid-morning snack of pastry and coffee.

SAVORY STUFFED EGG SALAD

- 4 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 4-¾ ounce can chicken spread
- ¼ cup minced celery
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder

Cut eggs lengthwise, remove yolks and combine with chicken spread, celery, mayonnaise and curry powder. Generously refill egg whites with this mixture. Sprinkle with paprika and serve on lettuce with carrot sticks for garnish. Makes 2 servings.

Boy burned by power line

CASTAIC (UPI) — A 14-yearold Saugus boy was burned seriously during the weekend after grabbing a 60,000 volt power line.

Sheriff's deputies said David Schilling climbed a 60-foot-tall high tension tower, touched the line and was knocked to the ground.

The boy was reported in good condition at Sherman Oaks Community Hospital.

Prices not bound by law of gravity

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the average American shopper spent approximately $511 last year at the supermarket (It is more than that now). This included certain nonfood and noessential food items for human consumption (beer, wine, distilled spirits, soft drinks, candy, paper goods, soaps, detergents, tobacco products, health and bauty aids, housewares, and pet food). Using this figure, the family of four would spend $2,044 annually excluding foods purchased outside the market.

Prices that go up are not bound by the law of gravity. As consumers, how can we cope with the spiraling situation? This applies not only to food, but all items and services.

As a food manager in a home, she can institute some innovations.

— Ask yourself, is my family eating more than they actually need? If this is the case, what and how much can be cut or substituted.

— Be honest to differentiate needs from wants. Make sure neds are met; cut down or cut off wants and frills.

— Learn the correct serving size of a given food. Most people underestimate a serving size. A list of correct serving sizes of food follows.

— Practice portion control. A family of four may need four, or more or less than four servings of any one food. If you expect to get a certain number of servings from a roast, a turkey, a meat loaf, a cake or the like, either serve the food on a plate in the kitchen, or take out the numbers of servings needed for that one meal, unless you are sure the family will resist indulgent eating.

— Take advantage of planting a home vegetable garden, no matter how small. A variety of salad vegetables will save money, give eating enjoyment and definitely encourage development of a healthful hobby.

— Can or freeze food if you have an abundant supply, and the know-how.

— Buy food by the number of servings expected — don't go by cost per unit alone.

— Conserve food nutrients the best way you can, saving food value is stretching the food dollar.

— Use more of your own resources: planning, time, energy, rather than relying on the ready-to-eats, although not all convenience foods are more expensive than the homemade.

— Most important of all, solicit and command the understanding and cooperation of your family members to make this a family campaign. A young person can drink a quart of milk at one sitting (you were glad he drank that instead of pop in the past). How about one serving of milk and several cups of cold, clean water. Meats, juices, desserts can be dealt with likewise.

Speaking of serving size, play commercial food service manager for a couple of days. Measure foods by a measuring cup or spoon. If you want, invest in an inexpensive postal scale and learn the size of a 3-oz. serving of meat, or a 6-oz. chicken leg with thigh. Once you learn the size by sight, it is not difficult to learn a serving size.

Security guard ambushed, shot with own gun

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Alvin Brown, 25, a security guard at UCLA, was in satisfactory condition at Daniel Freeman Hospital Thursday after being shot in the stomach by a man who stole his revolver.

Brown said he picked up two female hitchhikers and took them to an address where they said they lived. Brown said two men were waiting for him there in what was apparently an ambush, and they stole his revolver at knifepoint. He was shot when he tried to chase them, he said.

Select the cut of ham that's right for your purpose

Ham is a versatile meat, available in many different forms. And since pork supplies are relatively large, now is a good time to buy it. Here are some points from the U.S. Department of Agriculture on how to select the ham that's right for you.

Ham is available in a variety of cuts and can be prepared for either plain or fancy eating. It may be bought with some, all, or none of the skin, fat, and bone removed. You many buy a whole ham or just a portion. A bone-in whole ham may have a center roast or center slices cut from it, with the remainder sold as a rump portion and the shank portion. The shank portion includes the ham hock. You may also choose half a ham — either the shank half or the rump (butt) half. "Half" means that no slices have been removed, and "portion" means slices have been removed.

Ham is meat from the hind leg of a pig. It may be bought fresh, cured and and canned, or cured and smoked. A cured ham is a fresh ham that has been treated with special curing ingredients — primarily salt, sodium or potassium nitrate and-or nitrite and sugar — that add flavor and develop the typical red color. The liquid curing mixture is injected into the fresh ham before smoking. To be labeled "Ham," the ham must then be shrunk back to its fresh weight. If the ham is not returned to its original weight, it must be labeled "Ham — Water Added." If the added moisture is more than 10 per cent, the label must read "Imitation Ham."

A smoked ham has been subjected to the smoke of a special wood to give it its characteristic flavor. If you buy a country style ham (sometimes labeled Smithfield style) this is a dry salt cured ham that has been smoked slowly and dried for a long time as was done in the colonial days. To remove the excess salt, this kind of ham is usually soaked in water before it is cooked.

Cured hams are available in two styles — cook-before-eating, or fully cooked.

Fully cooked hams will be marked "cooked," "fully cooked," "Ready-to-eat", or "ready-to-serve." This ham may be sliced and served cold; or if you prefer to serve it hot, heat it until your meat thermometer reads 140 degrees.

Cook-before-eating hams should be baked until your meat thermometer reads 160 degrees.

Fresh (uncured) cuts should be cooked to an internal temperature of 170 degrees.

To bake a ham, place it fat side up on a rack in a shallow baking pan. Bake uncovered in a 325 degree oven. Do not add water. Ham slices may be broiled, pan broiled or fried.

Canned hams are solid boneless pieces of ham that are fully cooked during canning. The ham is cured but not smoked. Some but not all of the canned hams can be stored at room temperature. Check the label to see if any refrigeration is necessary. Refrigerate any canned ham after it is opened.

Cured ham may be stored in its original wrapper in the refrigerator for one to two weeks. If freezer-wrapped, it may be kept frozen for up to 60 days. However, frozen cured ham may lose some of its characteristic flavor. A dry salt-cured country-style ham can be stored without refrigeration.

Remember, don't judge a ham solely on its cost per pound. The cost per serving is the best way to determine whether it's a good buy.

Simply divide the number of servings per pound into the cost per pound and you'll have its cost per serving. Then you can decide which ham is best for you.

Lean park is a good source of high quality protein, and provides considerable amounts of iron and niacin (a B-vitamin). Also, pork contains a significant amount of thiamin, and this is important because there are fewer valuable food sources of this vitamin than of other known B vitamins. When pork is cooked, canned, cured or stored, some nutrients are lost. When it is roasted at low oven temperatures, the losses of B vitamins are smaller than when high cooking temperatures are used.

Many pork cuts are high in food energy because of their appreciable fat content. Pork fat, like some other common fats, contains fatty acids essential for normal growth and healthy skin.

HAM AND KIDNEY BEANS IN SHERRY

5 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium onion, finely chopped
2 large oranges or 3 small ones, peeled and pith removed
2 1-pound cans red kidney beans
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon salt
2 ham steaks, 1" thick
Cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon butter
1½ cups dry sherry
Coarse bread crumbs, butter

Heat olive oil in skillet and saute onion slowly until limp and golden. Cut oranges into small sections and remove seeds. Drain off all but ¼ of bean liquid from each can. Lightly toss beans, horseradish, salt, oranges and oil-onion mixture together. Cut ham steaks into 8 servings. Sprinkle both sides with cayenne and saute in butter over high heat until golden. In a shallow casserole, arrange a layer of the bean-orange combination and over this the ham slices. Top with the rest of the bean mixture and pour sherry over all. Cover and cook at 350 degrees, basting frequently, for 1 hour or until ham is tender. Remove from oven, sprinkle liberally with coarse bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake uncovered a few minutes at 400 degrees, until crumbs are golden brown. Serves 8.

CELERY AND ITS RELATIVES

Most of us seldom think of vegetables belonging to families. That is one way botanists classify plants according to their various characteristics.

The family Umbelliferae got its name from the umbrella-like flower head or "umbel" of plants belonging to this group. Celery, carrots, parsley, parsnips, celeriac (celery root) and Florence fennel (finocchio or sweet anise) are the most common vegetables in the Umbelliferae family. Oils in the stems, leaves and seeds are responsible for their characteristic odor and flavor. While you may not remember a distinctive celery scent, you surely would be able to recognize the licorice-like flavor of anise.

Wild and cultivated forms of celery originated in the Mediterranean area. The 17th century French cultivated celery as a food and for years thereafter it was used to flavor meats, soups and stews. "Wild" celery or smallage is esteemed as a delicacy by Europeans, who eat the leaves and stalks with oil and pepper.

Celery was known in the United States in the early 1800s. A mild-flavored, crisp, salad ingredient, celery is available throughout the year, with abundant California supplies coming to market in late fall and winter.

When purchasing celery, the U.S. Department of Agriculture suggests the following: select solid, rigid stalks with fresh or only slightly wilted leaflets. Also, look for a glossy surface, light or medium green stalks and mostly green leaflets. Avoid wilted celery or stalks with dark spots or discolored pithy centers. Celery can be freshened somewhat by placing the butt end in water, but badly wilted stalks will not become really fresh.

Although available to some extent throughout the year, parsnips are primarily a late winter vegetable. This is because the flavor becomes sweeter and more desirable after long exposure to cold temperatures (below 40 degrees.) When selecting parsnips, look for ones of small or medium width that are well formed, smooth, firm and free from serious blemishes or decay. Avoid large, coarse roots and badly wilted, limp roots, which will be tough when cooked.

Celeriac, or celery root, is a variety of celery. It is frequently referred to as turnip rooted celery or celery knob. Celeriac is one of the few vegetables that must be peeled before cooking. The skin is very tough and stringy, but when removed, leaves a delicately-flavored vegetable highly regarded for flavoring soups, stews, salads and creamed vegetable dishes.

Raw celery knob may be peeled and cut into strips marinated in French dressing and served on crisp lettuce leaves. Or, peel and dice celeriac, and cook in boiling salted water to which a little vinegar or lemon juice has been added. Drain, season with pepper and garlic and serve with a dollop of yoghurt or sour cream.

CREAMY CELERY SALAD

2 hard-cooked eggs, sieved
1 raw egg yolk
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
5 tablespoons olive oil
Salt, pepper to taste
2 chilled celery hearts, diced
12 walnuts, coarsely chopped
1½ cups chilled sliced beets, drained

Put the sieved hard-cooked yolks, raw yolk, lemon juice, olive oil, salt and pepper in a small deep bowl and beat with a wire whisk until creamy. Add the diced celery and half the walnuts. Place mixture in the center of a serving platter and surround with sliced beets. Top with the remaining walnut halves.

PARSNIP DRESSING

3 parsnips, peeled and shredded
½ cup chopped celery leaves
1 small onion, grated
1-3rd cup butter
3½ cups toasted bread cubes
8 cardamom seeds, mashed
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon each: mace, pepper

Saute parsnips, celery leaves, and onion in butter about 4 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and mix. Makes 5 cups stuffing for chicken, Cornish hens, squab, pork chops or onions.

GINGERED PARSNIPS IN SOUR CREAM

2 pounds parsnips, peeled and cut into 1 inch cubes
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup sour cream
¼ teaspoon ground ginger

Cook the parsnips in boiling salted water to cover until soft. Drain and mash. Beat in the salt, pepper, sour cream, and ginger. Heat the mixture through before serving.

CELERIAC REMOULADE

1 pound celeriac
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 teaspoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Dash of white pepper
Remoulade sauce

Peel celeriac and cut into thin strips. Marinate overnight in olive oil, vinegar, salt, dry mustard and a dash of white pepper. Drain and mix with remoulade sauce.

REMOULADE SAUCE

1 cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon capers, drained
1 teaspoon chopped chives
Pinch dry tarragon and chervil (optional)
Garlic to taste

Combine ingredients and mix thoroughly.

WAYS WITH RICE

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) marketing specialists say we'll have an abundance of rice in October. Rice is a hearty, nutritious staple dating back at least to 3000 B.C.

Rice was introduced to North America by an English sea captain who was forced to land at Charleston, S.C. for repairs. Today, there are endless ways to prepare and serve the grain. Color it with saffron, "curry" it, combine it with vegetables, in a salad, ring mold, main dish casserole, or serve a rich, creamy dessert.

Chicken stock, beef broth, bouillon, consomme, tomato and vegetable juice enhance rice flavor. Mixed with equal proportions of water, fruit juices add a gourmet touch.

When buying rice, look for uniform color and kernel size. Short grain rice cooks moist and tender and has a tendency to cling together. This makes it suitable for puddings, stuffings, rice rings, and Oriental cooking. Medium grain kernels are best with meat and seafood. Long grain kernels are light and fluffy and are inclined to separate. They are good as a side dish, in salads, curries, and stews.

Here are some kitchen tips from USDA:

To avoid sticky rice, do not wash it before cooking. Measure rice and liquid carefully, time accurately, and remove from cooking utensil within 10 minutes after cooking.

When preparing rice in an oven, use a shallow pan. Fluff with fork or slotted spoon to separate grains and allow steam to escape. Keep covered until serving.

When holding rice for up to 1 hour before serving, cover and keep warm. Adding butter or margarine to cooked rice will help keep grains separated.

Girls crash after chase

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An eight-mile high-speed chase by police ended early Sunday when a carload of teenaged girls crashed through a bank parking lot and struck four cars before plunging through a furniture store window.

The five girls, all unidentified because of their age, were taken to Queen of Angels Hospital for treatment.

The 17-year-old driver told officers she tried to lose the officers by leading them on the chase through winding sunset Boulevard because "I didn't want to get another ticket."

Engineers short

Demand for engineering graduates is growing more rapidly than supply, says a manufacturer of stress analysis systems. According to Dr. Felix Zandman, president of Vishay Intertechology, Inc., industry sources indicate that by 1976 there may well be two job openings for each engineering graduate.

Something different helps the lunch box

When the noontime bell rings, youngsters look forward to their lunch boxes with anticipation and excitement. But packing their lunches in the morning can be a frantic task, and one not often enjoyed. You can avoid a lot of those last-minute scrambles with a little before hand planning.

Stock the freezer ahead of time with a variety of basic lunch items such as sandwiches and desserts. In the morning, add fresh fruit and crisp vegetables to these basics for a nutritious and appetizing midday meal. By lunchtime, the sandwich and dessert will be thawed and ready to be devoured.

Because it's important to fill the lunch box with something delicious and nutritious that will keep your children satisfied through the long school day, choose your foods carefully. Wholesome raisins are a natural source of quick energy, and they are an ideal no-mess lunch box addition.

Chewy raisins are also great in your favorite baked goods. A quick and easy dessert that will delight children is Little Raisin Candy Puffs. Light, pastry-like puffs filled with ready-to-spread frosting and chewy raisins are fun to eat and so easy to make. And because they are freezable they belong on your list of basic lunch items.

California raisins are good any time of year. Properly stored in airtight containers, they will keep for months without drying out. They are an ideal snack, too, so remember to tuck handy raisin snack size packages in the jacket pocket for fun nibbling anytime, anywhere.

LITTLE CANDY RAISIN PUFFS

¼ cup butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup flour
2 eggs
1 can (16½ ounces) ready-to-spread vanilla frosting

In heavy saucepan, heat water. Add butter and salt and bring to boil. Turn off heat and quickly stir in flour. Cook and stir over medium heat until dough leaves sides of pan and forms a ball — about 3 minutes. Remove pan from heat and beat in eggs, one at a time. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet. Place in preheated 400-degree oven, and bake 20 to 25 minutes, or until dry and golden. Let cool on pan.

Meanwhile, in small bowl, mix frosting with raisins. Split puffs, with sharp knife, and spoon filling into openings. Press gently to close. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 18 puffs.

Home canning is no bargain if it's fatal

Frightening jumps in the cost of food this summer made many people decide to home can vegetables, fruits and some meats for the first time. These inexperienced people though they might save on their grocery bills.

But now comes a warning from the American Medical Association and the U.S. Department of Agriculture: a threat to your family's health might lie in your home-canned food.

It is the threat of botulism. That is a serious form of food poisoning that produces critical illness. It is fatal in one-fourth of all cases. You should stop canning immediately to recheck your methods.

Dr. Philip L. White, director of the AMA Department of Foods and Nutrition, pointed out in today's Health Magazine that botulism bacteria grow only in airless places such as the vacuum-sealed containers used in home canning.

Low-acid foods such as meat, string beans and corn must be processed in a pressure cooker which reaches temperatures above 249 degrees for 15 minutes.

"Canned foods that are in any way suspect," he warns, "must not be sampled until they have been thoroughly cooked. There is no easily recognizable, characteristic odor. Cans do not necessarily bulge as they do in other kinds of spoilage."

He adds with emphasis, "The best procedure with suspect food is: when in doubt, throw it out."

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reports that in the past four years, there were 30 outbreaks of food-borne botulism involving 91 cases and 21 deaths. This points up the pressing need to educate home canners on how to prevent botulism.

The USDA warns home canners of fruits and vegetables against careless canning methods which might produce botulism.

Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), calls attention to recent reports of botulism in home-canned tomatoes, apparently caused by improper canning methods. He also cited home-canned low acid vegetables such as corn, peas and green beans as common botulism sources.

Jars and lids made specifically for canning have been difficult to find this year.

"Nevertheless, if you used lids and cracked or chipped odd-sized or shaped jars or cracked or chipped jars this summer, check your canned foods carefully. Throw them out if you have any doubts. Botulism is a terrifying thing."

The USDA states that home canning prodvides safe, inexpensive products only if properly canned. Here are some of the department's guidelines to guard against botulism:

Don't take shortcuts or experiment. Use only tested methods.

Use only jars, cans and lids made especially for home canning.

Do not reuse sealing lids.

Follow exactly the time and temperature specifications listed in recipes.

Test the seal according to instructions.

If you feel certain you followed all these instructions when canning, relax. If not, check for bulging lids, leaks, odd odors, off-colors or mold. But don't taste if in doubt. Better destroy — and be safe. Botulism, remember, can be fatal.

Halloween treat easy, inexpensive

Why not bake up a batch of Halloween memories for your neighborhood ghosties and gremlins? From the test kitchens of the R. T. French Co. comes a great new recipe just in time for Halloween.

Ordinary doughnuts become "Spudnuts" when made with country style mashed potato flakes. Fried to a golden turn, with a mildly spiced flavor, Spudnuts are the perfect go together with cider. And homemade Spudnuts are much less expensive than doughnuts bought at the bakery.

What a warm and wonderful way to say "Happy Halloween."

SPUDNUTS

2-3rds cup country styled mashed potato flakes
¼ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
3 cups all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Prepare mashed potato according to package directions for 2 servings, except omit, butter and salt. Beat shortening and sugar together until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, milk, and mashed potato; mix thoroughly. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and spices; add to potato mixture. Roll out ½ to 1-3rd inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut with doughnut cutter. Heat deep fat to 375 degrees. Fry doughnuts in fat until golden brown, turning once. Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with cinnamon sugar, if desired. Makes about 2 dozen doughnuts.

Nearly all the wool we buy comes from the warm, woolly hair that covers the bodies of sheep.

The coat of wool from a full-grown sheep is called a fleece.

Once a year, usually in the spring, the sheep are given a haircut and all the fleece is sheared off. The fleece is packed in bales and then sent to market.

When the fleece arrives at the woolen mill, it is sorted according to fineness and length and thoroughly washed to remove all the dirt and grease.

After it has been dried, the clean wool goes to a carding room. Here, large, revolving cylinders with wire teeth straighten the soft, fluffy wool and comb it into a filmy sheet.

Next, the carded wool is drawn into soft, loose "ropes" called rovings. The wool rovings then go to the spinning room where machines twist them into yarn.

The woolen yarn is now ready to be woven into cloth.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Children learning to cook before television audience

NEW YORK (UPI) — If ham turns up on the menu of public television's newest cooking show this fall, it's likely to be the two-legged sub-teen brand.

Eight-to 12-year-old pupils from public schools and art programs will appear with teacher Colette Rossant in the 16-part series that premieres at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on the Public Broadcasting Service.

The youngsters are all from Columbia, S.C., where the half-hour shows were produced for PBS by Warren Steibel at the South Carolina ETV network.

All are unstructured and unrehearsed. Each group of four children met Mrs. Rossant for the first time when they entered the studio to film a show. Only one child, JoAnne Eaker, will appear more than once.

None knew before the camera rolled what they were going to cook, Mrs. Rossant said in an interview.

The shows also are unedited and uncut, she added.

This led to some funny reactions, such as one child sucking an artichoke leaf like a lollipop and another eating a leaf whole.

Seven-year-olds became so enthralled with baking an orange cake they didn't say a word.

The shows are intended for children, and younger ones are apt to be fascinated by it. So are doting grandparents and any other adults who enjoy being around kids. All the youngsters are nonprofessionals with no TV or acting experience.

The lessons deal mainly with simple, inexpensive foods such as omelets, pies and stuffed fish.

"The whole idea came because I'm a mother. I found I never could cook without being surrounded by my four children," she said.

"There's no reason to eat badly. If we don't teach our children to eat well, 20 years from now the whole country will be a series of MacDonald's, Hardee's and Burger Kings."

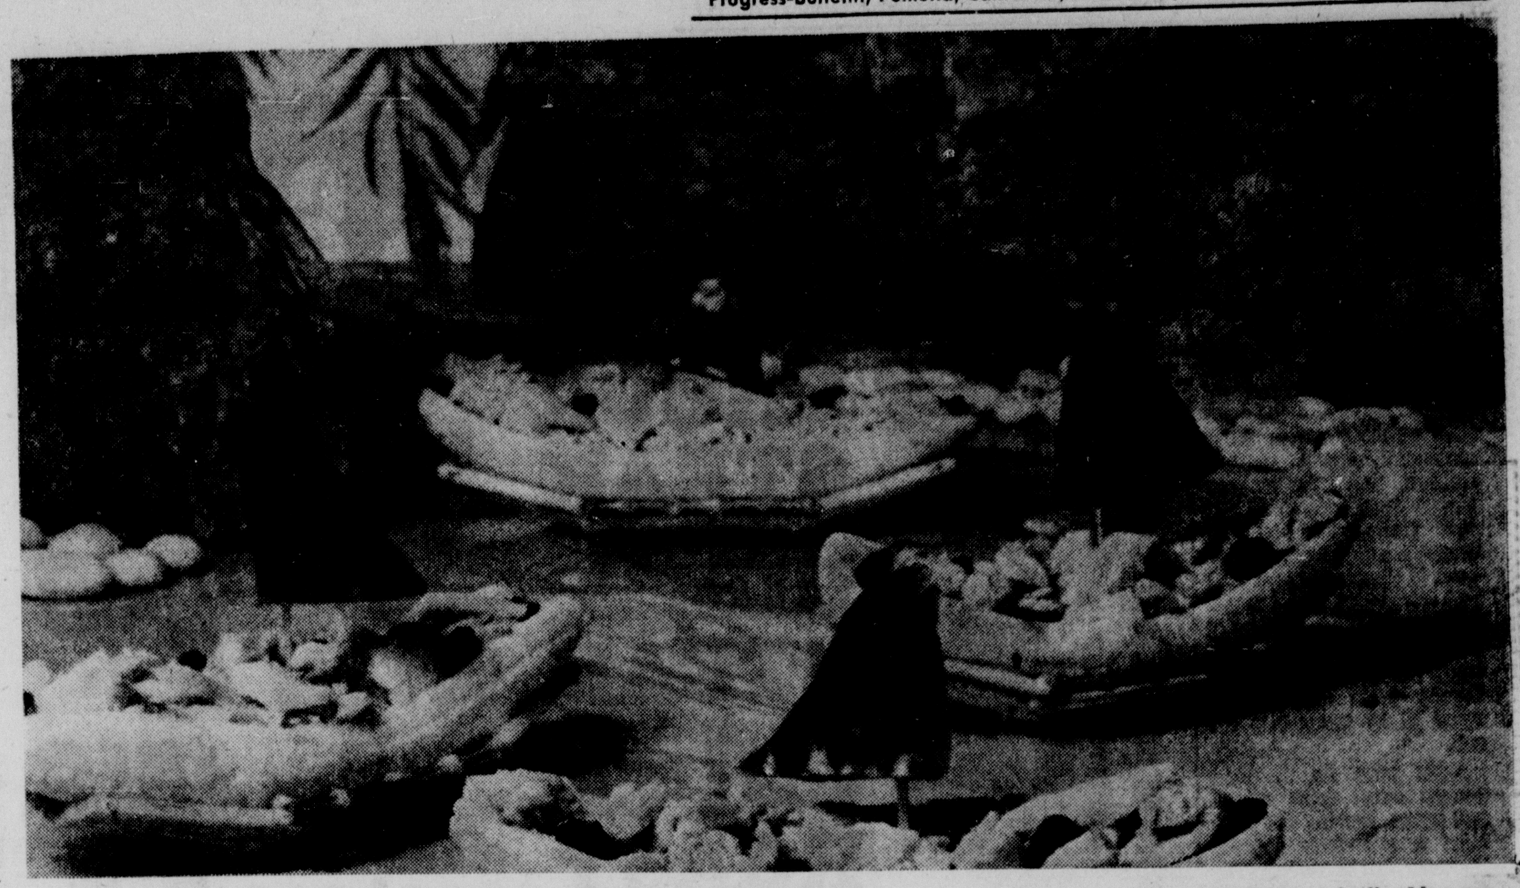
Mrs. Rossant is a Frenchwoman who grew up in Cairo where her stepfather was in the diplomatic service. The TV show, like the cooking classes she teaches at her home in Greenwich Village, are spare time activities. She is chairman of the language department and a teacher at a private school in Brooklyn for gifted children. Her husband, James, is an architect and city planner here.

She is convinced that children should learn to cook at an early age —relying more on tasting than on recipes.

She teaches them to use the same tools as adults —cleavers, keen-edged chef's knives and a two-handled arc-shaped chopper. The latter keeps both hands safely out of reach of the blade, but Mrs. Rossant said that isn't why she chose it.

"I can chop better with it than a straight-edged knife. And I don't believe there is anything dangerous in the kitchen if you teach your child to be aware the danger exists.

"It's like crossing the street --you must be aware of the traffic."



TUNA TIPPY CANOES

Combine 2 6½-ounce cans tuna in vegetable oil, 2 stalks chopped celery, ½ cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and ½ teaspoon salt. Fold in 2 tablespoons raisins and 2 tablespoons chopped nuts. Peel 4 bananas and slice in half lengthwise and sprinkle with a little lemon juice. Place each sliced banana in a small sauce dish or small straw basket lined with a doily. Mound the tuna mixture on the banana halves and secure sails with toothpicks. Cut 4 sails from a green pepper. Serve chilled.

Soft-drink prices bubbling up again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department says prices for most soft drinks, already up 25 per cent or more from last year, are likely to increase again this fall as a result of rising sugar prices.

The soft drink industry uses nearly one fourth of the annual sugar supply, second only to household purchases of packages of sugar at grocery stores.

Sugar prices have not climbed so fast since the 1920s, and soft drinks —which contain 10 to 15 per cent sugar —are reflecting that gain.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., charged in a letter to Attorney General William B. Saxbe Monday that illegal price fixing was responsible for the nearly five-fold price hike for sugar.

Domenici called for an investigation of pricing policies of sugar refiners and said he had evidence that would show "a strong presumption of administrative price fixing and conspiracy."

In August, sugar sold for more than $32 a hundredweight in New York, up 300 per cent in scarcely more than a year.

World sugar production for 1974-75 is projected at 92 million short tons, up 3 per cent from last year, and if projections hold out, production will exceed use by about 2.5 million tons.

During the first half of 1974, the U.S. imported about 3 million tons of sugar, up 16 per cent from a year earlier.

Traditionally, sugar imports rank second only to green coffee in value, but the high sugar prices this year may reverse that situation.

New use found for apple peels, cores

Apple peels and cores from processing plants, known as press cake, appear to make a very satisfactory thickening and flavoring ingredient for apple pie fillings. Apple press cake presently poses apple processors with a disposal problem. The cake is poor animal feed because it has little protein and is only available certain times of the year. It doesn't compete well with citrus peel in the manufacturing of pectin because of the much greater concentration of pectin in citrus. Usually press cake is disposed of by tilling into the soil.

Apple peels do, however, contain much apple aroma and pectin, making the press cake a potentially suitable thickener and texturizer. The apple press cake could substitute for starch as a filling thickener.

Scientists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service (ARS) have made pie fillings with two to three per cent press cake powder as the thickener. None of these pies boiled out. The fillings with two per cent powder are slightly juicy while the three per cent fillings are somewhat drier.

The press cake powder gives the pie fillings a brownish color, making them look more home-made; this should provide additional customer appeal.

Studies conducted by John L. Bomben and Dante G. Guadagni at ARS' Western Regional Research Center in Berkeley show that pies made from the powder have a slightly grainier texture when compared to the smooth, clear, glossy appearance of the starch-thickened fillings. This could probably be eliminated by grinding the press cake finer with a special mill.

Although the pies with the press cake powder are distinctly different from those made with starch, taste panel tests at the Center judged the pies made from the powder of Gravenstein and Winesap apples better flavored than those made with starch.

Adding apple aroma concentrate increased the flavor of pies, especially those made from press cake powder of Gravenstein and Pippen apples.

Briefly, the process for making the powder consists of collecting the peels and cores under sanitary conditions, separating seeds and stems, macerating, pressing, drying, and finally grinding the press cake into a fine powder. More apple aroma can be added to the press cake powder by adding high concentrate (10,000-fold) apple aroma which is produced from the juice pressed from peels and cores. Using the highly concentrated apple aroma restores up to ¾ of the aroma originally present in fresh apple peels.

U.S. viewed best source of mercenaries

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — For a $5 fee, Robert K. Brown claims he can help anyone get a job in the Army of the sultan of Oman. Although he knows the practice violates federal law, he does it anyway for the money.

Brown, an admitted soldier of fortune, provides an "information packet" telling prospective freelance soldiers how they can join the sultan's army in the Middle East.

"Thanks to the war in Vietnam, the largest number of unemployed, combat-trained soldiers in the world is in the United States today," Brown said. "That's where I forsee most of the new mercenaries coming from."

Brown said said despite government laws which prohibit the offering of such a service, authorities have not yet attempted to stop would-be adventurers from applying.

"Once you've been exposed to adventure, it's very difficult to fit back into humdrum civilian life," Brown said. "And it does offer an opportunity to go to war when the U.S. government is not officially involved in one."

Dieters get advice: don't 'lean' on pills

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dieters should not use diet pills too long or rely solely on them in their diet programs, a physician warned in an article in the current edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Michael H. M. Dykes recommended the pills only be used as long as weight loss continues without side effects, usually four to six weeks.

He said the appetite suppressors should be used with caloric restriction, apropriate exercise and psychological support.

If persons develop signs of "psychic dependence or other undesirable effects, or the need for increased dosage goes too high," Dykes said, diet pill usage should stop.

He said three new anorexiants, appetite suppressors, have joined the market and are comparable to older drugs, such as Dexedrine, Preludin or Pre-Sate, in their effects on appetites.

"Use of any anorexiant will usually result in suppression of appetite and weight loss over a period of a few weeks," he said. But even though the loss is greater than it would be without the suppressors, "the total loss remains modest."

Patients with cardiovascular disease should not use the diet pills, Dykes said. Some of the products may cause constipation, dryness of the mouth and insomnia, drowsiness, diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, headache and impotence. Large doses may cause poisoning, he said.

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

What's your reason for not buying a home NOW?

WONDER WHERE TO BEGIN LOOKING?

Worry no more . . . most folks have found that the best place to shop for that new or lived-in home is in the Classified Real Estate columns of the Progress-Bulletin. It's here (and only here) that each day you'll find the very latest offerings of homes 'for sale' . . . advertised by the area's leading real estate firms and builders.
